Record Heroin Seizure

Two men and a woman were to appear in provincial court this afternoon charged in connection with the seizure of a half million dollars worth of heroin, the largest single haul in Greater Victoria history.

John Alexander McLeod, 26, his wife Gail, 25, both of Esquimalt and Alfred Grant Cooley, 37, of Sooke were arrested Monday morning following a police raid on a residence in Esquimalt.

An RCMP drug squad spokesman said two ounces of extremely high quality white heroin were found on a table in the residence after officers burst through the doors. The drug had a value of $500,000 on the illicit market, he said.

The three have been charged with conspiracy to traffic in a narcotic and possession of a narcotic for purposes of trafficking. The woman has also been charged with importing.

The arrests came after a week-long investigation by Canada Customs, the RCMP criminal intelligence section and members of the RCMP drug squad in Victoria.

Meanwhile, in Vancouver, undercover operations have resulted in the arrest of five persons and two seizures of the drug LSD with a total street value of $160,000 — the largest in Vancouver history, RCMP said.

Police said the arrests were made after undercover officers bought the hallucinogen drug. Different undercover operations, both running only about two months and classed as short-term, resulted in the LSD sales.

"We've noticed in the street action lately an upswing in LSD," a police spokesman said.

Texas Refinery Inferno

TEXAS CITY, Tex. (AP) — A fiery explosion at an oil refinery on the Gulf of Mexico early today touched off a chain reaction of blasts that blew up two 55,000-gallon gasoline tanks and killed three workers, plant officials said. Twelve others were injured.

The heat was so intense that firefighters said they were unable to get closer than within two blocks of Texas City Refining Inc. A fireball with flames 60 metres high was visible from Houston 56 kilometres to the northwest.

Fire officials said about 100 families were evacuated from their Texas City homes as a precaution.

Cause of the explosion has not been determined.

Fred Gross, supervisor for the Texas City Ambulance Service, said he was in bed when the first explosion rocked the ambulance service building.

"I thought at first it might be a tornado, then I looked out the window and it was as if it were daylight. I thought I was engulfed in a fireball," Gross said.

3 Killed In Blaze

A man and his two daughters were killed early today when fire broke out in their house in Duncan.

Duncan RCMP said the bodies of Kenneth Phillip Charlie, 29, Gina Louise, 8, and Loretta Lynn, 7, were found in a bedroom of the house at 247 Ingram.

Members of the Duncan volunteer fire department quickly extinguished the blaze which was spotted by a passer-by at 3:45 a.m.

Cause of the fire is not known.

An official of the provincial fire marshall's office was expected to arrive at the scene later today to begin an investigation.

THOSE CRAZY DRIVERS!

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — A lot of Mexico City bus drivers should be in psychiatric hospitals instead of behind the wheel, according to a doctor in the capital's police department.

Dr. Salvador Jimenez of the police and transit rescue squad says psychiatric tests have shown "a large number" of the city's bus drivers to be psychopathic and aggressive.

Most traffic accidents in Mexico City — where 1.5 million vehicles clog the streets — can be blamed on the drivers' violent inclinations, he said.

The police department will begin requiring psychiatric tests as a prerequisite for driver's licence renewals within a few months, Jimenez said.

Heroin Bill 'Very Scary'

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

The Heroin Treatment Act introduced in the legislature Monday will commit persons evaluated as addicts to three years in a compulsory treatment program.

But Health Minister Bob McClelland, contending it is a health bill aimed at medical solutions for heroin addiction, said the program is humane and takes care of people's civil rights in every way.

Under the new law the severest cases will be "sentenced" to six months' care at the single compulsory treatment centre at Brannan Lake near Nanaimo.

Up to 150 addicts at a time will take their withdrawal treatment there.

Estimates of the number of addicts in B.C. range up to 15,000, McClelland said, but admitted his ministry has been using a conservative figure of 6,800.

The ministry is expecting 2,500 addicts a year to enter the program.

The cabinet will appoint special panels in five regions of the province — probably Vancouver Island, the Lower Mainland, Central Interior, the Kootenays and the north.

The panels will contain at least two medical practitioners and a decision to commit a heroin user to the program has to be unanimous. If there is any doubt, the suspect is set free.

Police, without a warrant, can give notification that a person they believe to be dependent on heroin must appear at an evaluation centre at a set time, between 24 and 48 hours.

If the suspect fails to attend, police can obtain a warrant and take the person into custody for an appearance at the evaluation centre.

If the suspect is evaluated as an addict, the committee can order police to pick him or her up — without a warrant — for delivery to a treatment centre.

See CONFINEMENT Page 8

The Heroin Treatment Act presented in the legislature Monday is somewhat toned down from earlier drafts, but is still "a very scary piece of legislation," the president of the B.C. Civil Liberties Association said today.

Jim Dybikowski said one of Bill 18's most worrisome aspects is that there is no requirement that a suspected heroin user be present while the evaluation determines if he should be committed to the three-year compulsory treatment program.

All justice systems in western civilization grant the right of a person to be present during any hearing that might deprive him of his freedom, and to be represented by legal counsel and to have the right to cross-examine witnesses, Dybikowski said.

He said the Kafkaesque evaluation panels are worse than the recent trial of Soviet dissident Uri Orlov. He at least attended the hearings and was permitted to question witnesses.

Other normal legal procedures missing from the bill include a requirement by the evaluation panel to notify a person of his right to appeal.

And the appeal itself is only over commitment to the program, not to the type of treatment a person will be subjected to.

Dybikowski said the type of treatment outlined in the act doesn't appear to take the promised medical approach.

For example, the act contains no provision for a doctor to stop treatment once a patient is committed to a program.

Confidentiality is another area of concern, he said.

The act that set up the Alcohol and Drug Commission provided for strict confidence of all information related to a patient. Now it appears the ADC can give that information to the evaluation panels to help them make their decision as to whether or not a person is drug-dependent.

This information could end up in the courts if the person appeals a commitment order.

Dybikowski predicts this is where the constitutionality of the act will be tested in the courts.

One noticeable change in the present form of the act is that the evaluation panels must agree the user is dependent on drugs. Earlier drafts of the legislation would have committed a person to the program if the panel felt the person was a user who appeared to be in need of treatment.

IT'S BEAUTY AND BULLET

BEIRUT (AP) — As the jury of the Miss Lebanon pageant emerged from the Al Bustan Hotel, relatives of one of the losing contestants drew guns and opened fire, setting off a fracas that eventually had to be broken up by the army.

A week later, at the same Lebanese mountain resort, a counter pageant was disrupted when one of the losing contestants grabbed a microphone and began to insult the jury, the winner and the winner's family.

"The ensuing brawl sent chairs and bottles flying in the air, men and women traded insults and plates, and, what was worse, stray bullets echoed in and around the hall," said organizer George Dfouni. Police said several persons were injured.

The unbecoming mix of bullets and beauty as this violence-wracked nation tried to choose its representatives to the Miss Universe and Miss World pageants has prompted the government to prohibit all unauthorized beauty contests. But passions have not cooled.

"Today, the girls will most likely avoid beauty contests because they wonder which contest is legal and which is illegal, and, above all, they don't know if they will come out of the contest alive," said Raymond Loire, head of the officially-sanctioned National Committee for Miss Lebanon Contests.

The face-off is between Loire's group and the rival Lebanese Committee for Miss Lebanon Elections, a maverick group set up by Dfouni.

Dfouni, who owns a beauty salon on Beirut's fashionable Hamra Street, claims that previous beauty contests have been the "focus of corruption and profiteering," and insists he is "better acquainted with beauty" than Loire.

"Everyone started trying to make money out of the events one way or the other, selling lottery tickets, organizing auctions and promoting hotels," Dfouni said in an interview. "Beauty contests became more commercial than artistic. The standards have fallen to their lowest level ever."

So far, the ministry of tourism has refused to recognize Dfouni's contest, and Loire has vowed to fight it out and convince the nation that beauty and gunfire do not mix.

Black State Aid Slated

By MURRAY MARDER

WASHINGTON — France and the United States, with different national constraints on their actions, have agreed to help African nations defend themselves against "destabilizing external forces" if those nations put together "some operative arrangement," French Foreign Minister Louis de Guiringaud said Monday.

That was agreed upon by Presidents Carter and Valery Giscard d'Estaing in their White House dinner meeting Friday night, Guiringaud confirmed in an interview with The Washington Post.

Soviet-Cuban actions in Africa, he said, are producing "destabilizing tensions" across the continent.

France already has shown its "willingness to back those African states who are willing to defend themselves," Guiringaud said, referring especially to the parachute drop by French Legionnaires on the then-besieged copper-mining center of Kolwezi in Zaire's Shaba Province.

He said that Carter "has shown a willingness to do the same — as much as present congessional legislation permits. He also has indicated his intention to get from Congress more flexibility."

In an interview at the residence of the French ambassador here Guiringaud said that during the last two years "we see Cuban forces — regular forces — and large bodies of Soviet military advisers active in Africa — in Angola, in the Horn of Africa, in Mozambique, and we see the hand of the Cubans in many of the destabilizing tensions which we have to face in Africa.

Ottawa Sizzles At 31°

OTTAWA (CP) — A record heat wave closed at least five city schools, one bank and caused faucets to steam as temperatures soared to a sizzling 31 degrees celsius Monday.

Environment Canada officials said the searing 31.9 degrees experienced Saturday and then the 32.6 degrees Sunday melted the former 1939 record of 29.4 degrees for both May 26 and May 27 and warned that at least one more hot day is in store before an expected cold front moves in Wednesday.

Tellers at a downtown branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia were forced to leave their wickets after the building's temperature climbed to a sweltering 39 degrees due to broken air conditioning equipment.

Ottawa firefighters were summoned to an apartment building Sunday when residents discovered steam coming from their water faucets.

A fire department official later said the hot sun upset the building's electrical controls and sent the water heater into high gear, turning all the hot water into steam.

Valley Farmers Cited In UIC Hours Fraud

VANCOUVER (CP) — Employment and Immigration Commission investigators are probing an unemployment insurance fraud scheme in the Fraser Valley, a commission spokesman said Monday.

Investigators said Monday that some farmers claim their employees work more hours than they actually do — allowing the employers to collect excessive tax rebates and the employees to collect unearned unemployment insurance benefits.

Commission spokesman Murray Perry said the investigators found evidence last year that resulted in charges against three Matsqui-area raspberry farmers.

Harbhajan Hayre, his brother Gurmit and sister Baldish Deol are on trial in provincial court charged with conspiracy to commit fraud.

The Crown charges that, in the summer of 1976, the defendants demanded and got kickbacks of between $200 and $300 each from many of their employees in return for falsifying work records to indicate the employees had worked eight weeks instead of seven. The extra week made them eligible for unemployment insurance benefits.

Crown prosecutor Wallace Oppal said between 30 and 40 workers were employed on the farm.

PM Urges New NATO Arms Plan

WASHINGTON (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said today NATO should launch a major effort to develop new, constructive disarmament proposals in an effort to reduce tension with the Soviet bloc. (For other views on disarmament, see stories on Page 24.)

Trudeau's proposal seemed to conflict with the stand expressed by U.S. President Carter, who said the U.S. will maintain strategic nuclear balance with the Soviet Union.

Delivering Canada's contribution to the opening session of the two-day NATO summit, Trudeau maintained that the search for security can too easily be conducted only through armaments improvements.

"It must also be sought through effective arms control and disarmament," he said. "Members of the alliance should undertake a major effort to develop further positive and constructive proposals in this domain."

Trudeau also praised moves by the United States to open up American defence purchasing to other NATO allies. The defence purchasing issue has been a sore point particularly with European NATO members, seeking a larger share of the American defence market.

Summing up the Canadian view, Trudeau emphasized again, as he has on previous occasions, that "in the final analysis we will not be militarily strong unless we are economically strong."

Trudeau said Canada appreciates being consulted by the U.S. on the Soviet-American Strategic Arms Limitation Talks.

The allies, he said, should attempt to "impart some political resolve for forward movement" in the current East-West Vienna talks dealing with the balanced forces reduction in Europe.

In his address, President Carter said the NATO alliance must bolster its military power to meet a Communist buildup that "far exceeds their legitimate security needs."

Addressing the opening session, Carter pledged that the United States "will play its part" in supplying conventional, tactical nuclear and strategic armed forces.

"The United States will maintain strategic nuclear equivalence with the Soviet Union," Carter said.

His comments did not match the stridency of statements Sunday by his national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, but they were a far cry from Carter's remarks a year ago that the U.S. no longer need have an "inordinate fear" of communism.

Fish Word This Week

OTTAWA (CP) — The outcome of a fisheries dispute between Canada and the United States should be known by the end of the week, Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc said Monday.

"We will see this week whether the agreement will work," LeBlanc told reporters when questioned about negotiations on a 1978 fisheries agreement between the two countries.

Canada is trying to get the U.S. to live up to a commitment made in the agreement to extend the zone for British Columbia salmon trollers off the State of Washington and to put tighter controls on its East Coast fleet.

The U.S. has refused to allow the salmon trollers increased access because Canada didn't close the salmon fishery on Swiftsure Banks off southern B.C. when asked to in April.

"There'll be no indefinite dragging on," LeBlanc said. The Canadian negotiators are to meet fisheries officials today to discuss a series of counteroffers the Americans made last Friday in Washington.

Canada has threatened to close its waters to American fishermen if the U.S. doesn't fulfill its share of the agreement worked out by special negotiators in the spring.

LeBlanc told Alex Patterson (PC—Fraser Valley East) in the Commons, that without an agreement, there would be no obligation to maintain fishing privileges for U.S. fishermen in Canadian waters.

Since the Friday meeting, there has been an exchange of messages between the negotiators — Marcel Cadieux for Canada and Lloyd Cutler for the U.S. — "and we're trying to find ways of making the agreement acceptable." The negotiators will also be meeting today with their advisers from the industry.

Lang Delays On Crash Pay

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Otto Lang said Monday he wants legal advice before deciding whether to order insurance companies to pay amounts owed to victims of the Feb. 11 crash of a Pacific Western Airlines jet at Cranbrook.

He was replying in the Commons to Alvin Hamilton (PC—Que'Appelle-Moose Mountain) who urged the minister to tell the companies to make the payments.

Transport department regulations say that every commercial air carrier must carry insurance on the lives of all passengers.

"Now that (the corner's) hearings are over and it is very clear that no passenger was to blame, would the minister now follow up the regulations of his own department and direct the insurance companies . . . to honor their contracts?" asked Hamilton.

Lang said he is unsure whether he has the power to make such an order.

"I know that the matter is under very serious discussion at the moment between the various parties involved and I am not at all sure that I have a right to interfere with these discussions at this point in time," Lang said.

Doman Denies Log Dumping

Doman Industries Ltd. has stopped dumping logs in the Cowichan River estuary since receiving a cabinet order to desist last week.

Vice-president Joe Frumento said today it was the company's opinion that in changing the dump site from the estuary to its sawmill pond it was complying with the cabinet order which follows a development moratorium imposed last November.

Monday in the legislature Cowichan-Malahat NDP member Barbara Wallace accused Doman's of ignoring the May 17 order.

"In our opinion we weren't defying the order. We were changing procedure," Frumento said.

Logs were not being dumped in the sensitive estuary area for storage, he said. They are going directly from dry storage to the millpond and "the fisheries people are aware of it, seen it and haven't complained about it."

"I can't understand Barbara Wallace. She is our member but she hasn't talked to us about it, although we'd be happy to. We're sitting here waiting for her support, from our local member," Frumento said.

Mrs. Wallace told the house and Environment Minister Jim Nielsen 40 logs per weekday and 100 on weekends were being dumped in the river estuary. Nielsen promised an investigation and to proceed against the company if her allegation was founded.

Socreds Oppose Fish Plea

Graham Lea (NDP—Prince Rupert) unsuccessfully attempted Monday to have the legislature discuss a motion calling for it to press the federal government not to allow a change of the Canada-United States border inside Dixon Entrance, between the Queen Charlotte Islands and Alaska.

Lea's motion failed to receive the unanimous consent of the house when several Social Credit members dissented.

The NDP MLA said he fears federal officials are prepared to trade off a boundary shift for concessions from the U.S. government on a new fishing treaty.

Women and Children Flee Zaire War Zone

Times News Services

KINSHASA — Dozens of white women and children today left Zaire's war-torn Shaba province on a special airlift organized by Belgium and France amid fears of a new rebel attack on the mining center of Kolwezi.

A Belgian Embassy statement said the airlift was not an evacuation and people using it would not be considered refugees.

The embassy said the transport was provided to reassure Europeans they had freedom of movement.

But the airlift had all the aspects of an evacuation because of the precarious security situation and worsening living conditions.

Hundreds of whites and blacks were slain during the nine-day occupation of Kolwezi by Angola-based Katangese rebels earlier this month.

A company of French Foreign Legion paratroopers that remained behind in Kolwezi pulled out Monday to join some 550 of their comrades in the provincial capital of Lubumbashi.

This left Kolwezi's defense in the hands of about 1,000 Zaire army troops and officers said they expected clashes between them and rebels, backed by ethnic supporters in the local Lunda tribe.

Hundreds of rebels were feared still lurking in the dense bush near Kolwezi as the bulk of an invading force — which fled with up to 60 white hostages and a vast amount of loot — regrouped at camps in neighboring Angola.

As the legionnaires withdrew along the 210-mile road eastward from Kolwezi to Lubumbashi, they took with them more than 200 women and children from the town of Likasi.

These and other whites in Lubumbashi were being transported to Kinshasa and on to Europe aboard the French and Belgian aircraft.

In an apparent attempt to avoid spreading panic among Shaba province's 4,000 whites, officials denied that the airlift was an evacuation, saying it was designed to help families who normally would be leaving for summer vacations.

However, it was clear that few of the families would be returning.

The men were left with the difficult choice of quitting their jobs or staying on in an increasingly precarious situation, diplomatic sources said.

ROCKET TESTED

STUTTGART (AP) — A West German rocket company says it made a test launch in Zaire's Shaba province during the recent rebel invasion, but the missile fell to earth far from the battle area.

A spokesman for the Stuttgart-based Orbital Transport und Raketen AG said Monday that the trial launch May 20 was OTRAG's second on the 60,800-square-kilometre site it leases from Zaire's government for $20 million a year.

"Our African testing range is in a sparsely populated area about 600 km from Kolwezi and it is not affected by the rebellion," spokesman Gabriele Opderbeck said. She did not give the exact location of the range.

Yugoslavs Want Deal

BONN (UPI) — Yugoslavia, which is holding four German terrorist suspects who may be a link to the murder of former Italian Premier Aldo Moro, has asked West Germany to extradite persons wanted in Yugoslavia, justice officials said today.

But Yugoslav government sources in Belgrade said "it is not a swap deal" although they conceded authorities were considering extraditing the Germans, who were arrested before May 20.

"We only hope West Germany will now speed up proceedings to meet our long-standing requests for the extradition of a number of Yugoslavs," the source in Belgrade said.

A Yugoslav embassy spokesman in Bonn also denied Yugoslavia is making the extradition of Yugoslav terrorists a condition for turning over the four Germans, believed a common link to some of Europe's most sensational assassinations.

Justice ministry spokesman Sepp Binder said Monday West Germany had asked for the German terrorists' extradition but that Bonn would not agree to any prisoner swaps.

West German police believe a blond, 28-year-old woman arrested with three other terrorists in Yugoslavia may be the common link to several assassinations, including the murder of Moro.

Brigitte Mohnhaupt, an ex-convict and purported leader of the Baader-Meinhof gang, was seized by Yugoslav authorities along with Rolf Clemens Wagner, 33, Sieglinde Hofmann, 32, and Peter Boock, 28.

Miss Mohnhaupt was described as the "big-fish" of the four by interior ministry officials, who said that she, Wagner and Miss Hofmann were charter members of the Baader-Meinhof gang.

Besides the Moro killing, Miss Mohnhaupt and Wagner also are suspected in the kidnap of West German industrialist Hanns-Martin Schleyer, who was killed last Oct. 18 after authorities refused to free 11 imprisoned members of the Baader-Meinhof gang.

Chinese Refugees Detail 'Bloody Atrocities'

PEKING (Reuter) — Chinese refugees have accused Hanoi authorities of "bloody atrocities" after Vietnamese troops opened fire on two boatloads of people fleeing the country.

There was no immediate reaction in Peking to a proposal by Hanoi for talks in the Chinese capital in early June to discuss the refugee problem.

Radio Hanoi said a note has been handed to the Chinese ambassador in Vietnam's capital proposing talks.

China wants to send ships to the northern port of Haiphong and Ho Chi Minh City in the south to evacuate Chinese.

Hsinhua said a 60-year-old woman was wounded in the shoulder and hand and an 18-year-old girl shot in the wrist when Vietnamese troops opened fire with automatic weapons on two boatloads carrying 53 refugees trying to reach China.

Leaking Tanker Bow Blasted

GREAT YARMOUTH, England (Reuter) — The Royal Navy today exploded and sank the bow section of the wrecked Greek tanker Eleni V which had been spewing oil off England's east coast for more than three weeks.

Oil from the 12,500-ton ship, sliced in two after a collision with a French vessel on May 6, has polluted some English resort beaches.

British officials decided to sink the bow section, which still contained about 1,000 tons of oil, after being unable to find a sandbar large and firm enough to ground it while the oil was transferred to another vessel.

Before the 2½ tons of explosives, planted by divers, were detonated, shipping was warned not to stay at least three kilometres away from the Eleni V.

The bow was sunk in about 53 metres of water 40 kilometres off the English coast.

HOSPITAL APPEAL

A spokesman for the cancer clinic at the Royal Jubilee Hospital said today there is an urgent need for private overnight accommmodation for up-Island patients.

He said about 40 up-Island patients attend the clinic each month. Of these about 10 require overnight accommodation, lasting for periods of two to three days or two to three weeks.

Accommodation is needed at reasonable rates in homes near the hospital.

People who can assist in filling this need are asked to phone clinic secretary Mrs. Maureen Humphries at 595-9221.

NEW ISRAELI PRESIDENT MAKES PLEA TO SADAT

JERUSALEM (AP) — Yitzhak Navon, a native-born politician and playwright, became Israel's fifth president Monday and appealed directly to President Anwar Sadat of Egypt to reopen stalled Middle East peace talks.

The time has come for "the great reconciliation" between Arabs and Jews, Navon said after taking the oath of office in a colorful ceremony at the Knesset, Israel's parliament.

"The length of road that we still have to traverse is shorter than the road we have already passed," Navon said. He refered to Sadat's historic journey to the hilltop Knesset building last November to start the first direct Egyptian-Israeli peace negotiations.

"Too many hopes have been implanted in the hearts of both our peoples for us to be able to disappoint them," he said.

Prime Minister Menachem Begin, looking pale and fatigued after running a high fever during the weekend, listened intently from his seat in the first row of the chamber.

"His temperature is down but he may rest another few days," said spokesman Schlomo Nakdimon. Begin skipped Sunday's Knesset meeting.

Begin has a history of heart trouble. The cause of his fever was not known.

Navon, 57, succeeded Ephraim Katzir in the largely ceremonial post of president. Katzir chose to step down after one five-year term and return to his biology laboratory at the Weizmann Institute of Science.

Navon is a new breed of leadership for Israel, fusing Eastern and Western cultures. He is the first president of Sephardic background, descended from the Jews of medieval Spain who were dispersed by religious persecution, mainly to the Arab countries.

Tired-Looking Brezhnev Begins Prague Visit

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (UPI) — Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev began his first visit to Czechoslovakia in five years today and witnesses reported he walked with heavy steps and looked tired.

Thousands of Czechs lined Prague's streets and cheered Brezhnev, 71, who arrived from Moscow to start a four-day visit that came three months short of the 10th anniversary of a Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia, which checked a liberal Communist movement.

The Soviet leader, wearing five medals pinned to the lapel of a dark business suit, smiled broadly as he drove from the airport and through the streets of the capital with Czechoslovak leader Gustav Husak at his side.

But witnesses said Brezhnev looked weary as he greeted Husak and other leaders and said his walk was heavy as he inspected a military honor guard.

In a recent visit to West Germany, Brezhnev, who has often been reported ailing, had to be pulled up from a chair and had to be given a helping hand while going down a few stairs.

Soviet and Czechoslovak flags fluttered side by side in the brilliant sunshine in Prague's central Wenceslas Square and other downtown areas to mark Brezhnev's first visit to Czechoslovakia since February 1973.

At the same time Prague radio announced today the arrest of Pavel Landoosky, an actor and prominent signer of the Charter 77 declaration of human rights issued by Czechoslovak dissidents last year.

The radio said police picked Landoosky up at his apartment. Police have picked up Landoosky several times in the past. On these past occasions they gave a reason for his arrest, but this time they declined all comment.

Tax Troubles

Some of the busiest places in town these days must be the tax offices of the various municipal halls. Since tax notices started going out a couple of weeks ago, the phones have scarcely stopped ringing — and few of the calls have been pleasant. Most of them come from disgruntled homeowners wanting to know why, in a time of supposed restraint, their taxes have soared 10, 20, 30 and even 40 per-cent.

It's a perfectly reasonable question, but it's quite unfair that city halls should be stuck in the position of being blamed for the increases. The blame should land squarely at the feet of the provincial government.

A number of provincial actions combined to lead to the increases. First, the government made some unilateral changes in the school financing formula which led to increases in school taxes.

Second, and more significant, a complete revision in the assessment system took place. Undoubtedly a revision was in order, but the provincial government took advantage of the opportunity to impose a massive shift in the tax burden from rental accommodation to ordinary single-family dwellings. The impact of the shift has been particularly acute on older dwellings which, it must be admitted, have been heavily sheltered from tax increases in the past few years.

The province argues that the new assessment procedures were recommended by a royal commission that studied the whole subject most carefully. Indeed they were, but they were recommended as part of a wider program of property tax reform. For example, the royal commission also said that the province itself should work towards paying 75 per cent of school operating costs. Instead, it is working towards paying a lower percentage each year so that it now pays less than half the costs in most school districts.

In an area already so complex and difficult as property tax reform, it is not realistic to implement a package of recommendations in such a piecemeal fashion. It cannot help but cause hardship to some people; in this case the victims are frequently those who cannot afford it, older people, people on fixed incomes, who have been living in the same older house for years.

The provincial government undoubtedly thinks it is politically safe on this issue because the natural target for blame and abuse is the municipal council which sets the mill rate and sends out the tax notices. The voters who are upset with the increases should show the Socreds that they know better.

Annoying Duck Bite

Perhaps we dozed overlong on the beach last summer, but when did ordinary, familiar lifejackets become Personal Flotation Devices?

It sounds like fourth prize in a contest to come up with the blandest, most undescriptive terminology. The federal Ministry of Transport's boating safety guide brought this ungainly amalgam — can it be a literal translation from German, or adopted from the military, perhaps ("devices, persons, for the flotation of") — into the language.

Immediately abbreviated to PFD, of course, the term does not seem destined to enter the weekend sailor's vocabulary. Words endure from the classic age of sail and wooden ships which have little meaning in an era of plastic and stainless steel; they're colorful nouns and adjectives with romance and meaning. But PFD?

Can't you just see a Coast Guard officer hailing a cabin cruiser: "Ahoy, there. Have you got your Personal Flotation Devices secured?" This mouth-filling phrase may not be the death of the English language all by itself, but a man can die from a thousand duck bites too.

Stow PFD in Davey Jones' locker, MoT.

Sleazy's the Best Word for It

OTTAWA — Sleazy is the best way to describe Conservative MP Sinclair Stevens' behavior in publicly accusing, although he knew he lacked any substantive evidence, nine Liberal MPs, including "two or three cabinet ministers," of speculating on the dollar.

The affair itself is now closed. Stevens indeed restored a measure of grace to himself by the manner of his retraction. He admitted he had been "wrong." He cited examples of accusations made, in the heat of debate, by cabinet ministers against Conservative members. He expressed "regret (for) any embarrassment" he might have caused since, by naming no one, he had vilified everyone.

The issue, though, is not ended. Stevens broke one of Parliament's unwritten rules, which always are far more binding than the written rules that get haggled over by lawyers, like the conflict of interest legislation that Deputy Prime Minister Alan MacEachen has promised to bring down.

Just Not Done

Parliament is a club. An old-fashioned one and inefficient one, but better, to paraphrase Winston Churchill's comment about democracy, than all of the alternatives.

It may seem quaint to say so, but in the end MPs have to comport themselves like gentlemen, or gentlewomen. Certain things are just not done. Everyone knows what they are. You don't call another MP a liar, even though by verbal tricks you can show that you don't believe that he or she is telling the whole truth. And you yourself tell the truth, even though once again you can use verbal tricks to cast your case in the best possible light.

Stevens is not a gentleman. He doesn't know what you don't do.

In many ways, Stevens has made a remarkable success of his political career. Few businessmen are able to make as quick and as accomplished a transition as Stevens has done from a simple, black-and-white bottom-line to the subtle, shifting greys of political life. Few can overcome, as Stevens has done, the disadvantage of looking like a politician's caricature of a businessman — roly-poly, chubby-cheeked, cigar-smoking. In addition, Stevens has lived down a sort of skeleton in his political past. This is the 1967 collapse of his Bank of Western Canada, which flowered during the hot-house, easy money years of the 1960s, and which then abruptly withered.

Could someone who couldn't run a small bank, run the economy of the country? Yes, it once seemed. There is to Stevens an almost unnerving, single-minded seriousness.

By sheer hard work and by peppy partisanship that counted when Conservative party spirits were low, Stevens overtook his more intellectual rival for the opposition finance critic portfolio, Toronto MP Jim Gillies. (As well, at the Conservative leadership convention, Stevens guessed on Joe Clark, and guessed right of course.)

Yet Stevens never has been able to distance himself from the doubts of his critics. A month ago, when an election seemed likely, word leaked out from Conservative inner circles that Stevens' appointment as a Conservative finance minister was by no means the certainty than everyone assumed.

The names of two rivals were passed out in what, clearly, was a deliberate campaign to reassure the financial community: Robert de Cotret, former president of the Conference Board in Canada, who is handicapped by a complete lack of parliamentary experience, and MP John Crosbie, once an outstanding minister of finance in Newfoundland, who is handicapped by the most serious possible defect in a Canadian politician — a sense of humor.

Lack of judgement is the criticism most commonly made against Stevens. More exactly his defect is a lack of a sense of responsibility.

A month ago, Stevens, as was quite proper, questioned Finance Minister Jean Chretien about reports the government had prepared draft foreign exchange control legislation. Chretien flatly denied the rumor. There the matter, which does the value of our dollar no good, should have rested. Instead, last week during a radio interview on the same day that he retracted his accusation about ministers speculating on the dollar, Stevens repeated his charge about impending exchange control legislation. Sleazy.

Mud on Himself

In the affair of the (now shown to have been imaginary) speculation on the Canadian dollar by cabinet ministers, Stevens' behavior has been even more curious. Last April 17, on a flight from Toronto to Ottawa, Stevens sat beside an aide to Justice Minister Ron Basford and related the story to him. This was the route by which the government first heard of the rumor. Subsequently, Stevens made no effort to check privately with Basford or with other ministers. Instead, he blurted out to a Canadian Press reporter what he knew to be unsubstantiated gossip. Again, sleazy.

Like many who set out to throw mud at others, Stevens has ended up with most of it on himself. That's his personal problem. The political problem Stevens has created for Joe Clark is that the Conservatives now lack a financial spokesman whom anyone could trust — to know how to behave let alone to know how to run the economy.

W.A. WILSON

Realistic Disarmament Plan

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau's speech to the United Nations disarmament conference was not the statement of a new policy but a new, very thoughtful and searching analysis of one of the world's most intractable problems.

Its most remarkable quality is the success it achieves in being constructive without losing realism or becoming trapped in idealistic but impractical rhetoric. The address was the outcome of weeks of work by the prime minister himself and the top officials of external affairs.

The high levels of armaments and the continuing race to increase them are a reflection of the political tensions that wrack this world and this is what makes it so difficult to proceed with disarmament as a problem in itself. Yet it is indeed a problem in itself even while it is the product of other, underlying difficulties.

One of the worst aspects of the arms race is the momentum that it generates feeding on itself, with the inherent risk that, as the prime minister put it, foreign policy may be dominated by defence policy rather than the other way around.

Petty Opposition

Because the speech was a lengthy analysis, rather than a policy statement, it makes petty nonsense of the pressure on the prime minister in advance to reveal its contents to the House of Commons or a press conference before delivering it to the United Nations. The House is entitled to hear government policies before any one else but it is not entitled to attempt emasculation of the nation's representative when he is addressing an international forum of importance. The opposition did not distinguish itself in the House the day before Trudeau went to the UN.

This is one more occasion when it is so much easier to appreciate the prime minister's efforts in the international field than it often is in the domestic one. It is also one of the reasons why his reputation abroad is usually so much higher than it is within the country. When he is operating internationally, he seems to rise to his full potential and is a worthy representative of the country. At home, his performances are too often marred by pettiness, extreme partisanship and, sometimes, apparent loss of interest. The difference is striking.

This was the first occasion during his 10 years in office that the prime minister had addressed the United Nations general assembly and the occasion for it was that Canadian authorities, like those in other countries, believe they sense the beginning of a new phase in international efforts to curb the increase in armaments. Evidently France is among the countries that share this feeling since its government decided to rejoin the disarmament dialogue and President Valery Giscard d'Estaing went to the assembly himself.

Some of this feeling is, no doubt, triggered by certain of U.S. President Jimmy Carter's positions and actions, although the manner in which he has carried them out has not been universally applauded. But it appears to have broader foundations than that and Trudeau may have touched the real cause of the new mood when he told the assembly that "detente also is in danger." Given the scale of the Soviet Union's arms build-up, conventional as well as nuclear, and its activist policies, detente is indeed in danger.

"The new technologies can require a decade or more to take a weapons system from research and development to production and eventual deployment. What this means is that national policies are preempted for long periods ahead. . . . (Governments) have allowed the blind and unchecked momentum of the arms race to create and to put at their disposal military capabilities of an order of magnitude that other governments cannot prudently ignore. In such a situation, there is a risk that foreign policy can become the servant of defence policy which is not the natural order of policymaking."

BOMB TEST
. . . no more weapons research

His analysis of the problem has led Trudeau to the conclusion that if four measures, each discussed for years already, could be worked into a combination they would become a strategy of suffocation imposed on the arms race. The four ingredients of this approach would be a total ban on tests of nuclear explosives, an agreement to flight-test new delivery systems, prohibition of all new production of nuclear explosives for military purposes, and a limit and then progressive reduction of the money spent on strategic nuclear weapons systems. If the world agreed to this approach it would leave in being huge nuclear arsenals but it would inhibit the development of new ones.

"It is a realistic strategy," Trudeau said, "because it assumes that, for some time to come at least, total nuclear disarmament is probably unattainable in practice. . . . It has at least the potential of reducing the risks of conflict that are inherent in the technological momentum of strategic competition. The ultimate intent of a strategy of suffocation is to halt the arms race in the laboratory.

The Canadian analysis does not stop with nuclear weapons, noting that since 1945 there have been 133 wars, involving 80 countries and killing 25 million people. Again, the prime minister is intensely realistic, conceding that production of military equipment is attractive to industrial countries because it contributes to national security, reduces external payments, creates jobs and with space activity produces about 70 percent of all new technology.

"There is no particular moral merit in a country that is buying arms, not producing them. And if the main reason for not producing them is not to be involved in selling them, it will have no practical impact on the arms race because other suppliers will readily fill the gap. . . .

Deal with Insecurities

"The purchasing countries seek, as is their right, to ensure their own security. In many cases, they seek no more than to maintain law and order on their national soil. To curb their right to acquire arms by purchase, even to place qualitative restraints on them, would revive much of the acrimony of the North-South dialectic . . .

"The incentive to acquire arms is rooted in apprehensions of insecurity. The best way to allay such apprehensions is through collective regional arrangements. . . . It would be for regional decision-makers to devise incentives for restraint and sanctions for excess in the accumulation of conventional arsenals and in the build-up of conventional forces."

There is force to that argument. The Latin American states have, after all, succeeded in turning their continent into a nuclear-free zone and in persuading outside powers to respect that status.

NATO's contribution to the security of Western Europe is beyond argument and it is disturbing to contemplate the level of insecurity that would exist there if that regional alliance had not been forged in the early days of the cold war.

The level of armaments in the world will only stabilize and, perhaps one day years from now begin to decline, if the feelings of insecurity that haunt so many nations are dealt with first. But if the world is indeed entering a new phase it is not inconceivable that the constant expansion of arsenals may gradually be eliminated as a contribution to insecurity.

Keep Our Jobs

I write to thank you for your editorial comment on the problem of public service transfers away from the capital city area (A Classic Dilemma; Times; May 25.) In reply to my own recent initiative, you raised several questions to which I'd like to reply.

The economy of Victoria is essentially artificial. There are more than 22,000 public servants on the payroll here. 2,000 of these are municipal, 9,000 are federal and 11,000 are provincial.

Apart from the public service and tourism, there is little significant industry in the capital. A number of us worked hard to create the Greater Victoria Economic Development Commission, but it will take years to diversify our economic base to any major extent.

The major employer of our people is government. Period. The annual provincial payroll in the capital is conservatively valued at $200 million.

Only when the ferry rates were doubled did we realize the importance — and fragility — of our tourist economy. The impact of doubling the rates was not anticipated by the Bennett government, and the results were disastrous.

The impact of a new Forests Act transferring perhaps 800 public servants away from the capital would be equally disastrous. This time, at least, we should try to anticipate the impact.

I am arguing for a stable-state provincial payroll in the capital city. I am arguing that transfers are not objectionable, unless they result in a net loss of jobs in the capital.

I am proposing a policy that would guarantee job-for-job when major transfers are planned, and that would guarantee a stable economy in the capital city itself.

No one is proposing the massive creation of new jobs. We can't afford more bureaucrats, and we don't need more bureaucracy.

But government has flexibility. The B.C. Energy Commission, the leisure services branch and the liquor distribution branch — for example — are all located in Vancouver. They could as easily locate in Victoria.

The capital of our province was created out of political compromise in the 19th century, following union of the crown colonies of Vancouver's Island and British Columbia. Once a capital city has been so created, it must be maintained in a healthy and vigorous fashion.

To do this, we require a provincial policy that guarantees the level and payroll of public service employment in the capital city.

Anything less will betray the promise and the future of Greater Victoria, and that is just totally unacceptable. — Charles Barber, MLA, Victoria.

No Development

I am one of those 1,500 residents who signed the petition opposing any further development of North Saanich marina.

Bob Wright, spokesman for the developers, says "he is on the side of the angels", whoever they may be. Perhaps they are the unknown people who are behind this development. However, Mr. Wright is reported by a local newspaper as the owner, so let's deal with him.

He has put forward two options, neither of which I find acceptable for such a sensitive environmental area. Dredging would be done under both these options, probably using some of our tax dollars through the marina assistance commission for something many of us don't want in the first place.

Before further marina expansion can take place he needs water leases, why can't we just say "no more water leases" and that's that.

It is my understanding that when the Clarkes owned the marina, they were told that there would be no further expansion allowed, and I believe this was made clear to the new owners also. If so, why all the pressure?

If the marina was not a viable enterprise at the time of purchase, then I would say that somebody made a bad business deal. Mr. Wright tells us that three years' back taxes were owing when he bought in. However, just because some companies don't pay taxes for a few years, doesn't necessarily mean they are on the skids.

Either of the two options would be devastating to the present state of the area. Imagine, eight units to the acre. On 15 acres, that's 120 units, each requiring water and some kind of sewage disposal. Mr. Wright says the third option would be to subdivide some 22 of the 37 acres into half-acre lots. I'd like to know how and when he proposes to get 44 water connections without putting a major strain on the existing water availability. And I certainly cannot see this area passing a suitable soil percolation test; there is no sewer in the vicinity. Pehaps Mr. Wright is using a little scare tactic to force us into accepting one or other of his two options.

If you are interested in preserving this unique and beautiful area, I urge you to write to the advisory planning commission, municipal hall and the mayor and council of North Saanich before it's too late. — Mrs. G. Montgomery, 1860 Swartz Bay Road.

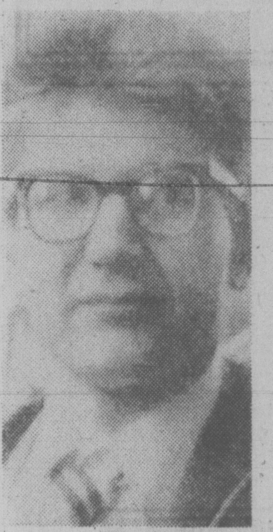
Siberia Still Dreaded As a Place of Exile

By DAVID K. SHIPLER

A lonely house in forest emptiness of Soviet Siberia

MOSCOW — For three centuries or more the vast, brooding wilderness of Siberia has held a terrifying fascination for Russians, both as a challenging frontier of great mineral wealth and as a dreaded place of exile. In a push to harness the resources, cities have been built on the permafrost. Pipelines, roads and railroad spurs intersect across the emptiness, and the riches are being released from the frozen land. But still the endless wastes of swamps and forests are dotted with tiny villages so remote and so backward that they are considered fitting only for those sentenced to exile.

Exile in Siberia. It seems like a phrase out of a history of czarist Russia yet it exists today for an untold number of common criminals and political dissidents, just as it did 100 years ago. Their prison is the village, their punishment the hardship of an ordinary villager's everyday life. For the most part they live and work as the local residents do, and although some find it difficult to admit, it can be an interesting experience.



AMALRIK
. . . two terms

In recent weeks several dissidents have returned from exile, and their stories, combined with others of some years ago, provide a mosaic of images and impressions —of offical cruelty and compassion, of peasant stoicism and wariness, of fear and cold, of pain and the tranquility of solitude.

For Iosif Begun, an electrical engineer, the worst of it was the 5,000-mile trip last summer from Moscow into the depths of Siberia, a grueling 68-day journey in which prisoners were jammed like cattle into the cubicles of special railroad cars, then herded off into local prisons along the way. Begun was placed for a few days at a time in nine different prisons across the country. "It was a frightening thing," he said, "completely inhuman."

A Jewish activist who sought emigration to Israel, he was seized when he tried to enter the United States Embassy in Moscow to deliver a statement of protest. He was convicted of "parasitism," a convenient catch-all aimed at vagrants but now applied with increasing frequency to Jews who lose their jobs after requesting exit visas. After his trial, according to his account, Begun was put into a small train compartment meant for four passengers but specially outfitted with two extra bunks to hold six. In fact, 25 prisoners were crammed into the space so that it was impossible to lie down. The single window was barred and shuttered, and the door was locked.

During the three-to-four-day legs of the journey, nobody was permitted to leave the cubicles except once each morning, when inmates were taken to a toilet at the end of the car. Food rations consisted of half a loaf of black bread a day, plus a cup of water and one or two small pieces of spoiled salted herring that the prisoners were afraid to eat, knowing that it would give them a fierce thirst and that no additional water would be provided.

"People lost their strength and became weak and completely helpless," Begun said. The hardened criminals preyed on the weaker and the younger, stealing what few possessions they had, especially clothing. At the prisons, 100 inmates were jammed into cells built for 20, and in the constant dampness, lice and other insects thrived.

Walk in chains

Historically, the trip into exile has been a most difficult phase of a prisoner's experience, often worse than prison or exile itself. In the 17th century, when the czars exiled relatives of merchants who had left the country illegally, later, when landlords could have serfs exiled by turning them over to the authorities, and through most of the 1800's, when waves of persons were exiled for common or political crimes, large parts of the journey were often made on foot, sometimes in chains. After the Trans-Siberian Railroad was built around the turn of the century, exiles were sent by train. Lenin was one of them. Sentenced in 1897 to three years, he managed through connections to gain permission to choose his place of exile. He selected a village in a relatively mild southern region where he befriended the local policeman, who let him maintain communications and continue his political work uninterrupted.

Today the practice is a mixture of soft and hard. Some exiles are allowed to go by themselves, others are taken separately under guard, making the trip easier than in the prison cars. But those sent directly from prison with masses of other detainees usually face special hardships in the first short time after arriving at their destinations. They have nothing but their prison clothes, rarely warm enough for the 60-to-70 below cold of Siberian winters. They have little money for a meal or an overcoat. They are stripped of all papers, so they must carry friends' and family's addresses in their heads. They usually do not even know until the journey has begun for which village they are bound. Nor are their relatives told, so there is no way to wire money or mail clothing until the prisoner himself reaches his destination and gets through by phone or telegram.

Some exiles have told of literally begging for bread and of camping in hotel entranceways until local authorities provided housing. Begun was lucky. When he arrived in Burkandia, a settlement of 3,000 people who work in a gold mine, he was immediately assigned to a men's dormitory, a considerably more comfortable place than many exiles find. It was a two-storey brick building with central heating and cold running water. He managed to call his wife Alla, who wired him money in a few hours.

He was given work repairing electrical mining equipment, for which he earned $230 a month, the lowest wage possible in that job. When he offered to set up an after-school technical and hobby program for youngsters, he was turned down by Communist Party officials who wanted to keep him out of the school. Even when he agreed to repair the school's only tape recorder, broken for two years, he was not allowed to do so in the building; it was brought to him.

Residents wary

Begun and others found most local residents curious and wary, afraid to be seen with exiles, but sometimes strangely hospitable. Begun made friends only with a few people who were latent dissidents themselves, people who were anxious for him to convey appeals on various matters to the authorities when he returned to Moscow.

Andrei Tverdokhlebov, the former secretary of the Moscow chapter of Amnesty International, said recently that many in his village of Nyurbachan, a state farm producing meat and dairy products, were a bit puzzled and hurt that their home town should be used as a prison of sorts. "They said, 'why is our life, which we live all the time, considered a punishment?' " he remarked. He spent nearly two years there, shovelling coal into a heating plant's furnace, but living in a wooden dormitory heated only by a wooden stove. It was so cold inside that anything left on the floor would freeze, and frost formed on the inside of the walls. There was no indoor plumbing, and the wells froze, so water had to be trucked from 12 miles away in wintertime.

Malva Landa, a member of the Moscow dissident group monitoring Soviet observance of the Helsinki accords, said that most people in Vershino-Shakhtama, the village where she was exiled from July 1977 until last month, seemed to think she was a spy. When she tried to explain her struggle for the right to read and write books freely, they thought she had been speculating in books on the black market, a lucrative business in much of the Soviet Union. There was little communication.

Pavel Litvinov, the grandson of Maxim Litvinov, Stalin's foreign minister, had a slightly different experience when he was exiled to Siberia after he and several others demonstrated in Red Square to protest the 1968 Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia. When he arrived with his family, he said, some villagers looked upon him as a guest, a Moscow intellectual with a famous name to whom hospitality must be extended. He remembers a storekeeper putting aside flour, which was in short supply, to sell to him and his wife while other customers went without. Even Communist Party members used to come to his house — usually after dark and on somebody else's motorcycle — for vodka and conversation. Residents became more circumspect later after warnings from the secret police. Litvinov, a physics teacher who now lives in Tarrytown, N.Y., is one of those who found exile interesting, for he had not had much chance before to know ordinary working people.

Another who gained similar insights into his own country was Andrei Amalrik, the dissident writer who spent two terms in Siberia and wrote a penetrating, witty account of his first exile in his book Involuntary Journey to Siberia. Before Amalrik was forced by the authorities to emigrate to the United States two years ago, a visit to his shabby room in a Moscow communal apartment usually entailed a look at a photo album filled with snapshots of him and his smiling wife, Gyuzel, in their Siberian exile. His winter footwear was a snappy pair of reindeer-hide boots purchased during his second term. He now lives in Washington, D.C.

• Some stay on

Adam Oelschlager, a young German who visited Muscovy and Tartary from 1633 to 1636, wrote In The Travels of Olearius that each exile then was provided "with a tolerable livelihood, in keeping with his personal condition and worth. Magnates are given money, scribes positions in the chancelleries of Siberian cities; soldiers are given places as soldiers, which yield an annual salary and a decent living. There have been instances in which such disgrace worked a great advantage, namely when the exiles' professions or trades were more fruitfully pursued [in Siberia] than in Moscow; some prospered so well that, if they had their wives and children with them, they did not wish to return to Moscow even when released."

According to Miss Landa, some exiles today decide to stay on, although those who are educated are seldom given work consistent with their skills. Tverdokhlebov, a physicist, was offered a middle-management position after his term at an institute near his place of exile in Yakutia, but did not want to stay.

Downfall of Swedish Sheep Farmer

By BERNARD NOSSITER
The Washington Post

STOCKHOLM — For Thorbjorn Falldin, the moralistic sheep farmer whose election victory ended 44 years of Social Democratic rule here, the merry month of May has been like a nightmare from an Ingmar Bergman film.

"I have asked myself whether it was worth this price to be in the public spotlight," Prime Minister Falldin told a startled nation earlier this month. "I am working on the question of how much my family and I should be prepared to sacrifice for the exposed position of a prime minister."

Falldin, 52, who quotes the Bible as readily as the price of grain, had just lost a libel suit against a crude newspaper satire. The article in Aftonbladet — for which its editors apologized — had predicted that Falldin would end his days in a lunatic asylum, the degenerate product of rural inbreeding.

A few days later, Falldin's personal agony reached a new depth. He was compelled to tell Parliament, that, yes, a former chief of the national police had drawn up a list of prominent persons who had allegedly patronized an expensive ring of call girls.

"I could directly see that it was a lie," the slow-speaking Falldin said gravely. "I could at once state that it was a lie because I found my own name among the listed customers."

Few in Sweden doubted him. Falldin was swamped with sympathetic offerings of flowers. Indignant letters over the vilification of the premier and the pain suffered by his wife and three children poured into the newspapers.

Last week the mini-crisis ended.

"My family and I have come to the conclusion that it is possible to live with the tensions of a prime minister's work," Falldin said.

"I will continue with the job and fight for the things I believe in."

If this act in a Scandinavian drama is over, however, it is now clear that Swedish politics will never be the same. The Swedes, far more puritanical than popular imagery of a permissive society suggests, have prided themselves on participating in a politics of issues, of rationality. Swedes like to think they are concerned exclusively with great moral abstractions: the politics of justice, equality and decency. Parties are supposed to stand for clear positions, and personalities are the products of cruder politics, like those in the United States.

Yet with his Checkers-type speeches and his appeal for sympathy, the upright farmer from Ramvik has changed all this. The politics of personality has now been firmly planted in the pleasant Swedish political landscape.

"That's tedious," snaps Olof Palme, the brilliant Social Democrat whom Falldin ousted a year and a half ago. A cool and skilled debater, Palme insists that Falldin's performance is an episode and politics here will still focus on traditional class and economic lines. That, after all, is where Palme excels.

Many of the strongest figures in his own party, however, to say nothing of the coalition that Falldin leads, disagree. They think Falldin has instinctively stumbled into a style with great popular appeal.

Gunnar Myrdal, Sweden's Nobel Prize winning economist and lifetime Social Democrat, says of Falldin: "I understand him. Like me, he is a man from the country who has done something with his life."

FALLDIN
. . . agonies in May

Myrdal deplores the fact that Sweden's Freedom of Information Act does "nothing to protect" a politician from the most outrageous abuse by reckless journalists.

Even Tage Erlander, Palme's predecessor as a Social Democratic premier, sympathized over the radio.

"I know how it can hit you," he said. "I was accused of being an alcoholic."

Khell Olof Feldt, the party's bright economic spokesman, readily acknowledged that Swedish politics has become more personal. The Social Democrats are big on local party meetings but now they don't want to hear just anybody. They only want the glamorous figures they have seen on television — Palme, Feldt and Pirgotta Dahl, the party's attractive, 35-year-old energy expert. Feldt says:

"Falldin's biggest asset is his personality, his honesty, his conviction. He has shown he is a human being with weaknesses and not an unreal man of steel. He has consolidated his position."

Unsurprisingly, Falldin's political partners in the "bourgeois" coalition now ruling here mostly agree, although some are bitter about it.

"Falldin has exploited his family, his background, his image of an honest man taking care of the country," says one key ally who asked that his name not be used.

The Unmagic Numbers

By RICHARD NEEDHAM
The Globe and Mail

"The law forbids you to kill a woman, but it cannot prevent you from reflecting that every seven days, she becomes a week older." That's what Balzac said some 120 years ago, and he's as right now as he was then. Women dislike growing old, or perhaps I should say, dislike appearing old; look at the immense sums they spend in the effort to make themselves seem just a little bit younger than they really are.

This brings me around to Polly Pothooks, who at one time might or might not have been a secretary in downtown Toronto. She was single, personable, unattached and, above all, just a year away from being 40 — the Big Four-Oh which many women find such a traumatic experience. Polly sometimes thought to herself, "I have but 12 months to go, and then the hour will strike for me as it did for Cinderella, Faustus and many other unfortunates. I'll go to bed at night an attractive brunette. When I get up the next morning, what hair I have on my head will be white, my teeth will have fallen out, my divine person will be grotesquely frail or grotesquely obese, I'll need glasses as thick as binoculars, and will go around in tennis shoes instead of Guccis."

Sometimes she thought, "I don't have to be 40. I will kill myself before it happens by sticking my head in the microwave oven, or by watching TV beer commercials, or by drinking three cups of Newfoundland coffee in rapid succession. But no, I'm a coward, I should use this last year I have left to live it up, preferably with a fellow who is slightly more civilized than the New Guinea mudmen, slightly better spoken than an Australian stevedore, who has slightly more manners than Attila the Hun, and makes slightly more money than the Ontario minimum wage."

One afternoon, Polly was sitting on a bench in the Civic Square when a man of perhaps 50 very courteously asked her for a light, chatted with her about the weather, introduced himself as Boris Goodenough, and then asked if she would care to have lunch with him at Simpson's Arcadian Court. When she told him she was interested in horoscopes, he was delighted. "So am I; now tell me, when were you born?" Polly thought, "Oh my God, here it comes, I'll have to tell him I'm 39;" but he saved the situation by adding, "I don't mean the year, of course; it's most impolite to ask any woman her age even when, like yourself, she's obviously under 30. No, I just mean the date," to which she replied, "August 26; I'm a Virgo uh, er, in the zodiacal sense, that is." Boris brought his fist down on the table, "That calls for another drink; I too was born on August 26."

The two got along; so happily indeed, that Polly didn't notice the days, weeks and months racing past. But August 25 arrived, and she was confronted with reality; the very next day she'd be 40. "A sign, a sign," she thought, "that's what I need," so she turned on the radio and heard the announcer say, "Today we're honored to have Richard Burton in the studio. We'd hoped he would tell our listeners what Liz Taylor's like in the sack, but no, he insists on reading from Shakespeare's sonnets," after which the noble voice boomed out, "When forty winters shall besiege thy brow, and dig deep trenches in thy beauty's field, thy youth's proud livery so gazed on now will be a tattered weed, of small worth held . . ."

Polly screamed, switched the set off, got drunk out of her mind, and went to bed. The next morning she woke up, hobbled to the bathroom, and saw exactly what she had dreaded to see — white hair, sunken eyes and cheeks, withered bosom, the whole bit. She put on an ill-fitting black dress, tied a shawl over her head, and went to the Seedier Citizens Social Centre where they issued her with a cane, a hearing aid, a magnifying glass, a string bag, an album of Lawrence Welk records, a pair of knitting needles, a full set of dentures, a gallon jug of Geritol and a pass allowing her a 10 per cent discount on the CNE roller-coaster.

Polly proceeded to the Civic Square, where she sat among a group of other oldsters, one of whom had clearly not long to go. He sat in a wheelchair with a heavy blanket around him, his hands trembling and his chin sunk on his chest. Trying to cheer him up, Polly said, "It's a nice day." He feebly replied, "So it should be, it's my birthday, the 65th to be exact. But how strange it all is; yesterday I was hale and hearty and jogging and playing tennis and running a big industrial plant. Today I am a Seedier Citizen, who's no good for anything except to sit around staring vacantly into space." Polly looked at the old man sharply, "Would your name, perchance, be Boris Goodenough?" He said, "Yes; but who are you and how do you know?" Polly didn't answer, but stole silently away to get him a nice cup of warm milk.

BCR 'Politics' Cost $4M- NDP

Opposition leader Dave Barrett said Monday Premier Bennett's "politicking" on the future of the B.C. Rail link to Fort Nelson cost taxpayers $4 million.

BCR directors testified at the royal commission studying the railroad that if a decision was not made to upgrade the 400-kilometre link before March 1, the delay in placing contracts would add a further $4 million to the $35 million project, Barrett said.

Barrett says Bennett knew, as everyone else did from the beginning, the line had to be kept open.

Bennett received an interim report from the royal commission in late December recommending the line be closed.

Barrett raised the issue in the legislature Monday when he asked Economic Development Minister Don Phillips if he was aware BCR officials had given that testimony.

Phillips replied that at the Friday meeting of the BCR board of directors he was assured the upgrading could proceed according to schedule within the originally estimated cost.

Outside the house, Barrett said Phillips is out of touch with the operation of the railway. There is no way the upgrading can be completed without inflation adding $4 million to the project, he added.

It is clear the premier has no intention of abiding by any of the royal commission's recommendations, he said, adding that the commission is a waste of taxpayers' money.

Barrett also predicted a decison to continue with the suspended Dease Lake extension will cost taxpayers $77 million.

RENE MEETS HIS MATCH

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Rene Levesque has faced many formidable opponents, but he seemed to meet his match Monday — and it had nothing to do with politics.

About 1,500 10-to-12-year-old Montreal schoolchildren were waiting for Levesque when he arrived at Place d'Armes in Old Montreal — and they all wanted his autograph.

Levesque had planned to speak to the children before they started on a walking tour of the old city and to accompany them part of the way.

But he hadn't counted on them cheering, shoving and all but falling over each other in efforts to get close enough for him to sign their schoolbooks or scraps of paper.

"Fini, fini, fini," he pleaded several times, shaking his head as he and three assistants tried to push their way through the unyielding, flag-waving children.

Finally, Levesque and his entourage managed one last push, got free of the crowd, leaped into the premier's car and drove off.

He told reporters later he was pleased with the reception.

'A Choice of Two Evils. . .'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The provincial government's decision to keep open the Fort Nelson extension of the British Columbia Railway line was a choice between two evils, according to Justice Lloyd McKenzie, chairman of the royal commission which recommended the line be closed.

"We are not making a choice between good and evil," Justice McKenzie said. "We had to choose between two evils.

"One evil is to keep it open at enormous costs. And the other evil is to shut it down with all the consequences that that brings."

Although the commission recommended, after examining all aspects of the BCR, that the line should be closed, the final decision had to be a political one and the cabinet has made it, McKenzie said.

The B.C. Supreme Court justice said he was not surprised that some people were hostile to the commission after its recommendation that the line should be closed.

The 400-kilometre extension of BCR from Fort St. John to Fort Nelson became operational in 1971 after being built over three years at a cost of $47 million.

JORDAN BURNS MAYOR'S TOAST

Pat Jordan (SC—North Okanagan) Monday criticized the drink preferences of Mayor Andrew Schuck of Fort Nelson.

Mrs. Jordan told the legislature that Schuck, a former New Democratic Party candidate, opened a bottle of imported sherry instead of B.C. wine to celebrate the announcement that the B.C. Railway's Fort Nelson extension would not be shut down.

In presenting a bottle of B.C. wine to Speaker Harvey Schroeder to forward to Mayor Schuck, she said the wine industry in her riding is providing jobs and income allowing the government to provide a subsidy to keep the extension open.

Schroeder said he would complete his assignment with dispatch.

Probers Demand RCMP Documents

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCMP was told Monday to bring documentary evidence before a royal commission of cases in which investigation of criminal acts was allegedly impeded by the Income Tax Act.

Inspector Douglas Crerar, officer-in-charge of the RCMP commercial crime branch, had testified that he was told by field investigators that evidence of other crimes sometimes had turned up during tax investigations but restrictions of the act prevented police from going into them.

"Do you know what you are talking about?" Guy Gilbert of Montreal, one of the three royal commissioners, asked Crerar. "You are giving us a veiled answer."

When he asked Crerar whether there had been cases in which investigators breached the Income Tax Act to get evidence, RCMP lawyer Richard Mongeau objected, saying Crerar was being asked to give a legal opinion. Mongeau said he was not aware of any breaches.

Gilbert's questions focused on a secret 1972 agreement with the revenue department that enabled the RCMP to get confidential income tax files in tax investigations aimed at organized crime.

Under the agreement, designated RCMP officers became "authorized persons" under the Income Tax Act to get around a restriction in Section 241 aimed at keeping tax files out of the hands of anyone but authorized revenue department investigators.

Gilbert asked whether the RCMP were needed as "authorized persons" for such investigations.

Mr. Justice David McDonald, commission chairman, asked Crerar to give a reply in "dollar terms." Crerar repeated testimony of last week that RCMP investigations since the 1972 agreement had meant $25 million in money the revenue department otherwise would not have recovered. Much of it came from levies against drug traffickers who had not filed income tax returns.

Gilbert asked whether it had ever occurred to the RCMP that such money should be seized rather than taxed. There appeared to be a conflict of interest in having a government agency tax money raised from criminal action. McDonald asked whether government is "living off the avails" of crime.

Crerar said taxing criminals discourages them.

"Then why not take 100 per cent?" McDonald asked.

"I agree," said Crerar

Senior Witnesses Delayed Until Fall

OTTAWA (CP) — A royal commission into RCMP wrongdoing announced Monday it will not be hearing politicians and senior RCMP and government officials until autumn.

The revised schedule was released by the chief commission counsel, John F. Howard. Originally the commission had planned to hear senior witnesses in July.

Under the new schedule they will begin to take the witness stand Sept. 11 in seven weeks of hearings that will focus upon opening of first-class mail in violation of the Post Office Act; a secret 1972 agreement giving the RCMP access to personal income tax files , whose legality is being questioned; a 1973 break-in by RCMP to take confidential Parti Quebecois membership lists; and a series of other RCMP acts ranging from arson to break-ins without warrant.

Chemicals Listed

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government is compiling lists of chemicals known to be or suspected of being a threat to human health, the environment and health departments have announced.

The chemicals will be placed on priority or candidate lists.

Priority-list chemicals will be those for which regulations are being drawn up or investigations have begun to determine if they are health hazards and what action is needed.

Candidate-list chemicals are those which may warrant investigation after more information is collected.

Preacher Billy Seeking 'Votes'

TORONTO (CP) — Rev. Elwyn Carter, a crusade director for evangelist Billy Graham, and two other full-time members of the Graham organization set up a 3,600-square-foot office here last August that looks like an election headquarters.

This week, a huge sign displayed in the windows of the office — "We're winning" — refers to the campaign committee's work with local laymen and ministers preparing for Graham's eight-day crusade starting June 11.

Cutler, 53, said the purpose of the crusade is to ignite a wave of evangelical fervor in the city and to keep it alive after Graham leaves.

The 90 Billy Graham billboards around the city, the hundreds of signs on buses and newspaper, radio and television advertising "are only attention getters," he said.

Rev. Desmond Hunt, an Anglican priest and leader of an inter-denominational committee that persuaded Graham to come to Toronto, said Cutler and his team provided a campaign that worked with local people so smoothly "that I can say we have not had one shadow fall on this enterprise."

OBSOLETE TANKS SOLD TO SWISS

OTTAWA (CP) - Switzerland has bought 15 obsolete Centurion tanks from Canada for its defence for an undisclosed sum, a spokesman for the government's Crown Assets Disposal Corp. said today.

J.A. Doleman, corporation sales director said Switzerland was required to sign an "end-usage certificate" meaning the country can use them only for self defence and cannot re-sell them without permission of the corporation. Regulations for sale of that type of equipment were very tight.

Doleman said he did not want to say what the tanks cost because it might jeopardize any possible further sales.

Canada is buying Leopard tanks from West Germany to replace the Centurions.

An armed forces spokesman said most Centurions were sold to Crown Assets, some were kept as targets and some set aside for military museums.

Important notice to train travellers.

Please note that the current railway transcontinental passenger schedules which were due to change on June 1 will remain in effect until further notice.

Connecting services between Toronto and Northern Ontario, and between Montreal and Ottawa, will remain as they are. Changes shown as taking place on June 1 in current timetables will be implemented at a later date to be announced.

Passengers intending to travel on any of these trains after June 1 should check with VIA or CP Rail for confirmation of departure times.

Advance bookings are very heavy for summer train travel. May we suggest that you make your reservations as soon as possible to ensure a pleasant vacation by train.

Pyramid Tourist Mecca Vetoed

LONDON (CP) — President Anwar Sadat has shattered the dream of two Canadian businessmen who launched a huge tourist construction program at the foot of the pyramids outside Cairo.

Confronted by fierce opposition in the Egyptian parliament and among archeologists, Sadat cancelled the $500-million project, raising questions among South Pacific Properties Ltd. officials on the amount of investment capital they may be able to retrieve from the Egyptian government.

Estimated to cost about $500 million over a 20-year period, the project would have provided a new mecca for tourists, including a big golf course, villas, apartments, hotels and nightclubs and shops near the Giza pyramids.

An initial contract was signed in 1974 with the Egyptian government tourist agency forming a joint venture company in which South Pacific, with $3.4 million investment capital, held 60 per cent of the shares while the Egyptian government held 40 per cent. The government contributed about 10,000 acres for a period of 99 years, a move which aroused a storm of protest in the Egyptian press and in the Egyptian parliament.

An economics professor, Ahmad Gamee, called the deal the biggest swindle ever perpetrated in Egypt. Anthropology professor Neemat Guad, leader of the campaign against the scheme, compared it with foreign occupation of the Suez canal.

Archeologists protested that the site would be destroyed for historical excavations and that the moood and surroundings of some of the world's oldest monuments would be changed drastically.

Work was already under way on road construction, excavations and an underground reservoir when Sadat received the final report of a parliamentary committee and cancelled the project.

Noose Wins Support

REGINA (CP) — Interviews with 40 nominated federal candidates, including sitting MPs who intend to run in Saskatchewan in the next general election, indicate that more than 50 per cent would like to see reinstatement of capital punishment.

Twenty-three of the 40 MPs and candidates interviewed said they would like to see capital punishment brought back. Thirteen identified themselves as abolitionists and the remaining four gave qualified answers.

Nine of the 13 Liberals interviewed favored the death penalty, two were opposed and two gave qualified answers.

Of the 13 Progressive Conservatives interviewed, 12 wanted capital punishment reinstated and one is an abolitionist.

Ten of 14 New Democrats oppose capital punishment, two wanted it reinstated and two gave qualified answers.

Dredging Boss Admits Bid Fix

TORONTO (CP) — The former vice-president and general manager of Canadian Dredge and Dock Co. Ltd. testified Monday that he was involved in bid fixing during his 27-year career with the company.

Robert Schneider was the second witness called in the trial of 11 men and nine companies charged with defrauding public agencies of more than $4 million by rigging dredging bids.

The trial resumed Monday in Ontario Supreme Court following a month-long recess.

Schneider said that in 1959, the company was involved in an agreement with two other companies to bid $150,000 over the competitive bid. Both other companies would then be paid $75,000.

Schneider said he was aware of isolated incidents involving bid fixing as early as 1956.

Top Treu Judge Rakes Comments by Tory MP

Economic Policies 'Reign of Error'

OTTAWA (CP) — Attacking the federal record in handling the economy brought out the punster in Donald Munro (PC—Esquimalt-Saanich) Monday night.

"Error heaped on error heaped on error: that is the record of this government," he told the Commons during debate on a bill to implement the measures included in the April 10 federal budget.

"How much longer are we to endure this reign of error?" Munro asked straight-faced.

Split Budget Tory Urges

OTTAWA (CP) — Debate on budget legislation moved into its third week Monday as the prolonged battle between Quebec and the federal government over sales tax cuts continued to push other budget measures aside.

Almost forgotten are such programs as increased incentives for oil exploration, improved tax write-offs to encourage companies to spend more on research and measures to persuade the railways to replace their deteriorating equipment.

Walter Baker, Progressive Conservative House leader, said in an interview his party is prepared to recommend that the government split the legislation with one bill containing only the sales tax cuts provisions and the other containing the less controversial budget measures.

Baker said the move would permit smooth passage of the non-controversial measures in the budget. While the Commons dealt with this, the government would have time to start a new round of negotiations with Quebec on the sales tax.

But a spokesman for Finiance Minister Jean Chretien said the minister has neither considered the option, nor is he likely to do so.

"If we split every bill in two when there was opposition to one part, there would be a hell of a lot of bills we'd be splitting," he said.

Ed Broadbent, New democratic leader, seemed equally unenthusiastic about the idea.

Broadbent said his party is unhappy with the entire budget. If the government decided to split the bill, the NDP would vote against both sections.

MONTREAL (CP) — Acting Chief Sessions Court Judge Yves Mayrand said Monday he "cannot tolerate" criticism of the trial of Alexander Peter Treu made in the Commons last week by Alberta MP Gerald Baldwin.

Treu, 56, was convicted by a sessions court judge and sentenced to two years in prison May 4 on two counts of violating the Official Secrets Act. The conviction, which followed a trial held behind closed doors, has been appealed.

Baldwin (PC—Peace River), who has called for a Commons inquiry into the in-camera trial, said it put Canada "back in the days of the Star Chamber and King Charles 1."

He also complained that "even the judgment is secret "because it refers to trial proceedings."

In a written statement, Judge Mayrand said that "in the name of respect of the independence of the judiciary, we cannot tolerate the remarks of Gerald Baldwin."

"We advise him respectfully to be satisfied with doing his work, namely the improvement of the Official Secrets Act if it appears unjust and abusive."

He added that Baldwin should not set himself up as a court of appeal, "all the more so because he is in complete ignorance of the facts placed before the court and with the consent of the lawyers for both the defence and the prosecution that the trial should be held in camera."

And Judge Mayrand deplored the use of parliamentary immunity by members of the Commons to question and criticize the manner in which Judge Luc Trudel handled the Treu trial.

A judge should not be blamed for applying the Official Secrets Act, Mayrand said, adding "this law places the judge in a real dilemma."

Treu, a former designer of NATO air defence systems, was convicted in connection with the handling of classified documents.

MALARIA WARNING

OTTAWA (FP) — Malaria is on the increase and Canadian travelling abroad are urged by the federal health authorities to take precautions aginst the disease.

During 1977 there were 100 cases in Canada brought into this country by Canadians whm had travelled abroad. In 1976 the total was 91 and in 1975 it was 52.

A spokesman for the disease control division of the health department said the eradication of malaria is not proceeding as fast as authorities at one time had hoped.

Violence Prospering, McClellan Warns

EDMONTON (CP) — The right of society to be protected from society's enemies is being neglected in Canada, George B. McClellan, a former commissioner of the RCMP and Alberta's first ombudsman, said Monday.

When that right is neglected, McClellan told the U of A's spring convocation, "no one is safe . . . on the street . . . in his home . . . or at his place of business or recreation."

McClellan said violence is prospering "as at no other time in history" and Canadians no longer feel secure.

McClellan said he has looked on the face of violence for many years.

"I know its every seam and wart. It is an ugly face. It draws its sustenance and strength from the sicknesses of society, callousness toward our fellow man, lack of self-discipline and the loss of a sense of responsibility for the community."

The sickening thing about violence, McClellan said, is that so much of it is senseless and has no purpose that can be discerned.

McClellan said he has no answers.

"I pass the questions on to you. They are going to be your problem, and yours to solve, for if you cannot walk the streets in reasonable safety you cannot build a future.

"You do have a future to build . . . for you . . . for your families and for your country . . . if you can keep it together."

Tory, NDPer Join Up To Push Pension Claim

OTTAWA (CP) — New Democrat Stanley Knowles and Progressive Conservative James McGrath called on the government Monday to increase pensions for what they said is a large number of elderly people are living in poverty.

Knowles (Winnipeg North Centre), a long-time campaigner for improved pensions, said the government must recognize that "most senior citizens live on the pensions they receive, not on other income which the government thinks they may have."

McGrath (St. John's East), Conservative critic on social policy, cited a survey by Statistics Canada which showed 61.7 per cent of unmarried pensioners were living below the poverty line in 1976.

Welfare Minister Monique Begin told the Commons everyone is concerned about improving social program,s "but we are not ready to do so in actual economic constraints."

She estimated $630 million would have to be cut from other programs in her department to provide an income supplementation program for the needy aged 60 to 65.

"Nobody will want to do that," she said.

"I could tell her there are places, especially in some other departments, where cuts would be highly desirable," Knowles responded.

He suggested money could be taken from the defence budget. "Abolish the Senate," another New Democrat proposed.

A recent study by the Toronto Social Planning Council showed elderly people were living in poverty and widows and single women were particularly hard hit, McGrath said.

Red Replacement

OTTAWA (CP) — The external affairs department has so far accepted two replacements for the 11 Soviet diplomats expelled from Canada in February, a department spokesman said today.

Sergei Kruglov, 45, arrived recently to revive the Soviet embassy's consular section. The department has issued a visa to a second diplomat who has not yet arrived. His name has been withheld until his arrival.

Parents Fighting Closures

Parents dissatisfied with Greater Victoria school board policies are banding together to fight school closures planned for September.

The Tolmie Home and School Association Monday decided to help organize a confederation of parents associations from other schools in the district.

This new group would oppose many school board policies, including a decision to close several elementary schools this year due to declining enrolment.

A letter sent to all schools in the district by the Tolmie association says the confederation would be a forum for discussing problems faced by schools and seeking solutions.

Tolmie is one of the schools closing in June and parents are considering an injunction against the Greater Victoria school board.

At a meeting Monday, the association criticized the board for lack of long-range planning, the transfer of large numbers of principals around the district, and its failure to include parents and teachers in the decision-making process.

The association wants parents' groups from all schools, including high schools, to join the confederation.

Organizers hope to make the confederation politically active, sponsoring all-candidates meetings in the fall and closely watching trustees' performances.

Confinement Humane: McClelland Defends Act

Suspected drug-users may be taken to one of the five centres and held for up to 72 hours.

Within 60 of those 72 hours, he or she must be given a medical examination and be evaluated by the special panel.

If the panel unanimously decides the suspect is an addict, it commits him or her to a three-year program.

Even if the addict is not sent to Brannan Lake, the program is for three years. Failure to stick to any part of the treatment is an offence punishable under the Summary Conviction Act (up to $1,000 fine and two years in jail).

The treatment can include out-patient care at one of the five clinics to be set up in the same five regions.

There will also be follow-up supervisory care within the three-year time limit.

There will be two therapeutic clinics — probably in Vancouver and the Interior.

McClelland said further details on the types of treatment will come out as the bill is debated in the legislature.

Methadone will not be one of the options, he said, although those having success with methadone will be allowed to continue.

The minister hedged on questions on the "cold-turkey" method of withdrawal.

The phrase conjures up the spectre of addicts thrashing around on the floor, but the minister said such severe addiction seldom occurs today with heroin diluted to four or five per cent.

Patients will be required to withdraw, McClelland said. Some will quit cold turkey. Others will be given medical help if they need it. He hinted drugs could be part of the help.

Regional directors develop an individual's program. Such programs may include six months at Brannan Lake, regular attendance at a clinic for up to 12 months and follow-up supervision to make up the three years.

There will also be a board of review established containing at least one medical practitioner. The review board will have the power to extend an individual's treatment in Brannan Lake beyond six months or treatment at a clinic beyond 12 months.

McClelland said such cases will be rare and will still have to operate within the three-year period. He admitted it is conceivable, although not likely, an addict could spend all three years at Brannan Lake.

A person is free after three years unless he is picked up as a user again.

Those committed to the program have the right to appeal, but the onus of the appeal is on the user to establish he is not in need of treatment.

Other members on the review board and evaluation panels will include social workers and education counsellors, the minister said.

The act uses the World Health Organization definition of heroin, which includes other opium derivatives, methadone or any other substances with morphine-like properties.

McClelland said the act is aimed at heroin users, and even if some people suggest marijuana is a morphine-like substance, users will not be referred to the program.

Any person commits an offence if he resists, evades, or escapes the detention authorized by the act.

Those committed to the program have the right to see a copy of the report and any of the recommendations made by the evaluation panel.

Heroin Bill 'Very Scary'

chance of passing a court test on its constitutionality.

Stephens, a lawyer, said he expects and hopes for a quick test in the court before too much of the $14 million needed to set up the program is wasted.

He says that addicts who are given 24 hours notice to appear before an evaluation panel will instead run to Montreal or Toronto.

"B.C.'s number one export to her sister provinces in the coming year will be drug addicts."

If the bill eventually does stand the test of the courts, Stephens says he expects other provinces will have to pass similar legislation just to stem the flow of B.C. addicts.

The Tory leader said the legislation represents a refusal by the Socred government to be responsible Canadians.

"I know drug addicts. I've had a lot of experience working with them as a criminal lawyer and they won't sit around and wait to receive this treatment."

Dennis Cocke, health minister in the previous New Democratic Party government, said he stands by his earlier statements that the program is "probably the biggest piece of fraud perpetrated on the people of B.C. in a long time."

He said the government is "building a rat hole in which to pour $14 million."

In Vancouver, a spokesman for the B.C. Bar Association's criminal justice subdivision said the legislation gives no recognition of the right to due process of law.

Warren Standerwick said the legislation contains the objectionable features of punishment without crime, arrest without warrant and confinement without trial.

Bill Clark of the Citizens' Committee on Human Rights said the program has been tried in other areas around the world and it has been a total failure.

"Why we are suddenly led to believe without any justification whatever that this program is going to work here, I don't understand at all," he said.

TOWN TALK

Nothing like being good hosts.

The $600,000 Windward Passage came up from Portland to compete in the Swiftsure, but only a handful of people were on hand Sunday morning to welcome her as the first yacht across the finish line.

Among those who missed the event were CBC cameraman Ron Thompson and Channel 6 camerman Al Walton. Both were puttering around their respective kitchens listening to CFAX radio telling them not to expect the first finishers before noon.

Suddenly an excited announcer broke through with the news that a yacht was nearing the finish. Moments later (at 8:16 a.m.) he confirmed the Windward Passage was home.

One wonders how on a bright sunny morning all those diligent CFAX newshounds could have missed a 70-footer bearing down on the Inner Harbor under full spinnaker.

Sports director Ken Dobson said she caught everyone by surprise. No one at the Royal Victoria Yacht Club expected her for at least another three hours, he said.

During a Victoria council meeting Thursday night Ald. Robin Blencoe rose to congratulate the mayor and aldermen for voting to give a small grant to the Canadian Outward Bound Mountain School.

Blencoe, who used to be a justice development officer, said "I just wanted to say publicly what a tremendous organization this is. I've had experience with sending them kids who've been in trouble with the law and they've come back incredibly changed."

"We should send you there, then," piped up Ald. Bill McElroy.

What would happen if we tried using trading stamps? Would anyone notice?

A Canada-wide schools essay competition, on the theme "What Canada means to me," has produced some interesting observations on Canada and Canadians from the 20,000 students who submitted entries.

A Grade 6 student from New Brunswick listed several Canadian tourist areas worth visiting, including "Niagara Falls, Jasper Park, Ann of Green Gables, Building of Confederation and Disney Land."

And from the same province, a Grade 5 student began her essay, "I'll bet you think I'm doing this (entering the contest) for money, well I'm not . . . And ended, "Boy, I could sure use that money."

A sixth-grader from Alberta wrote: "In Canada, people talk different from other parts of the world. And when you go someplace, people can understand you."

A metric-minded Saskatchewan student enthused: "In Saskatchewan we have rolling plains with kilograms and kilograms of wheat and other crops."

Then there was the 12-year-old Westerner with a deeply ingrained distrust of Texans, who wrote: "There is a great chance of the United States of American taking the western side over, especially since this is where all the Texans go because this is where all the oil is, and the Texans are the kind of people who would do a thing like that. I know, I lived there."

The contest was organized by Greening Donald Co. Ltd., a Hamilton-based manufacturer of wire ropes and industrial products, and locals of the United Steelworkers of America in its various plants.

John Manthorpe, a 12-year-old student at Sir James Douglas elementary school, and Eric Yorath, 10, a Durrance school student, are among 15 British Columbia patrollers chosen to attend the 19th National School Safety Week Jamboree in Ottawa.

During a stopover in Vancouver, they were introduced to Mayor Jack Volrich at a reception for the students.

Where were all the hockey fans when they were needed?

Thursday night Victoria city council started its regular nightly meeting while the Boston Bruins were still locked in a losing battle with the Montreal Canadiens for the Stanley Cup.

Shortly after 8 Ald. John Hayes rose on an urgent matter.

"Does anyone know what the final score was in the hockey game?" he pleaded, turning to the public gallery when the mayor and aldermen all shook their heads.

But there wasn't a transistor radio in the place, and Hayes had to sit down gnashing his teeth and wondering how it all turned out.

Swiftsure Gets World Exposure

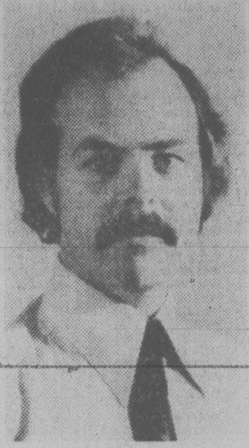
By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

At least one picture of this year's Swiftsure will hang on the walls of offices and homes in Europe, Scandinavia, South Africa, the United States and Canada in 1980.

The excitement of this year's sailing classic has been captured by Ken Beken, 27, a third-generation marine photographer of the firm of Beken and Son from the Isle of Wight.

Beken, his grandfather, Frank, and his father, Keith, have all received warrants from the British royal family for their work. All are fellows of the Royal Photographic Society.



BEKEN
. . . third generation

This year's Swiftsure will be depicted in the Beken yachting calendars that are famous throughout the world.

Beken, who lives at Cowes, covers all the English-based yachting classics, such as the Admiral's Cup, while his father lives in the south of France and covers marine activity in the Mediterranean.

Beken says the standard of sailing of Swiftsure competitors is excellent, comparing favorably with that of European sailors.

Beken's grandfather, who was born in 1880, took his first picture when he was 10 years old. He was still taking pictures in his 80s until a year before he died.

"He used to get an old seaman to row him around in a dinghy," his grandson recalls. His grandson now uses a Boston whaler, capable of 30 knots.

Frank Beken, who received hi royal warrant from Queen Victoria, was always asked to show his Cowes regatta pictures aboard the royal yacht Britannia after the week's racing.

Unlike most commercial photographers, Ken Beken reports he and his father are frugal in their use of film. This is probably inherited from Frank Beken, who because of the heavy glass plates he used, could only take 60 with him on his marine sorties.

The heavy box camera he made himself weighed 12 pounds and had to be held at arm's length, using the body as a shock absorber.

The shutter was fired by placing a rubber ball, connected to the camera by a hollow tube, between his teeth. When the time came to shoot, the ball was bitten, giving a shutter release without vibration.

His grandson smilingly tells of the time Frank Beken had an unpalatable shock when he put the ball hurriedly in his mouth and discovered it had been lying in a pool of diesel oil.

The younger Bekens use the Swiss-made Hasselblad cameras.

The Bekens do not restrict their pictures to sailing vessels, but photograph everything from seaplanes to oil rigs. One of the most cherished plates in their collection is one that Frank Beken took of the liner Titanic when she left on her ill-fated maiden voyage.

Ken Beken took his first picture when he was five.

"I cut my teeth on the original old camera when I was 18," he recalled.

He was asked to lecture by the Royal Photogaphic Society in January, 1977.

This is his first visit to Canada. Before leaving Victoria he will take pictures of the three-quarter ton world championship races which begin this week.

Then he's off to Honolulu to film the start of the Tall Ships race to Victoria, which begins June 26.

He'd like to see Swiftsure again but would like it to become part of a week-long regatta, similar to the Cowes regatta.

"You have the sailors and the organization. It would be well worth the $2,000 to come back again," he says.

City Balks On Bastion

Victoria council's planning committee today wouldn't go along with a provincial proposal to redesign the Wharf Street end of Bastion Square.

Committee members said they agreed with the government's proposal to develop the former Reid site on the Inner Harbor, and also agreed that pedestrian traffic should be encouraged to travel through Bastion Square across the street to the proposed new buildings.

But the committee couldn't agree on what method should be used to generate a flow-through of pedestrians.

The province would like to see one major street level crossing, but most committee members were opposed to that and thought a pedestrian overpass a better idea.

"There's a meeting of minds over what we want to achieve, but there is need for discussions on how we want to achieve it," said Ald. Bob Wright.

Wright proposed the city's planning department get together with the province and study all the available options for getting people from Bastion Square across Wharf Street to the Reid site.

"Lets not do what Toronto's done, where there's a downtown and a waterfront but getting from one to the other is a battle."

"There's a Maginot line between them," said city planner Geoff Greenhalgh.

The committee agreed to table the matter until planners for both levels of goverment have researched all the options.

Hotel Thieves Grab $510

Two men brandishing knives and wearing silk-stocking masks held up the desk clerk at the Yates Hotel, 721 Yates, early today and made off with $510.

Victoria police Insp. Angus Stewart said the pair came from the back of the hotel and jumped the desk clerk, Allan David Harnston, from behind.

While one of the men rifled a cash till, the other forced Harnston, 41, to open a safe.

After scooping the money into a bag, they bound and gagged Harnston and fled.

Harnston managed to free himself and called police at 3:53 a.m.

COMMITTEE AT FAULT ON WINNER

John Graeme, information officer for the Swiftsure race, said today he and the race committee were at fault, not the computer, for incorrectly announcing Sunday the winner was Ted Burns' Outrageous of the Bremerton Yacht Club.

"John Graeme and the race committee jumped the gun because they (the boats) were breaking records in terms of elapsed time," Graeme said.

"We didn't think Bill Buchan (skipper of the winning boat Sachem) could pick up his handicap. We apologize to the media and the computer people."

Graeme said the race has been computerized for the past five years. It is the only way it could be handled with such a large number of participating boats, he said.

He said two staff members of Computel Systems Ltd. of Ottawa had worked two 16-hour volunteer shifts during the race and another two had put in four-hour shifts. The company also has provided the service free of charge for the last five years.

Graeme said it was the computer that finally found the mistake.

'Copter or STOL? Battle Heats Up

The battle is heating up between de Havilland and Okanagan Helicopters to see which will provide a new transportation link between Esquimalt and Vancouver.

"There is no doubt there is a demand for a new transportation service," de Havilland market development director Robert McIntyre said.

"The only question is whether it will be us or the competition."

De Havilland wants to run hourly service of a Short Takeoff and Landing plane between Esquimalt and Vancouver Airport.

The plane would carry 50 passengers and would arrive at Vancouver airport in about 20 minutes.

Location of the Victoria airstrip has not been decided, McIntyre said, but the site favored at the moment is on national defence property near Work Point.

Meanwhile, Okanagan Helicopters wants to operate at a heli-pad near Ogden Point and carry 28 passengers per trip to a site near the Bayshore Inn. The trip would take half an hour.

"We think our plan is better," McIntyre said of the de Havilland proposal.

"Noise is an important factor and the Dash 7 is the quietest plane in the world. There is no way a helicopter can be as quiet as we are."

Passenger loads are also a consideration, he said. The Dash 7 could carry 50 at a time.

"Also, we could form a network of routes. The Dash 7 could fly from Victoria to Port Alberni and Abbotsford and Kelowna — even to Prince George. The Okanagan people will admit they cannot operate helicopters at such long distances. We would also like to see a (Dash 7) service between Victoria and Seattle. It would be a natural."

All such questions, however, would be up to whatever firm operated the Dash 7 planes.

"We are just the manufacturer," McIntyre said.

The decision on whether it will be STOL or helicopters will come from a federal-provincial task force which McIntyre expects will be established soon.

Earlier, Okanagan Helicopters spokesman Kyle Steele argued that helicopters should be used because they offer downtown-to-downtown service and require a smaller landing pad.

McIntyre today said helicopters would require almost as much space as a STOL airstrip because of the need to construct a terminal building and provide parking as well as space for the machines to land.

McIntyre said STOLs almost certainly would have to land at Vancouver airport to begin with because of the difficulty of finding a landing strip near Burrard Inlet.

"The important thing is to eliminate the trip out to Patricia Bay. That's not handy to anything."

BREWIN

Former NDP provincial president John Brewin confirmed today he will seek the NDP nomination in Esquimalt for the next provincial election.

Brewin isn't the only family member involved in politics. His father Andrew has been an MP in the Toronto area since 1962.

His wife Gretchen is the NDP candidate in the federal riding of Victoria.

Governors Returned

The University of Victoria has appointed seven members of its board of governors to another three-year term.

The board members are: Joseph Cunliffe, president of Willis, Cunliffe, Tait & Co.; Alex Hall, a B.C. Hydro agrologist; Dr. James Portelance, a Langford physician; Dr. Terry Huberts, a Sidney veterinarian; Victoria lawyer Ian Stewart, William K. Gwyer, former president of West Kootenay Power and Light Co. and former Victoria mayor Hugh Stephen.

One other seat on the board is yet to be filled.

Police CoL Hangup

Discussions between the Saanich policemen's union and police board over a new labor contract are still bogged down over the interpretation of a cost-of-living clause.

Both sides appeared at an informal meeting of the board in Vancouver on Monday.

Industrial relations officer Barry Goff has suggested the policemen put their position in writing.

Meanwhile, police board chairman Mayor Mel Couvelier said he will call a special meeting of his board later this week to review the union's position and hopefully work out a compromise.

But union members, who have voted non-confidence in Couvelier's handling of the contract negotiations, have indicated they would sooner take their case back to the LRB than deal with the board directly.

"We have complete confidence in the Labor Relations Board," union president Phil Jamieson said.

The issue centres on the interpretation of how a cost-of-living allowance should be applied — whether, as the union wants, as an adjustment to policemen's salaries or as the board seeks, an allowance separate from salaries.

The difference is critical because the decision will determine what the policemen's base salary rate will be when the current contract expires on Jan. 1, 1980.

Jamieson fears if the board gets its way and there is high inflation next year, the union members would end up with a decline in salary when negotiations for the next contract begin.

Gun Cache Found

Eight handguns stolen from a Victoria dealer in April were recovered Monday by members of the Greater Victoria Co-Ordinated Law Enforcement Unit.

Seven of the guns were found in a box buried beside the Port Renfrew-Shawnigan Lake Road and the eighth — fully loaded — was located buried near Hall's Boat House on the Malahat.

A police spokesman said all the weapons had been well-greased and oiled.

They had been taken from International Knives, 574 Yates, during an early morning break-in April 10.

One man has already been charged in connection with the break-in and another, who is in Wilkinson Road jail, faces a charge of possession of stolen property.

today's markets

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Continued gains in resource issues kept the Toronto stock market almost two points higher in active mid-afternoon trading today.

Anglo United Development Corp. Ltd. jumped 27 cents to $2.32 a share on the sale of 49,000 shares following its resumption shoftly before noon. Trading was delayed at the opening due to an imbalance of orders.

Among industrials, B.C. Packers B gained 1½ to $50, Crown Life Insurance 1⅜ to $56⅜, Dome Petroleum 1 to $60¼, Falconbridge Nickel Mines A ¾ to $25½ and Alberta Natural Gas ⅝ to $41.

Magna International dropped 1 to $24, United Corporations ½ to $12, Montreal Trust ½ to $19½, BP Canada ⅛ to $13¾ and Canadian Imperial Bank ⅛ to $28¾.

Giant Yellowknife Mines rose ¾ to $13¼, Camflo ⅜ to $15¼ and Dickenson ⅜ to $5⅞. Denison Mines fell ½ to $69½ and Sherritt Gordon A ¼ to $6¼.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined slightly in a sluggish post-holiday session today.

Brokers said traders were waiting uneasily for Wednesday's report from the labor department on the consumer price index for April. Several U.S. government officials warned last week that the figures would contain unpleasant news on the pace of inflation.

By this morning a quarter-point increase in the prime lending rate, initiated last Thursday by Chicago's Continental Illinois bank, had been matched by most other leading banks across the country.

That put the basic charge on blue-chip loans at 8½ per cent, its highest level in more than three years.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were fractionally higher in moderate trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange. Oshawa Group A was up ¼ to $6⅞, Ashland Oil ⅜ to $17¾, Bank of Montreal ⅛ to $21, Bell Canada ¼ to $57⅜ and Total Petroleum ⅛ to $12⅛. Shell Canada was down ⅛ to $13¾, Northern Telecom ⅛ to $29½, Royal Bank ⅛ to $31½ and Holla ger Mines A ½ to $32¾. Among speculative issues, Dumagami Mines slipped two cents to $2.15 on a volume of 4,700 shares traded.

London

LONDON (CP) — The London stock market was moderately lower near the close of light trading. The Financial Times index was down 3.7 to 472.4 an hour before the close. Leading equities held steady at lower levels, while gold issues climbed with higher bullion prices. Canadian stocks were mixed to lower.

S. AFRICA DEALINGS REVIEWED

VIENNA (Reuter) — A United Nations commission Tuesday began examining the role of multinational companies in the developing world and their dealings with South Africa.

During a two-week conference, the 48-member commission on multinational corporations will study a UN report which proposes giving host countries more control over such companies and greater access to information about their finances and resources.

The commission will also discuss a UN investigation of companies with interests in South Africa and which are alleged to be supporting apartheid there.

Booming Future Seen for Gas

By J. R. DUPUIS
CP Business Editor

MONTREAL (CP) — The international movement of natural gas will become a reality in the next 20-to-40 years, James W. Kerr, chairman and chief executive officer of TransCanada PipeLines, said Monday.

In a speech opening the 71st annual convention of the Canadian Gas Association, Kerr said the LNG — liquid natural gas — carrier will play a major role in changing the industry from an integrated national system to a worldwide operation.

"During the next 20-to-40 years, we will see our industry move from integrated national systems based on individual, national natural gas supply sources to an international industry — perhaps not too dissimilar to the international oil industry with which we now compete."

A significant reason is that LNG was fast becoming an international trading commodity.

"The LNG carrier is the vehicle which will make a major part of this international movement of natural gas a reality."

A major topic among the 300 delegates attending the three-day convention is the so-called gas bubble of Western Canada, or surplus gas for which market prospects are poor.

L. M. Dudley, retiring chairman of the association, said in a report presented to a directors meeting Sunday the bubble has led to less development and "could eventually lead to less exploration."

"This levelling of natural gas sales, at a time where there are additional volumes of gas available, is a most perplexing dilemma for the industry, especially when you consider 91,000 new customers were added in 1977."

Dudley, president and chief executive officer of Raypak Thermonics (Canada) Ltd., Toronto, said the need to bring frontier gas to market "is not as acute as it was one year ago" because of the surplus.

Reserves are sufficient to support domestic markets and current contracts to 1985.

In his report, Dudley avoided taking a position on how to reduce the gas bubble, but said the association favors negotiations with the U.S. to make a deal on gas exports.

However, E. W. King, of Edmonton, who will succeed Dudley as chairman at this convention, said in an interview he would be in favor of a pre-delivery system under existing export permits.

In other words, the contracts would be shortened so that the U.S. would take more gas now while there is a surplus, "or certainly until more is known about the extent of new supplies."

King is president and chief executive officer of Northwestern Utilities Ltd. and Canadian Western Natural Gas Co. Ltd.

Most of Kerr's speech was devoted to the staging of the 14th World Gas Conference next year in Toronto, the first time the world body will meet in Canada.

As president of the International Gas Union, Kerr will play a major role at the conference May 27-June 1 as chairman and chief host for Canada.

About 1,800 delegates from 36 countries are expected to hear the 66 technical papers that will be presented.

In another speech, N. R. Chappell, energy counsellor with the Canadian embassy in Washington, said confusion and uncertainty with U.S. energy proposals make it difficult for the natural gas industry "to look beyond today."

"Canadian industry contains a strong export element," he said. "There are a number of gas projects in various stages with a heavy trans-border element, including additional exports to the U.S., whether as net sales, advanced deliveries, time exchanges, or whatever."

He referred to the Alaska gas pipeline through Canada and the LNG project to deliver imported gas to U.S. markets through Saint John, N.B.

"What I see, essentially, is that energy is and will be a continuing political and economic problem posing a major challenge to institutions as well as resources.

$6.57M Revenue Reported by TSE

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Stock Exchange reported Monday that revenue from all sources increased in the year ending March 31 to $6.57 million, a rise of $1.08 million over the previous year.

"The operations for the fiscal year produced an excess of revenue over expenses of $143,000," the TSE annual report said, "compared with an excess of expenses over revenue of $194,000 for the prior year."

The report attributed the gain to "higher trading levels and an increase in sustaining fees from listed companies."

In an address prepared for the report, TSE president J. Pearce Bunting described the fiscal year as "the third best year in the 126-year history of the exchange."

Dollar value traded reached $6.7 billion compared with $4.8 billion the prior year, an increase of 40.5 per cent, he said.

"Trading has continued to improve throughout the first quarter of the new fiscal year with the average daily value traded for 1978 through the month of April equal to $31.8 million, up 67.4 per cent from the same period a year ago.

"If trading value continues at levels that we consider to be more normal on a long-term basis, then the industry as a whole should experience a reasonable rate of return on capital employed in generating listed agency business," the TSE president said.

The latest member-firm profitability and cost survey indicated that average daily trading value would have to total about $25 million on an annual basis for the industry to break even on its listed equity business, the report said.

SEWAGE TREATMENT SOLD TO SAUDIS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sanilogical Industries Ltd., of Vancouver, says its United States subsidiary, Sanilogical Corp. of Colorado, has signed a licensing agreement with a Saudi Arabian group to manufacture and sell its sewage treatment process in the Middle East.

The agreement is with the Saudi Arabian Management Engineering and Research Grou (Samer), the company said. In it, Samer agrees to pay a royalty of seven per cent of sales.

A Sanilogical spokesman here said the contract will be terminated if Samer doesn't start sales in five years' time.

Sanilogical makes a wastewater treatment plant for use in small cities, condominium developments and office buildings. The system reduces sewage through an aerobic and bacterial process that leaves little residue, is self-contained and requires little maintenance, the company said.

Trimac Ltd

Net earnings increased to $1,968,000 or 82 cents a share for the three-month period ended March 31 compared with $1,023,000 or 46 cents a share for the same period in 1977, Trimac Ltd. reported.

The company said the increased earnings were due to the full consolidation of Kentig Ltd.'s earnings compared with a 56-per-cent consolidation for the same period last year, together with increased earnings from operations.

Operating revenues increased to $35,318,000 during the quarter compared with $33,426,000 in 1977.

The company announced it would declare the regular quarterly dividend of 57 cents a share on its cumulative preferred shares payable June 30 to shareholders of record June 9.

A semi-annual dividend of 15 cents on each of the class A and class B convertible shares will be payable June 15 to shareholders of record June 1, the company said.

Bank of B.C.

The Bank of British Columbia reports revenue of $2,523,000 for the six months ended April 30, up 19.5 per cent from $2,112,000 in the same period a year before.

Share earnings were lower in the latest period—$2.03 against $2.14 last year—due to the issuance of additional shares since April 30, 1977.

Trevor W. Pilley, chairman and president, said the bank's total assets rose by 34.3 per cent to $1,376.4 million at April 30, 1978, from $1,025.1 million a year before. Deposits were 33.9 per cent higher at $1,280.6 million, while loans grew by 20.6 per cent to $983.8 million.

Pilley said that in the February-April quarter the bank opened branches in Edmonton and Prince George.

He said three branches are planned for the current quarter—one in Vancouver and two in Calgary—and two more in B.C. are scheduled for opening before the fiscal year-end.

Inter-City Gas

Inter-City Gas Ltd. has reported net income of $5,136,771 or 94 cents a common share during 1977. Comparable 1976 figures were $3,849,150 or 73 cents a share.

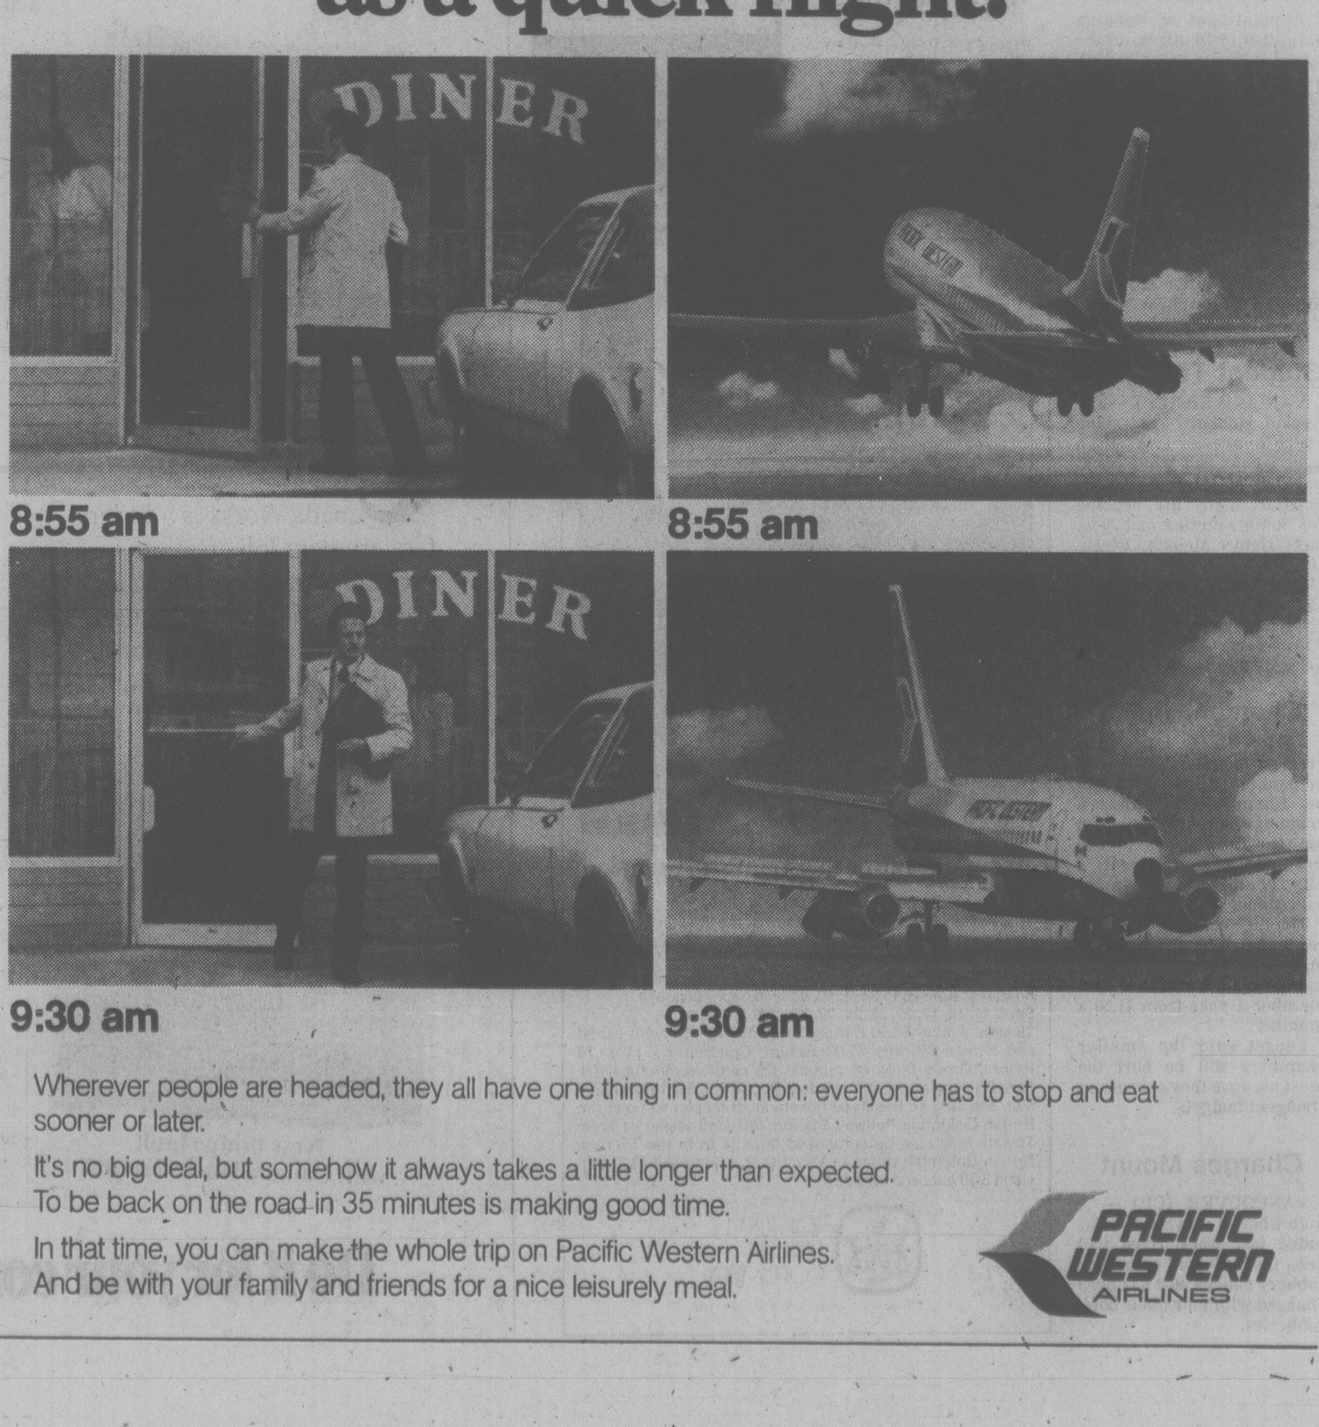
On a 400 km trip, the quick bite takes as long as a quick flight.



Wherever people are headed, they all have one thing in common: everyone has to stop and eat sooner or later.

To be back on the road in 35 minutes is making good time.

In that time, you can make the whole trip on Pacific Western Airlines.

Suite Project Razed

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Dynamite charges placed by a demolition crew blasted down the Glen Shee apartment development Monday — leaving Cental Mortgage and Housing Corporation with a capital loss of more than $500,000.

The partly-completed twin towers had been untouched for three years after lack of financing, poor planning and bad luck doomed it.

Former city manager Aaron Thompson started the project in 1972, but died eight months later. George Cook of Edmonton took over but ran into a maze of financing problems and died shortly after picking up the reins.

In 1974, CMHC began a three-year battle to get control of the property for which it had guaranteed loans worth about $2.5 million.

Experts hired by CMHC, at a cost of $35,000, said it would cost about $5 million by the time it was finished in 1980 — when there is expected to be an uncertain rental market.

"We decided there was no sense in throwing good money after bad," said Jack Hadden, local CMHC manager. "It just doesn't make economic sense to finish it unless you know rents will be marketable."

So the decision to destroy the unfinished project, a blot on the landscape of this central interior lumber town, was made.

CMHC will lose about $550,000 after the land is sold while the contractors involved lost several hundred thousand dollars.

Taxpayers' money that CMHC approved for use in building the project is insured.

FLUORIDE RINSE CUTS FILLINGS

OTTAWA (CP) — A fluoride rinse program for 5,000 Vancouver Island children has prevented more than $52,000 in dental work, says a Canadian Journal of Public Health report.

The program, which began in 1971 for children from kindergarten to Grade Seven, cost $5,192 for the 1975-76 school year.

Health officials examined 700 13-year-old students during 1975-76 who had used the rinse for four years. Those students had 4.2 less decayed and missing teeth than those examined at the beginning of the program.

The cost of repairing 4.2 teeth for the students for one year was slightly more than $52,000, says the report.

The island has few communities with fluoridated water.

Small amounts of fluoride are added to the drinking water supplied to about 35 per cent of the national population to help decrease tooth decay and lower dental care costs.

Spray Permits Sought

VANCOUVER (CP) — The pesticide control branch of the provincial environment ministry has received more than 80 applications each from the British Columbia ministry of highways and public works and B.C. Hydro for permission to use pesticide on public land, Stuart Craig, pesticide control officer, said Monday.

Craig said many of the applications have already been approved by the branch after being subject to stringent control conditions, including lengthy discussions with other government agencies.

He said that while the highways ministry has made the most applications — 84 — it does not necessarily use the largest amount of chemicals, or cover the largest amount of land.

Permits are mandatory when pesticides are used, even in small amounts, on any public land.

A variety of different pesticides are involved in applications, including the controversial herbicides 2,4-D, 2,4,5-T and Tordon.

Builder Dies

VANCOUVER (CP) — Frank Stanzl, a Viennese-born builder whose latest project included development of 750 dwellings at False Creek for the city, died Saturday of a heart attack. He was 54.

Stanzl, who once said that as a contractor he had to take down so many old mansions in the West End that he almost cried, was a central figure in the construction of free-market condominiums on 26-acres of city-owned land on the south side of False Creek.

Among his projects are the Emmanuel Baptist Church, St. David's Church, the Anglican Chapel at the University of British Columbia, the new King George High School, the nurses' residence at Chilliwack General Hospital and a home which architect Arthur Erickson designed for an Okanagan millionaire.

Trade Centre Formula Offered

VANCOUVER (CP) — A finance formula and a site for a $25 million convention and trade centre were presented to city council Monday by Provincial Secretary and Travel Minister Grace McCarthy.

Mrs. McCarthy said in an interview that the centre, proposed for Pier B-C in the Coal Harbor area, would accommodate up to 10,000 convention delegates.

She proposed that the provincial and federal government each pay 40 per cent. Another condition of the offer is that the 3½-block site be leased by the National Harbors Board to the city for $1 a year.

"The facilities and the site we would provide would give us one of the two or three most attractive convention sites in the world," the minister said.

UBC Appointee

Appointment of Rendina Hamilton of Penticton to the board of governors of the University of British Columbia was announced Monday by Education Minister Pat McGeer.

Mrs. Hamilton is chairman of the Penticton school board, a past president of the B.C. School Trustees and is on the regional districts review committee.

Appointed to the UBC senate for a three-year term was W.A. McKerlich of Delta.

Student Travel Up

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian students are taking more overseas trips than ever before, but while backpacking in Europe remains popular, many are heading for South America and Asia, says Denys Meakin, executive director of the Youth Hostels Association's British Columbia branch.

"When you've made the Europe trip — What else?" asks Meakin.

Chamber Pinch

VERNON (CP) — Increased membership fees to be paid to the British Columbia Chamber of Commerce could have a rough impact on smaller chambers in the province, Chuck Forget, a city chamber spokesman, said Monday.

The B.C. chamber passed a resolution at its annual meeting in Vernon on the weekend increasing the rate to $10 a member a year from $1.50 a member.

Forget said the smaller chambers will be hurt the most because they operate on stringent budgets.

Charges Mount

VANCOUVER (CP) — A man whom a provincial court judge last week ruled had been illegally held on a bank robbery charge now has been charged with four other bank robberies.

Jeff Sommers, 21, was charged on the weekend with the four robberies.

Judge E. J. Cronin said last week that police had illegally detained Sommers longer than 24 hours without charging him after the May 19 robbery of a city bank.

Guides Raffled

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — The Western Guides and Outfitters Association has worked out a plan with the Arizona-based Safari Club International to raise money for wildlife conservation projects in British Columbia, association president Bob Henderson said Monday.

Henderson said association members would be donating guided trips to the Safari club to be raffled at the group's annual meetings, beginning in 1979.

Canada Works is a Federal Government job creation program. And it's ready again, to create new jobs and lasting benefits for your community.

But nothing happens unless you apply for a project of your own, so here's how to get things under way.

Get your group to agree on a project you can all support. Think it through. Will it create at least 3 new jobs? Will it use and improve the skills of unemployed people in your area? How much for salaries and other costs? Who will run the project on a day-to-day basis? Then go to your local Canada Manpower Centre/Canada Employment Centre or Job Creation Branch Office and pick up a Canada Works application and "Guide to Applicants." This application is not complicated, but please fill it out clearly and accurately.

If your idea is good, and your group has the will and expertise to see it through, Canada Works may be able to contribute to the necessary funding.

Canada Works is for your community. Your province. Your country. For all of us. So let's get working on some good ideas.

Columbia Loss $124M Wolfe

British Columbia has lost $124.4 million under the Columbia River Treaty, Finance Minister Evan Wolfe said Monday.

Wolfe told the legislature the latest figures compiled by his ministry show that construction of the three dams under the treaty — the Duncan, Arrow and Mica — has cost $603.5 million.

However, contributions from the United States under the treaty, the minister said, have amounted to $479.1 million, leaving B.C. Hydro with a $124.4 million shortfall.

Wolfe disclosed the figures after Opposition leader Dave Barrett said the province lost $1 billion on the treaty, signed between Canada and the U.S. in 1964.

At the time, then-premier W.A.C. Bennett had estimated that U.S. payments of $501 million would cover construction costs of $448 million for the three dams, leaving $53 million to be used to pay about half the cost of the Mica generating facility.

Barrett, reiterating a position he has taken for several years, said the loss to the Crown-owned Hydro, and therefore to the province, is much greater than indicated by Wolfe.

He said the debt figure quoted by the minister does not include the cost of generation, transmission and transformation facilities, which amounts to about $900 million.

Wolfe and Mines Minister Jim Chabot both said Barrett's mathematics were erroneous and based on the incorrect assumption that the additional costs were included in the treaty.

The exchange came during debate of a bill to increase Hydro's borrowing power by $750 million to $4.9 billion.

"We are dealing in this bill today with a coverup of a major fiscal disaster — a political fiasco of the first order," Barrett said.

The legislature gave second reading, approval in principle, to the bill by a vote of 32 to 14, with Liberal leader Gordon Gibson and Progressive Conservative leader Vic Stephens siding with the government majority.

Earlier in the debate, the Social Credit majority blocked a move by Lorne Nicolson (NDP — Nelson-Creston) to have the bill withdrawn and place Hydro's financial needs before the B.C. Energy Commission for study.

Following that, George Kerster (SC — Coquitlam) that unless something is done to bring Hydro under control, it will continue to scar B.C. through arrogant, irresponsible and unilateral decisions.

The legislature also gave final passage to amendments to the Provincial Home-Owner Grant Act which would increase the grant for senior citizens and the handicapped by $50 to $480 a year.

LAP-SIT FLARE-UP

The Guinness Book of Records would likely be more impressed than Participaction, but a Kelowna group has set the Canadian lap-sit record.

And the NDP Opposition wants to know why the province's $24,000-a-year physical fitness co-ordinator is organizing such activities.

The issue was raised in the legislature by Bill King (NDP—Revelstoke-Slocan) who asked Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf what other public funds were involved in the lap-sit competition besides Wendy Robertson's salary.

King read an article from a Kelowna newsapaper that said the record was set May 7 at the Kelowna Fitness Festival. The paper said 738 people successfully sat on each other's laps.

"The lap-sit was the highlight of the new games that Wendy Robertson, government co-ordinator for the fitness festival, was hoping would set a record," King read from the clipping.

Bawlf said no other funds were expanded, and pointed out it was only a brief event among may others including 3,000 people running a three-mile course in the city.

King, pursuing the matter, asked Bawlf if the benefit of the exercise was therapeutic, psychological or "simply because someone in Kelowna longs for paternal security?"

No cabinet members took part in the lap-sit, Bawlf said.

Bawlf was recently criticized for continuing for 10 months Mrs. Robertson's interim appointment. Opposition members said she is Premier Bennett's jogging and tennis partner, and her appointment was political patrongage.

Metro Gov't Eyed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver Board of Trade says the provincial government should study the possibility of metropolitan government for Greater Vancouver. The board says adoption of metropolitan government isn't necessarily recommended but a study now could help the government get a head start on problems coming up 10 years from now.

World Cup: What Stars Will Shine?

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Each World Cup soccer tournament produces new superstars—Ferenc Puskas of Hungary in 1954, Pele of Brazil in 1958, Bobby Charlton of England and Usebio of Portugal in 1966, Gerd Mueller of West Germany in 1970, Johann Cruyff of Holland in 1974.

These giants of the world's most popular team sport are no longer on the scene. Who will the heroes of 1978 be?

Some say look no further than the host nation, Argentina, whose front line includes the elusive Daniel Bertoni, a 22-year-old attacker who specializes in clever free kicks. There also are Mario Kempes, brought back from the Spanish League team Valencia, and Rene Houseman, a member of the 1974 World Cup squad.

On the Brazilian team every opponent must fear the midfield artistry of Roberto Rivelino, the man with the drooping mustache and the lethal shot form either foot. At 32, this veteran's biggest obstacle is his own fiery temperament.

In the Brazilian attack is the man dubbed "The White Pele." He is Arthur Antunes Coimbra, known to supporters as "Zico." His bursts from midfield have brought him more than 300 goals for the Rio de Janiero club Flamengo.

Up front for the Brazilians is Jose Reinaldo, 21, the man everyone in Buenos Aires wants to see. This electrifying forward who began his professional career at 15 comes with a big reputation which he failed to live up to in Brazil's final warm-up games.

Defending champion West Germany only has a handful of survivors from 1974. Franz Beckenbauer now is the multi-million-dollar star of the Cosmos, and gone, too, are Gerd Mueller, Paul Breitner and Wolfgang Overath.

On attack, Klaus Fischer is a dynamic centre-forward, while 22-year-old right-winger Rudiger Abramczik caused the Brazilians a lot of problems in a warm-up match.

Holland may flounder without Cruyff, who has quit soccer, but the man best able to fill the gap, accoding to Cruyff himself, is 30-year-old striker Robby Rensinbrink.

Ten of Italy's 22-man squad comes fron Juventus of Turin, including 27-year-old forward Roberto Bettega, who can score spectacular goals from any place, anytime—headers, curlers, backheelers and flicks.

Perhaps Italy's classiest player is 36-year-old goalkeeper Dino Zoff, a gentleman off the field, and a nearly impenetrable barrier on. In midfield, Marco Tardelli has the ability to blast shots with the power and accuracy once displayed by Bobby Charlton.

"This World Cup will be won and lost by midfielders, not forwards," Italian manager Enzo Bearzot said this week.

Scotland's centre-half Gordon McQueen, a match-winner in the air, has a serious knee injury that could hobble him throughout the tournament. But another Scotsman of world class is forward Kenny Dalghlish who was signed by English League club Liverpool last summer for £400,000 and helped retain the European Champions Cup.

A great crowd-pleaser on the Scottish team is 31-year-old winger Willie Johnston, who loves to take defenders on, while tall Dereck Johnstone of Glasgow Rangers can play either as centre-forward or centre-half.

Spectacular free kicks are a feature of Michel Platini's play for France. The 23-year-old scored three vital goals in his country's World Cup qualifying play and now is looked upon as one of Europe's finest exponents of "total football," meaning equal effectiveness on attack and defence.

French captain Marius Tresor of Guadeloupe, a sweeper, has a slight injury but still could be a big influence, and midfielder Dominique Bathenay, 24, is the hard man on the team, adding muscle to finesse.

Other potential stars are Argentine-born Ruben Cano of Spain, Atletico Madrid's top-scoring centre-forward; Hugo Sanchez Marquez of Mexico, 19, who has scored 15 goals in 20 international appearences; Andras Torocsik of Hungary, an impressive goal-scorer; and Austrian midfielder Herbert Prohaska, whose flowing passes along the ground exhibit expert ball control. Another Austrian to watch is top goal-scorer Hans Krankl, who knows he will be a marked man.

Sweden, a strongly favored outsider in the World Cup, has tall foward Ralf Edstrom and 24-year-old midfielder Lennart Larsson, who scored two goals in Sweden's 3-1 upset over West Germany last month.

The tournament opens at Buenos Aires, Thursday, with defending champion West Germany playing Poland. On Friday Argentina plays Hungary, France meets Italy and Tunisia plays Mexico.

Scotland gets its first start against Peru on Saturday. Other games Saturday have Spain vs Austria, Sweden vs Brazil, and Iran vs Holland.

Harness Racing Gives New Look to Sandown

bill walker

There will be a different look at Sandown come Saturday at the opening of the 57-day harness racing season — and maybe even a little different too than just $100,000 worth of improvements might imply.

First and foremost, the difference is that, for the first time since the '50s, harness racing, standardbreds, will take over where the thoroughbreds have nearly always ruled. And just how the jugheads will be received is an unknown factor to say the least.

If the meeting, to some, might be in the form of a gamble, Orangeville Raceways, operators of the meeting are prepared to accept it as a calculated risk and believe they might eventually have a best seller.

After all, they have the record of the Capital City Turf Club before them and CCTC fall thoroughbred meetings proved to be a success when even the B.C. Jockey Club doubted the wisdom of such a venture.

And they have summer, which has got to be warmer than the fall (and watch where you throw those cigarette butts — this isn't October.)

Besides, Orangeville Raceways have paid out $140,000 for the privilege, $35,000 of which has already gone to the B.C. Jockey Club as an act of faith for the first 35 days.

The lease terms are basically the same as for the thoroughbreds, $1,000 a day, or 1 per cent of the mutuel play, whichever is the higher.

Otherwise, too, there are new towers for the judges; brand new and more sophisticated pari-mutuel machines which are being installed this week; 10 more betting windows and 10 fewer payout wickets; exactor wagering on every race; a fresh coat of paint on the grandstand, and elsewhere; a shaved track, at least five inches of sand having been taken off the top of the track to make for a firmer base; a hub rail, 3,300 feet in length on the inside rail; at least 250 horses already stabled in the area; and, maybe what the hesitant fan would appreciate the most, an admission charge of only $1; preferred parking at the same cost and a combined program and race form for the same price.

Those are some of the changes that go with the 10-race opening-day card Saturday with the same format to follow Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays until Sept. 9.

Post times will be 5:30 p.m. on weekdays and 1:30 p.m. on Saturdays and holidays.

Minimum purses are $600 with a daily minimum guarantee to the horsemen of $7,500. Track operators receive 10½ per cent of the mutuel handle.

Manager Jim Keeling, Jr., said between 150 and 200 people will be employed on a regular or a part-time basis; that daily expenses will likely run between $5-6,000, and that he estimates a daily mutuel average of $140,000 is needed to break even. (In comparison, in the first year Orangeville Raceways operated at Cloverdale, the average was $148,496 but since then it has mushroomed to a figure of $240,350 for the 68 days of this year.)

A plus for the meeting is the fact that two of the nation's leading drivers plan to spend the summer here. They are Joe Hudon and Keith Linton.

Hudon recently represented Canada in the ninth world driving championships at nine U.S. and one Canadian (Greenwood) track, where he finished fourth over-all in competition against seven of the world's best drivers. Basis of selection to the World is decided on number of wins, percentage of placings for drives taken, and money earned. Hudon won the honor in Canada by the narrow margin of .001 over Ron Waples. Kevin Holmes of New Zealand was the winner of the World.

Hudon, who is 27 years of age today, has been driving since he was 16, has 52 winners this season and totalled 254 last year.

Linton Saturday joined the million-dollar club at Stampede Park in Calgary. He was the world percentage leader in 1973 and again in 1976. In 1976 he had the highest percentage ever recorded, .472. This year he scored his 121st victory at Calgary, Sunday, before coming here, and is eight ahead of Waples. Out of action for a time last season, he had 170 victories.

He started racing as a hobby in 1965 and makes Surrey his home.

Hudon is from Fisherbranch, Man., where his father, a farmer, used to engage in horse racing on the roads. Which is where he got the idea.

Both own horses. Linton has eight and trains two others while Hudon has seven and also trains two others. When not driving their own horses they "catch-drive" and, as opposed to thoroughbred racing where jockeys get so much for a ride and then extra for the placing of the horse, harness drivers usually opt for 10 per cent of the horse's earnings in that particular race. There is no jockey guild to dictate terms.

Obviously, they are both very good; and, judging by the banter they engaged in, they respect each other's ability while still being friendly rivals.

And, if you want a winner on opening day, tip-of-the-week is that they might provide one . . . or more.

KINGDOME CROWD COULD SET RECORD

SEATTLE (AP) — The fourth game of the National Basketball Association championship series will be played in Seattle tonight, but it won't be on the SuperSonics' home court.

Instead, Washington Bullets and the Sonics will meet in the Kingdome before what could be the largest crowd in NBA history.

Leading 2-1 in the best-of-seven series, the Sonics are talking confidently about winning the title. Three of the four remaining games will be played in Seattle.

The Sonics move to the Kingdome on a permanent basis next season, but tonight's game will be the first basketball game ever in the domed stadium. The fifth game Friday night will be in the Coliseum.

Fans hungry for the first NBA title in the Sonics' 11-year history gobbled up the first 29,000 tickets for tonight's game. An additional 15,000 "distant viewing" seats are on sale for $3 apiece.

Golfers Launch League Season

Another season in the Victoria District Inter-Club Golf League for the Willie Park Driver gets underway Wednesday with defending-champion Gorge Vale at home against Cedar Hill.

In other matches, Uplands, which finished a scant one and one-half points behind the Gorge squad in last year's series, tackles Victoria Golf Club at the Oak Bay links and Royal Colwood visits Glen Meadows.

Starting around 5 p.m., six-player teams from each club compete in both singles and four-ball, best-ball contests with a total of nine points at stake in each match.

Wednesday's draw:

Uplands at Victoria

Cec Ferguson vs. Mike Parker, Ted Pollard vs. Carl Schwantje.
Jim Taylor vs. Paul Harris, Mike Gray vs. Dave Anderson.

Lyle Crawford vs. Dave Donaldson, Greg Barnes vs. Grant Milliken.
Jim Cook vs. Jeff Jones, Gary Doherty vs. Stu Holroyd.

Bob Hogarth vs. Rick Kent, Mike Mousseau vs. Al Robertson.
Art Carey vs. Don Gowan, Steve Hambleton vs. Mike Foreman.
Dave Mick vs. Hal Jacobsen, Bruce Pelmore vs. Reg Effa.

Macs Seek Win, Fans

Victoria McDonalds will be bidding for more than a victory when they host Richmond Roadrunners in a Western Canada Major Junior "A" Lacrosse League game at Esquimalt Sports Centre tonight.

They will be looking for more fans.

General manager Bob Reid is more than concerned over a noticeable attendance drop this season. "Poor attendance is starting to hurt," he said after Sunday night's game against Coquitlam J-Hawks, which was won by McDonalds but which was attended by just under 400 fans.

"We need at least 800 to stay even," said Reid. The Sunday game was a switch from last Tuesday because Reid simply got tired of going against National Hockey Leaue telecasts. Five of McDonalds games came on NHL playoff nights.

Reid admitted that previously McDonalds had gone against the NHL but this year they were being hurt the most.

As it is, McDonalds are third in the league and eight points behind league-leading Burnaby Cablevision. They might have been closer except for a pair of losses, one by one goal and the other in overtime, to the Cables.

Cablevision Monday night suffered its first defeat of the season as New Westminster Salmonbellies scored an 11-9 victory at Queen's Park to consolidate their hold on second place with 12 points.

Halicki Loves Houston

By The Associated Press

During the last two seasons, San Francisco right-hander Ed Halicki has been turning Houston Astros bats into toothpicks.

Halicki, who compiled an 0.63 earned-run average in his last 43 innings in the Astrodome since September, 1976, scattered seven hits and drove in a pair of runs with his first hit of the season to help the Giants beat Houston 8-1 Monday night.

"Every time I have faced the Astros here over the past couple of seasons, I've had good stuff," said Halicki, 2-0. "And I feel that I can beat anybody when I have good stuff."

"Each game is another adventure. I gave up a lot of hard-hit balls tonight, but the guys came up with the big plays behind me when we needed them."

In other NL action, Montreal Expos beat Chicago Cubs 4-2, Cincinnati Reds defeated Atlanta Braves 7-5, Los Angeles Dodgers beaty San Diego Padres 9-6, Philadelphia Phillies edged Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3 in 14 innings and New York Mets beat St. Louis in the opener of a doubleheader before the Cardinals took the nightcap 6-2 in 10 innings.

In the American League, Andy Messersmith made his first appearance since March 16 when he suffered a separated shoulder in an exhibition game and helped New York Yankees beat Cleveland Indians 2-0 with five innings of one-hit ball.

Elsewhere, Boston Red Sox beat Toronto Blue Jays 5-4, Baltimore Orioles defeated Detroit Tigers 6-3, Chicago White Sox beat California Angels 7-0, Oakland A's defeated Milwaukee Brewers 6-2, Kansas City Royals beat Seattle Mariners 8-2 and, in a twinight twinbill, Texas Rangers beat Minnesota 7-1 before the Twins came back for a 7-2 victory.

Dwight Evans hit a game-winning homer in the eighth to beat Toronto and keep Boston two games ahead of the Yankees in the East Division while Oakland regained a one-game lead over California in the West.

At Houston, Bill Madlock jumped on the third pitch of the game, delivered by losing pitcher Floyd Bannister, 1-3, for his fifth home run of the season to stake San Francisco to a 1-0 lead.

The Giants, who have won 14 of their last 17 games, added a pair of fourth inning runs on singles by Willie McCovey and Mike Ivie, a walk to Mike Sadek and Halicki's two-run single to centre.

The loss, Houston's fourth straight against San Francisco this season, dropped the Astros five games under .500 and 9½ games behind the West Division leading Giants.

Batting Barrage

Four batters pounded out three hits each Monday while leading Butler Brothers to a 16-5 victory over Ingraham Hotel in a Victoria Senior Women's Softball League game at Hyacinth Park.

Gina Olson, Lisa Underwood, Vicki Black and Becky Pelkey led the assault for Butlers, who opened their barrage with seven runs in the third inning.

City Players Selected

Four Victorians are among 10 players selected by the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association to attend the national women's and junior women's team selection camps.

The obvious choice is Carole Turney, University of Victoria Vikettes' brilliant forward who established records in winning the Canada West University Athletic Association's scoring championship during the past season.

In addition to Turney, other B.C. players invited to the women's trials are Sheila Strike of North Delta, Gail Klaver and Bev Bland of Simon Fraser, Jane Favali of Kamloops and Bev Smith of Salmon Arm.

Both Smith and Favali are of junior age and will be added to the girls' camp if they fail to make the senior team.

Luanne Hebb of the Vikettes, Susan Shaw of UVic's Jayvee team and Karen McComber of Reynolds have been invited to the junior camp along with Darlene Winter of Chilliwack.

About Things Past, Present and Future. . .

Jimmy Rutledge's jump into professional ranks doesn't rank as one of the great surprises of all time. He made his move last week, without sponsor, and plans to proceed slowly towards the difficult United States' tour.

The surprise could come later. Still only 18, he has won all he could as a junior — the city, provincial and Canadian titles, along with the Island Open and sundry other tournaments.

The remarkable thing about his past successes is that they have been achieved without practicing. He practiced "a lot" when he started and up to the age of 14. For the past four years, however, he practically ignored practice.

The practice is starting to show in his scores. He played six successive rounds before, during and after the Labatt's Cedar Hill Open. He was 14 under par for the 128 holes — 62, 63, 66, 69, 63, 65 — around the par-67 Cedar Hill layout.

If he puts his mind to it, Rutledge could be a par-breaker extraordinary.

Big things are in the planning mill for North America's oldest, continuous inter-club series. Seattle and Victoria Golf Clubs celebrate the 75th anniversary of their first meeting, and both clubs plan "something special" for this year's matches.

Victoria Club will, among other things, officially unveil its "new" seventh hole when the teams meet on the Oak Bay course June 24. One of the world's great par-three holes, the seventh has been altered to a par-four.

Or, as Mike Souchak put it: "Instead of getting only one chance, you're going to two chances to drive into the water."

Astounding is the best way to describ) the interest of Canadian amateurs in the Canadian Open. The Royal Canadian Golf Association is allowed three starting spots in this year's tournament at Toronto. The three amateurs are to be determined through three regional qualifying tournaments.

The Western "tournament" has turned out to be a two-man show. Only Dick Zokol of Vancouver, a freshman at Brigham Young University, and Calgary's Norm Gray entered the four-province Western regional playoff. They'll play 36 holes at Peace Portal Wednesday and Thursday.

Only 40 other entries were received by the RCGA for the tournaments in Ontario and the Eastern region (Quebec et al).

While communication between Victoria and the RCGA, via the BCGA, has been excellent in recent years, there could have been a foulup this year. None of Victoria's top amateurs were aware of the opportunity to play in the Open.

SHORT CHIPS: On the subject of amateurs and disappointments, local players haven't exactly thrilled District Committee officials . . . Less than 50 have entered this weekend's City Amatuer (Saturday at Cedar Hill and Sunday at Uplands) . . . It has been 38 years between aces for Bill Paterson . . . He scored his second hole-in-one Monday on Cedar Hill's 15th . . . John Johnston, 75, went seven shots under his age with a nifty one-over-par 68 at Cedar Hill last Friday . . . Frank Kreiger and Henry Borge combined for a net 58½ to win the R.F. Williams Trophy at Uplands . . . The third annual Vancouver Island assistants championship will be played June 7-8 at Victoria Club . . . the assistants will be shooting for a purse of $1,800 . . . The 36-hole affair will wind up with pro-am event on the final day

The life of a club professional still may appear glamorous but it no longer is an economic cure-all . . . Case in point is Dave Roche . . . He resigned as Beach Grove's pro on a Sunday, filed bankrupcy papers the following day . . . Among one of the more novel ideas to come along is the one offered by the city's clothiers . . . They're going to park a car on the first fairway, about 150 yards off the first tee, for their 27th annual Tartan tournament June 7 at Uplands . . . Competitors will earn a chance to claim the car if their drive hits the auto . . . That should make for some interesting scores on the first hole . . . The annual Hotelmen's affair, like the Tartan one of the more enjoyable "commercial" tournaments around, comes up June 12 at Royal Colwood . . .

Palmer, McFall Top Golf Event

The Mainland pair of Marilyn Palmer, the former Canadian women's champion from Marine Drive, and Flo McFall of Quilchena teamed up Sunday to score a gross 71, four under par, and capture top honors in the annual South Vancouver Island field day at Gorge Vale Golf Club.

Doris Smith and Alice Mitchell, a team from the host club, won the Dogwood Trophy with a net 62. Runnersup were Shirley Lewis and Betty Foreman of Gorge Vale with a net 64.

Mariners Extend Office Shakeup

SEATTLE (AP) — Seattle Mariners have continued a front-office shakeup with the announcement that they won't renew the contract of Hal Childs, director of public relations for the American League baseball team.

The announcement was made by Kip Horsburgh, who succeeded Dick Vertlieb as the club's executive director last week.

"Keep out! Keep out! K-E-E-P O-U-T."

Cedar Hill Juniors Romp

Cedar Hill picked up a third straight lopsided victory Monday with a 7-2 decision over visiting Gorge Vale in a Greater Victoria Junior Golf League match.

The win gives unbeaten Cedar Hill a 5½ point lead over runner-up Uplands, which tripped host Victoria 6½-2½.

In the only other match, Royal Colwood moved into third place with a 7½-1½ romp over host Glen Meadows.

Lopez Captures Three in a Row

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (AP) — Nancy Lopez, the 21-year-old rookie sensation of the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, shot a course-record 65 Monday to win a $100,000 tournament by three strokes with a 72-hole total of 277 at the Wykagyl Country Club.

The victory was the third in a row and fifth over all this year for the five-foot-seven golfer. The first prize of $15,000 increased Lopez's earnings since turning pro last July to $119,586. She has collected $96,448 this year.

JoAnne Carner, the defending champion who started the day in first place with a three-round total of 210, two strokes better than Lopez, shot a two-under-par 70 to finish runner-up at 280.

Lopez, whose 65 shatterd the former record of 66 established two years ago by Laura Baugh, went out in 31 and came back in 34. She had birdies on four of the first six holes on the par-72, 6,410-yard course and finished the round with eight as opposed to only one bogey.

For Carner, it was her second consecutive defeat at the hands of Lopez, who beat the nine-year veteran last week at Forsgate, N.J. Carner also saw her jinx of never having successfully defended any of her 19 titles extended.

Pat Bradley, winner of this tournament two years ago, posted a six-under-par 66, second best round of the toupnament, to finish in third place at 286. Oakville, Ont., native Sandra Post, who held the early lead, and Penny Pulz shared the fourth spot at 287, each earning $4,595. Post was two-over-par at 74, while Pulz matched par on the final round.

"I felt good right from my first tee," said Lopez, whose 65 was her best round ever as a pro. "I told Roscoe (Jones, her caddy) that if the putter felt as good in my hands as my clubs, I was going to play very well.

"No question that I'm happy and it's not because I'm winning. I'm happy that I'm healthy, that I'm able to be out in the sun playing golf and that I am able to enjoy all the people."

Schools Share Honors

Shawnigan Lake Boys' School and St. Michael's University School of Victoria shared team titles in the B.C. independent schools track and field meet Sunday at Centennial Stadium.

Shawnigan won the senior division while SMU finished second and the Victoria school collected both the under-16 and under-14 titles.

St. George's of Vancouver finished second in both the under-16 and under-14 brackets.

In the senior division, Brad Jones of Shawnigan won the 110 and 400-metre hurdle events while clubmate Brian Thorne topped the shot put and triple jump and placed second in the discus.

Glen Owens of SMU on the triple and long jump events in the under-16 class, clubmate Geoff Barry won the 1,500 and 3,000 metre events and Bob Korichinski of St. George's collected victories in the shot put, discus and javelin.

Four double winners emerged in the under-14 class. John Turner of SMU won the 100 and 200 metre sprints, Rush Dalziel of Victoria's Glenlyon School topped the 400 and high jump, Robin Baird of Glenlyon won the 800 and 1,500 and Dave Christian of Brentwood College placed first in the shot put and discus.

Placings:

SENIOR — 1. Shawnigan 144; 2. St. Michael's 113' 3. St. George's 97; 4. Brentwood College 68.

UNDER-16 — 1. St. Michael's; 2. St. George's; 3. Brentwood College; 4. Shawnigan; 5. Glenlyon.

UNDER-14 — 1. St. Michael's; 2. St. George's; 3. Glenlyon; 4. Shawnigan; 5. Brentwood College.

Tour Triumph

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Johan De Muynck of Belgium won the marathon 3,600-kilometre 61st Tour of Italy cycling race on Sunday, an event he dominated since three days after the May 8 start of one of the world's toughest open road events.

Shepherd Scores

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Morgan Shepherd, after squandering a 20-car-length lead, went ahead of the pack four laps from the finish Saturday and won the Sportsman 100 NASCAR race at Charlotte Motor Speedway.

All-Out War on Spanworm Urged for Oak Bay

Oak Bay council will be asked at its June 12 meeting to wage a chemical spray war next year on the green spanworm which threatens to destroy virtually all deciduous trees.

Council's works committee will recommend that municipal trees which have suffered the most from the worm, common throughout Greater Victoria, be identified immediately and that attempts be made to find an adequate supply of the low-toxicity insecticide methoxychlor for use next spring.

If the needed supply is greater than $4,000 provided for in this year's budget, then the remainder should be financed from next year's budget, the committee recommended at its meeting Monday night.

Tree consultant Michael Gye said the spanworm problem has been with Greater Victoria for about eight years and until a natural predator arrives to take hold of it, the problem will remain.

"The only thing we have found that controls it is spraying," he said. "My own yard has been sprayed for six years running and I've got the population down to almost nil."

While he didn't like spreading large quantities of insecticide around, he also said that without this trees will get to be so lacking in vigor they will eventually die.

He said it is important to make preparations now for the spraying season next spring because insecticide supplies are in relatively short supply. Some manufacturers are giving up making it because of pressure from public groups against any spraying.

He warned that just about any deciduous tree can be attacked by the spanworm.

Gye said federal scientists are planning to introduce a fly-wasp next year on an experimental basis on government property on Gonzales Hill to see if it will attack the spanworm.

But the question remained whether this insect will establish itself, will multiply and whether it will cause any problem. Even if it passes all these tests, it would take about five to six years to control the spanworm.

He said the spanworm has left hardly any tree alive in some old orchards in Saanich. With the leaves constantly eaten, the trees eventually succumb from starvation.

He said sprayed trees will be protected "95 per cent" for the year in which they are sprayed.

Putting sticky bands around trees to stop the spanworm climbing has not proved very effective because the numbers are so large they just climb over the dead worms. But if every tree in Greater Victoria was banded it would certainly reduce the number of worms.

"It's a pretty catastrophic situation that is arising," works committee chairman Ald. Douglas Watts said.

"We should make preparations now to protect municipal trees. We have the possibility of this municipality almost being changed in its character by being denuded and that's worth more than $14,000. It could totally change the environment of Oak Bay and Greater Victoria.

(Municipal engineer Geoff White estimated spraying of 300 oak trees at $9,000 and spraying of plum and cherry trees on all streets at $5,000. He said $4,000 might be found from existing budget estimates and $10,000 from next year).

Watts also hoped that if Oak Bay shows the initiative, other municipalities, as well as private citizens, might do the same.

"I realize there are citizens who don't want to spray trees at all even though there is no other answer until an alternative is effective. But something has to be done to bridge that gap even if it (the fly-wasp experiment) is effective," he said.

Willows Logs Removal Eyed

Municipal engineer Geoff White said the logs are most numerous where they have been pushed aside for access. The logs piled at right angles are safe, he said.

Ald. Neil Swainson said he had a hunch the estimate for trucking was low and he preferred selective burning. But White said it is not a large number of logs which will be moved and Swainson eventually agreed the logs should be trucked away.

Several citizens have written to council asking that the number of logs be reduced.

"We'll try it out and get a little tidiness to the beach," said committee chairman Ald. Douglas Watts. He urged retention of good logs for people to sit on and to be able to lean on.

California Beckoning Toronto's McLauchlan

TORONTO — Murray McLauchlan, Toronto-based singer and songwriter, says he plans to work more outside Canada, particularly in California.

"It came to me when my last tour was winding up last winter that there isn't any reason to sit in Toronto when I'm not doing a cross-Canada tour, going to the same old places and not getting very much accomplished — that I could go somewhere else," he said.

"I can't just flog my stuff up and down Canada forever. There just aren't enough people to support an artist if he wants to change and develop and expand."

Manager Bernie Finkelstein says he has believed for some time that McLauchlan's image is too parochial and he needs to spend more time around the centres of the music industry such as Los Angeles.

"He's got to be available; to make himself known," Finkelstein said. "He's got a good reputation, but people tend not to think about you if they know you're 3,000 miles away in Canada."

McLauchlan said he will not become another Los Angeles songwriter writing songs about being a Los Angeles songwriter, but added "It feels good to be around other songwriters, to rap with them, to say how do you get your best ideas, or I loved your last album, who'd you work with?

"It's shop talk and that's a creative force for most people. I've tended to exist without it when I stay in Toronto."

Strangler Slur Costly to Ned

LOS ANGELES — Since that morning in February when he was arrested for questioning in the Hillside Strangler murder case, actor Ned York says he has been punched by a friend, dropped by his agent, and forced to go on unemployment benefits.

"Being an actor I always wanted to be famous," York, 33, said. "I never wanted to be infamous. God knows it wasn't a publicity stunt. Who the hell would want that kind of publicity?"

York said people believe he was released not because he was innocent, but because police did not have enough evidence to file charges.

"People look at me with hate," he said. "And it blows me away. Maybe if they catch the strangler, it will stop. There's one thing I really dread — what if they never catch the guy?"

York said that for the first time in eight years he is unemployed. He was earning about $400 a day for his acting jobs, but now must live on $104 weekly unemployment benefits. As a result, he will have to give up the $475-a-month Hollywood Hills home he has been renting for three years, and so far two apartment rental applications have been rejected.

Still Pinching At 103

PERTH, Australia — Oscar Hillberg celebrated his 103rd birthday today still pinching his nurses' bottoms and insisting on his daily kisses from them.

Hillberg, the son of a Latvian schoolmaster who went to sea at 13 and came to West Australia when he was 20, said "working hard all my life is my secret to a long life."

But Mrs. N. Cochrane, the matron at the nursing home in which he lives, said she believes his attitude toward the opposite sex has a lot to do with his longevity.

"He loves an early-morning kiss from the nurses and is still pinching their bottoms when they dress him in the mornings," she said. "He could still run rings around some of the younger residents here."

Hillberg had a couple of beers, several slices of cake and plenty of kisses for his birthday, and four generations of his family, including two great-great-grandchildren were on hand to help him celebrate.

HISTORIC FILMS LOST IN BLAZE

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Fire destroyed about 100,000 films and still photographs Monday, many from the early days of the movie industry, in four buildings on the grounds of the George Eastman House International Museum of Photography.

Officials said that among the losses were prints of Buster Keaton silent movies.

The two-alarm blaze did not damage the main museum building. No injuries were reported.

The fire spread rapidly after it ignited — apparently by spontaneous combustion — in a small cinderblock building, said Fire Chief Anthony Infantolino.

Seymour Nussbaum, the museum's director of maintenance and security, said the chief building destroyed was a two-story, barn-like structure where the museum kept its traveling collection of still photographs.

"I'd estimate $1.5 (million) to $2 million (damage) in that building alone. We only got a couple of crates out," he said.

He was unable to say what stored art works had been lost. But Assistant Curator Jan Buerger said a collection called "Varieties of 19th Century Photographs" might have been destroyed. The collection could not be replaced, he said.

Officials said the museum staff worked after the fire was out to save other collections from water damage.

Satellite to Survey Ocean

WASHINGTON (AP) — An ocean survey satellite which could benefit shipping, fishermen and weather forecasts will be launched in June by the United States National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The satellite, named Seasat-A, is the first ever designed to study the world's oceans. It is to be launched June 24 from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif.

The spacecraft will gather information on surface winds and temperatures, currents, wave heights, ice conditions, ocean topography and coastal storm activity

It is primarily an experimental satellite, but within a few months after launch it will be used in limited commercial application.

Major areas of early Seasat data use will be in directing fishermen to more productive fishing areas and routing ships through more favorable water conditions to save fuel and time.

NASA said Seasat-A will circle the earth 14 times a day at a height of 800 kilometres and its sensors will sweep across 95 per cent of the oceans' surface every 36 hours, providing oceanographers with their first worldwide observation of the seas.

Oceanroutes Inc., which provides worldwide weather routing service to more than 900 ships a month, will undertake two major Seasat investigations involving weather routing and use of satellite data in offshore oil platform operations in the Gulf of Alaska.

Sun Shipbuilding and Drydock Co. will evaluate Seasat data gathered from the Beaufort and Chukchi seas north of Alaska. The company will try to determine if it can use the information in designing ice-breaking vessels which operate in those seas.

BCR Shows Gains

VANCOUVER (CP) — Carloadings and revenues for British Columbia Railway reached record levels in 1977, while the operating loss also showed an improvement over the previous year, the Crown corporation said Monday in its annual report.

Loadings totalled 152,597, 28 per cent higher than 1976 loadings of 119,480. Net tonnage hauled totalled 8,283,169, up from 6,800,934 in 1976.

The corporation said the record performance was the result of improved market conditions for forest products, improved track conditions and the absence of work stoppages on the railway.

Operating revenues rose 51 per cent to $100 million, from $66.9 million in 1976.

The operating loss for 1977 was $8.45 million, down from $21 million the previous year.

The railway's net loss for 1977, after interest and other charges, was $58.3 million, compared with $53.4 million in 1976.

Capital expenditures totalled $39 million, down from $75 million the previous year. The capital budget for 1978 is $37 million, including $18 million earmarked for upgrading the controversial Fort Nelson extension.

BCR vice-president Mac Norris said improvements in the railway's labor situation, operating performance and financial position offer encouraging prospects for the future.

Fishermen 'Left Out On Limb'

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 100 British Columbia fishermen, due to be excluded from commercial fishing at the end of this year, say Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc is unnecessarily delaying their reprieve.

"These men are left out on a limb, not knowing what's going to happen,'' Will Thompson, spokesman for the fishermen who 10 years ago were arbitrarily downgraded to class B licences, said Monday.

The B category, most of which is scheduled to be phased out this year, was created in 1968 to decrease the size of the fishing fleet.

The B fleet, which includes 270 other fishermen who acquired boats knowing of the phase-out and about 200 A-licences who voluntarily dropped to the lower classification, had landings of $2.3 million in 1976, almost all salmon—about 2.3 per cent of total landings.

Through Thomson, the group has been asking to continue fishing for a livelihood. More than half of the original 100 who were downgraded are over the age of 50.

Thomson said LeBlanc personally assured him last January that a decision would be made within 10 days.

Chris Newton, federal fisheries economist, said Monday that 75 per cent of the original group earned less than $3,000 in 1976

Lebanon UN Men Dig In

EL KHIAM, Lebanon (AP) — Norwegian peacekeeping troops are fortifying their base camp, expecting a new outbreak of fighting in explosive south Lebanon.

"We think something may happen soon,'' an officer said as squads dug trenches Monday and roofed them with metal arches covered by layers of sandbags.

The UN troops feared they might become targets of the shells which generally fly over their heads when the Palestinians to the north and Christians to the south shoot at each other.

Women Seeking Unified Court

elizabeth forbes

A Victoria resolution, asking that the provincial government be urged to implement a unified family court throughout the province, was passed at the annual conference of business and professional women's clubs of British Columbia and Yukon, in Kamloops.

Local president Joan Currie points out the Victoria BPW Club sponsored this resolution in the belief it is impossible to segregate and isolate the myriad of family problems known as family law.

"Rather these various components should come before the same tribunal."

Also, "no family matter should enter the formal court process without an effort being made to settle and solve these problems through the process of conciliation."

To substantiate these beliefs she compares the present family court system that in most areas of B.C. appears to be inadequate in structure and staffing, with the unified family court experiment that has been successfully tried out in Surrey-Richmond.

"It provides full counselling facilities and brings federal, provincial and municipal courts under one roof to the benefit of all concerned."

Fourteen resolutions were debated during the two-day conference.

One, presented by the Kelowna Club and passed by the delegates, urges the provincial government to secure the assistance of federal and municipal authorities to provide adequate information for the swift prosecution of importers of pornographic materials and literature.

Another, sponsored by the Cranbrook Club, asked that the B.C. government take steps to implement a 30-day waiting period (instead of the present three months) after which monies paid into small claims courts, whether in part or in full — and that rightfully belong to the plaintiff — can be released.

In the discussion, Mrs. Currie says, it was made clear that at present, even if the plaintiff has paid all costs necessary to commence an action in the small claims court and has taken responsibility for all documents processed through the system up to a garnisheeing order; the defendant has chosen not to dispute any of the documents and money has been paid into court from the garnishing order, it is still held for three months.

Then the plaintiff has to apply for the payment out of court.

Still another resolution, brought forward by the Grand Forks Club, urges the government to enter into discussion with the food processing industry in this province in order to determine the feasibility of identifying fats and oils contained in their products by the degree of saturation.

Background material with this resolution shows that nutritionists and dieticians consistently urge the reduction of saturated fats in the diet.

That the labelling of many food products include the term "vegetable oil" and, in most instances, it is not known whether this vegetable oil is saturated or unsaturated fat.

It was also shown that in this province, including fish, meat, fruit, vegetables and soft drinks, there are 511 food processors.

Theme of the conference was What of Tomorrow? Outgoing provincial president Marge Donovan conducted the sessions.

Luncheon speakers were Helen Verdin of Edmonton, president of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs and Sue Hunter of Surrey, the first woman premier of the B.C. Youth Parliament.

President-elect for the 1978-80 term is Gertrude Demecha of Kamloops. She will take office in July.

Joan Currie and her first vice-president Karen Dube were Victoria BPW Club's delegates at the conference.

She will now compete in the national finals to be held during the CFBPWC biennial convention at Moncton, New Brunswick, in July.

This contest, under auspices of the CFBPWC has been held, country-wide, every two years since 1970.

It is planned to recognize the contribution young women in business and the professions are making in the economic, political, social, cultural and spiritual life of Canada.

Likely Thumbs Down On Sexless English

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — He and she would become an "e" and him and her an "ir" if a new form of "desexed" English is adopted by the Broward County School Board.

Staff members said they proposed the changes to comply with a federal ban against school publications using language that identifies sex.

But the seven board members — six of them women — held out little hope that it will be adopted.

Board chairman Estella Moriarity said Friday, "I'd prefer they didn't make up words. I think the English language is in danger."

In the new "Program Guide for Gifted Education," the staff called for elimination of terms such as "he, she, him, her, his and hers."

Instead, "alternative language has been developed ... to insure non-discrininbation on the basis of sex.

"The symbols 'e' (he-she) and 'ir' (him, his-her) were designed to incorporate the common or uncommon elements of the pronouns; thus they refer to both male and female gender," the guide says.

In order to give teachers and other school personnel the flavor of the new words, the guide provides this example:

"Q-Why did e miss ir bus?

"A-E was afraid to go home.

"Q-Who was e with?

"A-E was by ir self.

"Q-What did e fear about the bus?

"Q-What did the note say that e got from ir teacher?

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: Recently I attended a 30-year reunion of my high school graduation class in a small town in California. My husband came along and I introduced him as "No. 5." My former classmates treated me as though I had leprosy.

Abby, not everybody marries their high school sweethearts, and many of us have not remained in an unhappy marriage just to save face. I grew up in an era when it was taboo to live with someone before marriage, and a sin to try someone out in bed. So consequently I made four mistakes in a row. Luckily I kept looking, and I found my present husband to whom I have been married for 10 years. I've never been happier.

I'm not saying that being married five times is something to be proud of. What I am saying is, it's nothing to be ashamed of either. And aren't we all entitled in this life to our own pursuit of happiness? Sign me . . .

FIFTH TIME AROUND

DEAR FIFTH: I see your point, but when you introduce your husband as "No. 5," you give the impression that you're proud of it.

Don't be defensive. Just introduce your husband by his name — not his number — and you won't need an antidote for leprosy.

DEAR ABBY: I am 28 years old, not married, and I work to support myself. I'm not bad looking and live a fairly normal, happy life, but I'm beginning to wonder if maybe I'm foolish to work the way I do.

What I'm trying to say is, I have a girlfriend who works part-time — like maybe four afternoons a week. She has had three husbands, and now she's single again. She has boyfriends for everything. One pays her rent, another lets her drive his car, another painted and papered her whole house and she bragged that all she gave him was lunch and a few daughterly kisses.

She sees the rent-payer on weekends, and she also has a truck driver staying with her off and on when he's in town. I don't know how she gets away with it. Shouldn't someone tell these chumps the score?

BABE

DEAR BABE: Don't worry about the chumps. Some men don't care what the score is as long as they're in the game.

DEAR ABBY: With the Catholic Church becoming so liberal these past few years, can you tell me whether the church now permits its members to join the Masonic Order? Or is it the Masons who won't take Catholics?

CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: The general prohibition against Catholics joining the Masonic Order remains in force under the present law of the church. I am told that Masons would accept Catholics — if the Catholic Church would permit them to join.

HOW TO USE YOUR CHART:

BIO-DEX READOUT:

0-5 Negative Cycle-	You are in a negative cycle and could be in danger. Keep a low profile.
6-10 Neutral Cycle-	Don't believe everything you hear. Check the facts thoroughly and read the small print.
11-15 Positive Cycle-	Speak your mind if you are asked. Don't pull punches this week.

It was interesting to read in Time magazine recently that an Exxon chemical plant in Texas sends out safety reminders to its 900 employees on triple-critical days. Said a spokesman: "Frankly I don't know if there's any truth to the biorhythm theory, but we think the program will promote safety awareness." That's the whole idea! Use Bio-dex to improve the safety and quality of your life.

A perfect contraceptive method has yet to be found! Meanwhile many efficient ways and means exist.

The 18-page illustrated booklet Current Methods of Contraception explains the physiology of menstruation and conception. It then discusses current contraceptive methods and their effectiveness.

According to this publication, "the Pill" is the most effective and easily used method of birth control currently available. The booklet discusses the three types of oral contraceptives, how they are used and possible side effects.

With regard to intrauterine contraceptive devices, the booklet says that no relationship has been shown between the presence of an I.U.D. and the development of any type of cancer. However, many physicians will not insert an I.U.D. until the woman has had at least two children, because of the risk of pelvic infection.

Also, injections of synthetic progesterone in the female will provide efficient contraception for up to six months. These injections are not yet used, because their effect may be irreversible.

Send your request for the booklet to: Family Planning Division, Health and Welfare Canada, Ottawa, Ont. K1A 0K9.

Cocaine Sniffing Harms the Nose

By L. L. Coleman, M.D.

For the past two years, I've been sniffing small amounts of cocaine. Many of my friends do the same thing at parties. I'm the only one who's in trouble because of it. For the past six weeks, I can't get a breath of air into my nose. It feels like there's a clamp on it. I'm 26 years old. Could this all be just from sniffing cocaine? — Mr. H.S.

Dear Mr. S.:

I hate to start out by chastising you, but at the age of 26 you should have known better than to become ensnared into such a dangerous habit. Apparently, age alone is not the criterion for having good sense. It seems that people of all ages are playing the game of Russian roulette with cocaine. Is it pseudo-sophistication? Or is it self-destruction? Perhaps you know the answer better than I.

Hundreds of people like yourself are toying with their lives and their destiny with the cocaine fad which has reached epidemic proportions.

Cocaine is a dangerous drug. When it is used in surgery as an anesthetic, surgeons apply it to the nose in small quantities and in low concentration. When used as you and your friends do, cocaine at first destroys the tiny cilia (hairs) on the lining of the nose and then continues to burn and injure the delicate lining itself. Before long, crusting and scarring follow. After continued use, many changes occur in the nose. Tissues normally free from each other become bound down with adhesions. Air can barely get through the nose, as well you know.

One of the most difficult problems seen by nose and throat specialists are the chronic perforations, or holes, in the nasal septum that separates one side of the nose from the other.

Numerous operations have been tried to repair these holes and to liberate the adhesions in the nose. Extensive operations that virtually take out everything in the nose — the turbinate bones, and even the nasal septum — have been tried in an effort to open the nasal passageway for the free flow of air. None of them are really satisfactory. Unfortunately, the changes in the nose are not usually reversible. I know this is a sad portrait to be painted by one who ordinarily tries to convey a great sense of hope to readers. My only hope is that my despair about helping you will be relayed to anyone who is tempted to be caught in the ridiculous fad of cocaine sniffing. Your friends would be wise to give up this habit before they, too, are in this predicament.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH: There is no organ in the body that in some way cannot be adversely affected by emotional stress, tensions and inner conflicts. An investment in good health is to learn to modify them.

Divorces Jump

PARIS (Reuter) — Divorce cases in France rose by a record 15 per cent last year to an annual total of 93,000, the justice ministry says. The ministry said the figure, representing the number of divorce proceedings started, is compared with a growth rate of five to six per cent a year between 1970 and 1976.

Computer Helps With Baby

BY ROSEMARY ARMAO

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — A computer that calls new mothers by their first names, gushes over their tiny babies and commiserates about their sore bottoms just might be Dr. Spock's replacement in the next decade.

"Hibaby," the newest Computer Assisted Instruction program offered in Ohio by Ohio State University's College of Medicine, converses with new mothers or nurses, teaching them about infant care and giving advice on family problems like overprotective relatives.

A few minutes of instruction about coding and use of the typewriter-like terminals hooked into the OSU computer is enough to get the system gushing, "So you have a new baby. Congratulations!"

"A boy? Fantastic! I'm sure he'll have his daddy's charm."

Using the baby's name or nickname, and appropriate "he" or "she" pronouns, the computer then goes on to ask a series of pediatric questions like:

"Does that mean Cisco should be allowed to 'cry for crying's sake,' as almost anyone's great Aunt Jane will recommend?" Type in "yes," and the computer will patiently respond:

"No, Rosemary, on the contrary, it is now widely believed that a baby only cries to express a need...to be sure, his bottom isn't as sore as yours is, but he has lots to protest about..."

Hospitals in Canton, Columbus, Zanesville, Dayton, Gallipolis and Kettering are linked to the IBM System 370 at OSU through a Computer Assisted Instruction Regional Education Network.

J. Dale Brubeck, assistant director for Computer Assisted Instruction user services, said Hibaby is the newest of some 450 hours of CAI programming for patients and medical students, one of the largest collections in the world, at the OSU Medical School library.

The system has grown from a one-terminal, one-course beginning in 1967, aided by federal grants and OSU funding, Ms. Brubeck said. It now includes programs ranging from PROSHK (principals of orthopedic surgery for the hip and knee) to JUDI (which helps instructs juvenile diabetics) to MEDREC (how to read patient medical records).

While using the newest technology, Ms. Brubeck said, the programs actually are successful because they employ the same teaching technique Socrates used — dialogue. The computer forces a response from its student, and during the 30 minutes to three hours that a program may run, few can sleep.

TOTS, for example, a program on youngsters that continues where HIBABY leaves off, begins with an appropriate poem: "And So To Bedlam!"

CASE stands for "Computer Aided Simulation of the Clinical Encounter" and the IBM pretends it is a patient to test a doctor's ability to make a diagnosis.

Arms Talk Just Sham, Says China

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — After years of ignoring disarmament negotations, China showed an interest in them in a speech to the UN General Assembly that predicted the Soviet Union will start a third world war.

Speaking Monday at the assembly's special session on disarmament, Foreign Minister Huang Hua condemned the 31-state Geneva disarmament negotiating committee because the Soviet Union and the United States are its co-chairmen. He called for new machinery "truly free of superpower control."

A U.S. disarmament official, declining to be quoted by name, termed Huang's statement "significant" and a "hopeful sign" that China wants to participate in arms negotiations.

Huang complained that in the Geneva committee, the Soviet Union and the United States "talk sham disarmament and obstruct genuine disarmament."

The assembly's main political committee now debates disarmament questions for three months each fall, and the Geneva committee negotiates on them intermittently the rest of the year.

"Machinery responsible for disarmament negotiations should be truly free of superpower control and should be set up through consultations by the governments in the deliberative organ," Huang said.

Huang was cynical about the Soviet-U.S. negotiations for a second SALT agreement limiting the nuclear arsenals of the two superpowers.

"For anyone willing to face up to reality," he said, "the history of the strategic arms limitation talks since they began in 1969 has been a history of strategic arms race between the Soviet Union and the United States."

"In the eight years of SALT, the Soviet Union has brought its once-backward nuclear arsenal up to a par with that of the other superpower."

PM Posturing, Tories Charge

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservatives Monday accused Prime Minister Trudeau of posturing and temporizing in disarmament while NATO forces in Europe should be improved.

Donald Munro (Esquimalt-Saanich) and Stan Darling (Parry Sound-Muskoka) questioned in the Commons whether the prime minister's's speech to the United Nations disarmament conference Friday had any meaning.

Deputy Prime Minister Allan MacEachen replied that the prime minister, by supporting President Carter's neutron bomb stand, put the disarmament ball in the court of the Soviet Union.

Munro questioned whether posturing by Trudeau would have an effect on the Soviet Union strength in Europe or the Cuban operations in Africa.

Trudeau was lecturing sanctimoniously to the rest of the world behind the shelter of a nuclear power across its border.

Munro said there should be some Canadian proposals to improve conventional forces in NATO. He suggested that posturing is more dangerous than readiness in Europe.

Darling criticized the fact that Trudeau had made his disarmament statement at the UN before speaking to Parliament.

Munro said in the Commons that Trudeau should "stop posturing before an international audience and come forward with concrete and positive proposals as to the way Canada is prepared to improve NATO's conventional force posture.

OPERATION IDENTIFICATION

A federally-funded program aimed at helping persons mark belongings for identification purposes to deter theives is under way in Saanich.

Called Operation Identification, the program provides six University of Victoria and Camouson College students 14 weeks employment this summer. The co-ordinator is Bob Pearson, a UVic law student.

Saanich police Sgt. Fred Wooster says the team, which started work May 23, is concentrating on schools, marking all articles which could be stolen.

Time permitting, the group also will mark valuables at construction and industrial sites.

The program is offered through the federal solicitor-general department's Job Core 78 project. Saanich police are sponsors and act only in an advisory capacity.

Wooster says Operation Identification is not open to individual homeowners, who can get help marking valuables through the police force's Neighborhood Watch program.

Crackdown On Wrecks

Saanich council Monday night approved a zoning bylaw amendment which would prohibit unlicensed vehicles and those lacking inspection stickers from being stored on residential property, unless kept in a garage or carport.

In past, Saanich residents have been allowed to keep one unlicensed vehicle per residential lot.

Only Ald. John Mika and Ald. Robert Cameron opposed the adoption of the bylaw, following a brief public hearing where two residents spoke against the proposal.

Hartland Road resident Gary Mooney said while he supported council's intent in cleaning up visually offensive properties which are strewn with junk vehicles, the proposed bylaw would cause more problems than it would solve.

"You will be turning hundreds of people into criminals and sneaks . . . they will be trying to hide their illegal vehicles," he warned.

Mooney said unlicensed, untested vehicles should be permitted provided they are not visible from any point outside the property where they are stored.

And he stressed that he meant normal visibility, not that achieved by clambering on rooftops, scaling ladders or other such absurd means.

The bylaw in its present form would tend to punish residents whose hobby is restoring old cars, he claimed.

Mayor Mel Couvelier replied that the bylaw was drafted in response to public demand, so that appropriate action could be taken against chronic bylaw offenders.

"We have to give our staff the tools to do a proper enforcement job. Otherwise they are helpless and we look like ninnies," he added.

Council also approved several other zoning bylaw amendments Monday night, including the rezoning of property at Tolmie and Rutledge for a 64-unit apartment block to be built by Stanrick Developments Ltd.

Aldermen were told that the heritage value of an 1880-vintage brick home — one of four older houses on the site — is now being assessed.

Research Experts Sought

Victoria should have an environmental advisory commission to review all city projects that may have an adverse impact on the environment, Ald. Robin Blencoe said today.

In a report to the mayor and council, Blencoe said that currently the city does not have the expertise required to make informed decisions on environmental matters.

He recommended a committee be struck to initiate research and education projects as well as prepare environmental impact statements.

Research needed, he said, includes finding alternatives to chemical spraying, a study of possible alternative energy sources for the city and investigation of solid waste management techniques, recycling and garbage separation methods, and energy conservation.

Blencoe also said he wants council to take another look at the city's use of 2,4-D and weed control programs.

Slide Show Warns Teen Drinkers

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

A 16-minute slide and tape show is being shown to this year's high school graduates in Saanich as part of a police initiative to curb impaired driving by teen-agers.

The show, titled That Particular Day, is a slick and professional local production based on a true story of a 17-year-old who smashes up his car — and himself — driving while drunk.

Produced by Rich Mole, Paul Mann and Alan Perry of CFAX, the project sprang from an idea conceived last fall by Constable Allan Lamb, a member of Saanich police's eight-man community service team.

With the Greater Victoria Counter-Attack Committee chipping in funds, the project was completed in five weeks. Mole wrote the script, Perry took the photos and Mann did the voice-over commentary.

The Kiwanis Club of Victoria donated $1,800 worth of equipment to the police to use in showing the presentation.

The police force's community service team leader, Sgt. Fred Wooster, says officers intend eventually to take the show to every school in the municipality, but between now and the end of the school year will concentrate on high school graduation classes.

The show premiered last week at Spectrum secondary school before 900 students.

"It went over really well," says Wooster. "You could have heard a pin drop."

What gives That Particular Day its strongest appeal is its local flavor. Students can identify with the central figure, Ron Jackson.

Jackson drops out of school after breaking up with his girl and gets a job in a local supermarket. He pours his money into his proudest possession, a 1972 Buick Skylark. But he soon discovers his new-found independence has brought him nothing but loneliness. All his friends are still in school. He turns to drinking. One night he sideswipes a parked vehicle, and fleeing the scene loses control of his car and ends up in a ditch.

The slides shows Jackson crumpled in the front seat of his overturned car; his face is bloody and bruised. There's the trip to the hospital, the visit by police, the court appearance, and the loss of pride and respect.

But Jackson is lucky. He recovers from his injuries; his parents are supportive; and the show ends on an optimistic note that Ron has learned his lesson.

Wooster says most films on impaired driving are made in the United States and depict scenes of horror — fatalities and gross injuries.

"We wanted to get away from that approach," Wooster says. "We wanted something kids could associate with. And that isn't death. All kids feel immortal. Death is the furthest thing from their minds.

"But more particularly we wanted a show with a local taste. It's one of the things we've been lacking for years."

He says the reality of the show is enhanced by Ron's situation — his keen interest in cars, his problems over a girl — and plays on the fear youths have of getting their faces scarred in an accident.

In addition, Ron's parents are understanding and helpful; and that, says Wooster is more generally the case than otherwise.

Wooster says school principals and counsellors in Saanich who have seen the presentation have reacted extremely positively.

There's a growing interest outside the municipality. A Victoria high school principal has asked for the show to be presented at his school and so has a principal in Duncan.

Wooster says copies of the show are being made available at only the cost of reproducing the slides and tape, about $40.

The slide show is the second one that Mole, Mann and Perry have jointly produced for Saanich police.

If a title were required for this deal, I would suggest: "He won because he lost." The deal arose a few years ago in the Spingold Team-of-Four Championships. Sitting South was George Mittleman, of Montreal.

Neither side vulnerable.

Opening lead: Six of ♣.

West got off to the best lead for his side when he opened a club. South won the trick with his ace, after which he led the queen of spades. West followed suit with the four-spot as East won the trick with his ace. East returned a club, hoping his partner had been dealt a singleton club. When South captured this lead with dummy's jack, he figured to be in dummy for the first and last time.

So he led the king of clubs, hoping that each of the defenders would follow suit. On this lead he discarded the four of diamonds. Unhappily for him West ruffed with the deuce of spades.

West next led the ace of hearts which, as will be observed, was a mistake which turned out to be costly. Mittleman ruffed this lead with the seven of trumps, after which he cashed the king of trumps. On this lead West followed suit with the five of trumps as East played the trump six.

At this point the only outstanding trump was the eight-spot — and Mittleman hoped that whichever defender possessed this card had also been dealt the diamond king.

After ruffing the heart ace with the spade seven, declarer then led the carefully preserved three of trumps and East was forced to win the trick with the eight. East was now end played: Whether he returned a diamond or a club, declarer could not be prevented from reaching the dummy. At the table, East chose to play back a diamond, South followed with a low diamond, and the board's queen won the trick. On the queen of clubs South discarded his remaining low diamond. His only losers were three trump tricks.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast
Wednesday, May 31
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 10): Strength, power on your side. Know it, be direct, original, confident enough to exhibit pioneering qualities. You get your way; be sure you know "which way" you want to proceed. Capricorn, Cancer figure prominently — so does the number 8.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Finish what you start, make contact with those who can aid in production, distribution, display. Make illusions work to your advantage. Maintain aura of glamour, mystery. You could be working with film or the media.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Creativity, affair of heart dominate. Personal magnetism attracts "interesting" member of opposite sex. Leo, Aquarius figure prominently. Strive for new starts in new directions. Wish is fulfilled. What you hoped and worked for will materialize.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Follow through on hunch; teach, learn, clarify sense of direction. Aquarian could help show you the way. One "in charge" would prefer unorthodox procedure. Open lines of communication. Permit logic equal time with emotional responses.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Leave details for another time. Grasp overall view. Gemini, Sagittarius figure prominently — so does the number 3. Travel, publications, special messages, communications are featured. Social life accelerates. Keep diet, health resolutions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Build on solid base; get money facts straight. Promises are fine, but request and obtain them in writing. Aquarius, Scorpio, Leo persons figure prominently — so does the number 4. You receive credit report. Be thorough in evaluation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Check documents, contracts, agreements — if commitment is made, be positive it is a two-way street. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius could be in scenario. Change, variety, travel, messages, written material featured. Relationship is "serious."

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You regain "comfortable niche." Panic, emergency is over. Home is safe haven. Know it and act accordingly. Taurus, Libra figure prominently — so does the number 6. Behind scenes information is available. Believe it or not, all you have to do is ask!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Define terms, be sure of meanings, don't permit others to quote you out of context. Pisces, Virgo figure prominently. Accent on romance, change, creativity, children. Illusion, glamour, unorthodox conclusions, a new look at others — and yourself.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Construct, remodel, substantiate claims. Bring priorities into focus. Highlight security, home, insurance, guarantees. Another Capricorn — and a Cancer — play key roles. Stick with number 8. You are given boost up ladder by "surprise source."

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Finish rather than initiate projects. Deal with Aries, Libra persons. Accent on relatives, trips' visits, "impertinent letters." You get proverbial second chance to dramatize and illustrate objectives. Make the most of it!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Emphasis on returns from efforts, investments. Permit creativity to flower. Leo, Aquarius persons figure prominently. New approach means gain, profit, even love. If you follow hackneyed procedures, the result can be embarrassment and loss.

IF MAY 31 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are restless, dynamic, stubborn and were separated in psychological or literal sense from one or both parents at a relatively early age. In October, much recent unhappiness, disillusionment will be erased. Aquarius, Scorpio, Leo persons play important roles in your life. Last year's domestic adjustment works out — you are going through something similar to "growing pains" now. You'll survive and win!

Spill Clean-Up Disputed

DUNCAN — The Cowichan Valley Regional District Board has been told that clean-up of oil spills is the responsibility of regions and municipalities and not the federal government.

"No municipality should expect reimbursement for a clean-up operation from any federal department unless that municipality has an unequivocal statement from an authorized federal spokesman that the munucupality will be reimbursed by the department concerned," Environment Minister Len Marchand told the CVRD in a letter.

Marchand explained that there is no federal legislation permitting any level of government to clean polluted shorelines, then claim expenses from federal resources.

The board was told by B.A. Heskin, regional director-general, Enivironment Canada, that it is the polluter's resonsibility to clean up any spills.

In cases where the cause of a spill is unknown, Heskin added, local contingency plans should be devloped and put into action.

"Such plans now exist in the Burrard Inlet and the Victoria area," he said.

The board, however, expressed concern at the lack of clean-up facilitieis on the West Coast.

"It's obvious that the municipalities and regional districts are going to be stuck with the bill for clean-ups," regional director Buddy Russell said. "I think we should be making objections to the federal government on the lack of facilities for oil spill clean-up on the West Coast."

The CVRD then moved that Marchand be advised that clean-up is the resonsibility of the federal government in view of the fact that Ottawa controls navigable waters within the 200-mile limit.

Before the Judge

Seven persons appeared in Victoria provincial court Monday in connection with the April 15 rampage at the Jordan River prison camp which completely destroyed an office-stores-gymnasium complex.

Paul Reuben Cardiff, 25, and William Patrick Puglis, 20, were charged with arson and John Richard Marlow, 20, was charged with possession of a weapon, a pick-axe. Puglis, Marlow, 26-year-old Wayne Frederick Leonard, 30-year-old Harry Price, 32-year-old Alfred Eugene Johnny and 19-year-old Stephen Michael Filgate were all charged with mischief causing wilful damage to Jordan River forestry camp facilities.

All indicated to Judge Blake Allan that they wanted time to consult with lawyers and Leonard, Price and Marlow were remanded to next Monday for pleas and election of trial method in Marlow's case. The remainder were remanded to next Tuesday.

A 23-year-old woman, one of three persons ordered to stand higher-court trial on a charge of robbery with violence Friday by Judge William Ostler, was charged Monday with breaking and entering and use of a stolen credit card.

Kathryn Eileen Piercy, 2211 Shelbourne, was charged with a break-in of another suite at the same address Saturday and use of a Sweet 16 credit card.

Defence lawyer Robert Metzger asked that the woman be remanded to today for bail hearing and election.

Piercy, 31-year-old Frank Woodrow Richards, also of 2211 Shelbourne, and 23-year-old Delores Isobel Granfield, 1843 Island Highway, were charged with the holdup of a C and C Taxi driver May 8 in Colwood.

Also remanded in custody for one day was 18-year-old Wesley James Kennedy of no fixed address.

Kennedy was charged with theft and possession of $1,366 from the Young Men's Christian Association, 880 Courtney, Thursday.

He is also charged with mischief causing wilful damage to a room at the Swiftsure Inn, 427 Belville.

Legal-aid lawyer Brian MacKenzie asked for the remand for a bail hearing and election today.

Two men from Prince Rupert were fined a total of $435 after they were caught Sunday night siphoning gasoline in Oak Bay.

Stephen Joseph Dumas, 20, and Aldo Peter Venditelli, 19, both pleaded guilty to theft under $200 and Venditelli also pleaded guilty to separate charges of driving without valid insurance and licence plates.

Crown counsel Don Laughton told the court the pair were spotted at about 11:20 p.m. siphoning gasoline from in front of 1827 Lulie. Laughton said Oak Bay police found the two men 10 minutes later at a parking lot at 2174 Cadboro Bay with a gas can, funnel and length of hose.

Allan levied fines of $75 each for the gas theft and gave Venditelli further fines of $250 for driving without valid insurance and $35 for driving without valid plates.

A 17-year-old who pleaded guilty to possession of three stolen rings valued at $610 was remanded until June 21 for a pre-sentence report and sentence.

Paul Vitor Wayne Holm, 902 Caledonia, changed his plea and crown counsel Wayne Smith told the court Holm was seen throwing the three rings onto a roof March 7. Smith said the rings were recovered and found to be stolen.

Defence lawyer William McElmoyle said Holm was at a party when someone asked him to hold the rings.

Philip Cespedes-Holt, 17, of 1260 Balmoral, elected trial by judge without jury and waived his preliminary hearing rights on a charge of breaking and entering.

Cespedes-Holt, who was denied bail Friday by Judge Harold Alder, is charged with the May 22 break-in at St. Patricks school, 2368 Trent.

Allan warned a 17-year-old he was receiving a light sentence "this time" before handing out a suspended sentence and 12 months probation.

Michael Robin Zander pleaded guilty April 19 to theft under $200 and was remanded until Monday for a pre-sentence report.

Zander and 35-year-old Edward Alan Base were originally charged with robbery with violence. They were charged with the robbery and beating of 56-year-old Kenneth Langston, 1409 Camosun, at about 3:30 a.m. March 16 after Langston had been followed from Paul's Restaurant, 1900 Douglas, to a construction site in the 700-block Pandora. Langston apparently suffered a head wound requiring 30 stitches as well as a severe injury to his right eye and lost about $80 in the holdup.

However, after defence lawyer Barry Mah Ming and Laughton both told Allan that Zander was an "easily-led" youth, the judge decided on the lenient sentence. Allan noted that the facts of the case would support a robbery charge.

BELTS HAVE NO BEARING - FULTON

VANCOUVER (CP) — Justice E. Davie Fulton of the British Columbia Supreme Court said Monday that new seatbelt legislation has little effect on contributory negligence claims.

He told a seminar sponsored by the B.C. Road Safety Co-ordinating Council that the key factor in establishing if an accident victim has contributed to his own injuries by not wearing a seatbelt is whether it can be proven that the victim would have had less severe injuries had he been belted.

Thief's 'Stupidity' Puzzles Judge

A 33-year-old city man was given a suspended sentence in county court Monday and placed on probation for two years by Judge Montague Drake.

Norman Douglas Taylor was found guilty by a jury March 22 of possession of a stolen rifle and he pleaded guilty to possession of a sewing machine, outboard motor and chain saw knowing them to have been stolen. All offences occurred last Oct. 4.

Drake said Taylor's stupidity was hard to understand but, after hearing that the goods had been recovered and defence submissions, he added that it was not in the interest of either the public or Taylor that a jail sentence be imposed.

He warned Taylor that sentence was simply being suspended for two years and that if he got into trouble he would be brought back to court and dealt with differently.

How many times have you decided to quit smoking?

At one time or another most people who smoke talk about giving it up.

Some, we don't know how many, actually stop. Others are simply not ready to lose forever the enjoyment a cigarette can bring.

If you are one of those who still value the pleasure of smoking, you might want to consider Vantage.

When you smoke Vantage you get the full, rich flavour of Virginia tobaccos. The Vantage filter, which is based on a new design concept, lets real taste come through. Vantage gives you so much of what you want in a cigarette with a lot less of what you may not want.

Vantage is not a heavy drag cigarette. You don't have to work hard getting the smoke through so that all the joy of smoking is lost.

Rich taste and easy draw. Good reasons for any thoughtful smoker to consider the new cigarette called Vantage.

We suggest you try a pack.

Soap Used on Worm

Cotoneaster web worm appears to be troublesome this spring and gardeners are going around in circles trying to find a spray that will have some effect. They are not likely to be successful judging from past experience.

This web worm seems to be limited to one species of cotoneaster, cotoneaster horizontalis and its hybrids, a plant much used in rockeries and at one time highly recommended for training along the walk beneath the front windows of a residence.

That was before the web worm appeared. It was not long before it spread to all local gardens and nurseries.

Nurserymen soon had hundreds of damaged plants and make a concentrated effort to control the pest. We were advised to use sprays, which we did, but to no avail.

When the worm hatches it immediately spins the web for protection, which is necessary since it is fully exposed with no heavy foliage for protection.

Not only does the web prevent birds and other predators from reaching the worm, it is also completely waterproof. No matter how much spray is applied it just runs off the waterproof web and ends up in the soil.

The next suggestion was to use a spray compatible with nicotine sulphate (Black-leaf 40), adding two teaspoonsfull of nicotine to each gallon of spray. Hopefully the nicotine fumes would kill the worms. But it didn't work.

As a last resort, Volck oil spray was suggested. It was thought the oil would smother the web, exclude air and thus kill the worms.

In heavy concentrations it worked and we thought we had the solution to the problem. However, a week after application the worms were dead and the foliage was dying also. The heavy concentration of oil clogged the pores of the tiny leaves on this species and left us with nursery beds full of dead plants.

So we burned the plants, eliminated them from our price lists and catalogues, and grew no more. That was some 20 years ago.

However we did come up with a control the home gardener could us. It was a soapy solution applied with a one-inch wide paint brush.

Fels-naptha bar soap was run over a coarse grater and a handful of the pieces placed in a sealer and covered with boiling water. This produced a soap jelly. About two teaspoonsful of the jelly were mixed into a quart of cold water.

The paint brush was dipped into the mixture and "scrubbed" along the branch to remove the web and some of the worms, both of which end up in the soap solution when the brush is redipped.

After clearing the web, the soap solution was heavily applied over the branch from top to bottom, and any worms which were left were picked up with the wet brush and drowned in the solution.

One-half hour later, the plants were gently sprayed with clear water to remove the lye from the soap which can damage leaves.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your adveertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Friday; 8:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

9 Provinces Battle Ottawa

By PAUL WHITELAW
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — A constitutional showdown over law enforcement powers got under way Monday in the Supreme Court of Canada, with Ottawa and nine provinces at loggerheads over which level of government can make criminal prosecutions.

Canada's highest court is being asked by Ottawa to overturn an Alberta appeal court judgment that provincial attorneys-general have exclusive right to prosecute all criminal matters.

The British North America Act — the country's constitution — gives the federal government authority to enact criminal laws and the provinces the power over administration of justice.

Traditionally, the provinces have handled all prosecutions under the federal Criminal Code while Ottawa has prosecuted crimes under federal statutes such as the Narcotics Control Act.

The Alberta ruling — arising out of drug trafficking charges brought by a federal prosecutor without provincial permission — upset that traditional division of jurisdiction. As a result, federal prosecutors in Alberta have been appointed agents of the provincial attorney-general as well so they can act in prosecutions until the Supreme Court resolves the issue.

The provinces are worried that a victory by the federal government in the Supreme Court would be the cutting edge of a sword, allowing Ottawa to bypass provincial attorneys-general in prosecuting virtually all criminal matters.

That's why nine provinces — all but Manitoba — have intervened on behalf of Calgary lawyer Milton Harradance, who successfully appealed in the Alberta Supreme Court appellate division to halt prosecution against Patrick Arnold Hauser at Red Deer. It is not known why Manitoba is remaining on the sidelines.

As the court began hearing the federal appeal Monday, Toronto lawyer J.J. Robinette stated that Ottawa has the power to take over all criminal prosecutions.

Robinette, representing the federal government, added that it might be unwise for Ottawa to consider taking over all prosecutions despite its power to do so.

But he was making the point — in response to a question by Mr. Justice Louis-Philippe Pigeon — that Ottawa, at a minimum, is within its constitutional rights in launching prosecutions under federal statutes without asking provincial permission.

Robinette argued that Parliament's "exclusive jurisdiction" to make federal laws carries with it the pwer to determine the manner of enforcement and prosecution.

Harradance, the colorfol onetime Alberta Conservative leader, countered that Ottawa is violating a provincial right if it does not seek the permission of a provincial attorney-general before beginning any criminal prosecution.

Such a move is "ultra vires" or unconstitutional because it excludes the provinces from a "supervisory" or administrative role, he maintained.

MAIL 'CRAZIES' CHASING FIRM

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — One of Canada's largest seed companies will no longer invest money in this country because of poor postal service and uncertainty of the Canadian dollar, the company's president said Monday.

John Gale, president of Stokes Seeds Ltd., said in an interview his company lost $100,000 in business during a postal strike several years ago and he believes another lengthy strike is imminent.

"The problem is that 35 crazies in the postal union are disrupting service across the country," Gale said. "It wouldn't matter if they were paid $1 million—they'd still be discontented and they'd still strike.

"The Canadian post office could put us out of business if there was a January or February strike and that's a risk we can't afford to take. We've lost thousands of dollars over the last eight years due to strikes."

Gale said he intends to keep the company's head office in Canada, along with its packing operation. The firm's mail order office will continue operating out of Buffalo, N.Y., he said.

Stokes employs about 150 workers in Canada. Of $4.5 million in sales last year, $3.5 million was through the mail-order operation, Gale said.

91 Years a Victorian

She was Mrs. Hugh (Sarah) Tyrrell of Saanich Peninsula Hospital, a daughter of Icelandic parents born in Pembina, North Dakota, Dec. 1, 1881, and brought to Victoria at the age of five.

As a little girl she recalled taking refuge in the cellar when a prairie fire threatened their homestead. She was active in community work in Victoria, was one of the first legal secretaries in the province before 1900, and was the first treasurer of Queen Alexandra Solarium.

Mrs. Tyrrell was past-president of the Victoria Women's Institute and a life member of B.C. Women's Institute. In 1967 she received the Canadian centennial medal and B.C. pioneer medal.

She was predeceased by her first husband, William Peden, in 1948 and also by her second husband Hugh Tyrrell, daughters Margaret and Kathleen, and son Ernest.

Survivors are daughters Eleanor Sowerby of Sidney and Anna Stodart of Ladysmith; sons William (Torchy), of Northbrook, Ill., and Douglas, Victoria; a sister, Sigurlena Thompson, of Orcas Island; 18 grandchildren, 46 great-grandchildren and four great-great-grandchildren.

A funeral service will be conducted Friday at 1:30 p.m. by Rev. William Z. van Druten at McCall's chapel, with burial at Royal Oak.

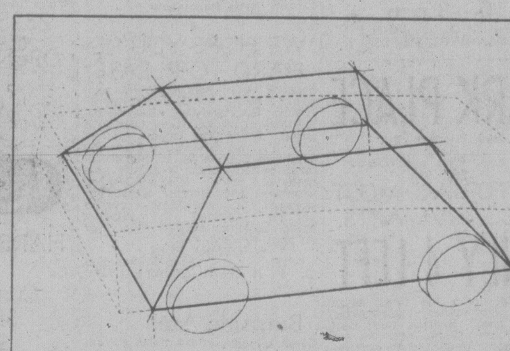
THE CIVIC MINDED IMITATORS STILL HAVEN'T IMITATED OUR CIVIC MINDED PRICE.



The revolutionary trapezoid design was first successfully introduced to Canada by Honda. Since then several others have copied the concept.

If imitation is the sincerest form of flattery, then we are sincerely flattered.

The trapezoidal design concept that was the basis for our Civic has now also become the basis for several other cars. They must have noticed that by using the trapezoid we maximized our interior space and minimized our exterior space.

Obviously some of our competitors have become very Civic minded in terms of design. But none of them have become Civic minded in terms of price.

If you examine the manufacturers' suggested retail prices you'll find that a Honda Civic sedan still sells for less than any other popular car. And if you think that means you're getting less car then we'd like to invite you in for a comparison.

The first thing we'd like you to look at is the front wheel drive. The engine mounted transversely over the driving wheels improves traction. It also eliminates the need for a driveshaft thus freeing up more space inside the car. Ask about the standard features. Not the whistles and toys that are there to dazzle you, but the features that are meaningful to the operation and design of the car. You'll find the Civic sedan comes with independent MacPherson strut suspension on all four wheels. You'll also find a 4-speed transmission, carpeting, tinted glass, rear window defroster and fully reclining bucket seats.

Then check the quality and finish of the car. Look at the seams and panels and see how well they are joined. The closer you inspect a Civic the closer you are to becoming a Civic owner.

Then check the price again. Imitating our Civic minded design is one thing, imitating our Civic minded price is another. Honda Civic Sedan $3,795.

*Manufacturers suggested list price for the 2-door Civic sedan. Price does not include freight, provincial taxes, licence or dealer preparation charges. Dealer may sell for less.

Record Heroin Seizure

Two men and a woman were to appear in provincial court this afternoon charged in connection with the seizure of a half million dollars worth of heroin, the largest single haul in Greater Victoria history.

John Alexander McLeod, 26, his wife Gail, 25, both of Esquimalt and Alfred Grant Cooley, 37, of Sooke were arrested Monday morning following a police raid on a residence in Esquimalt.

An RCMP drug squad spokesman said two ounces of extremely high quality white heroin were found on a table in the residence after officers burst through the doors. The drug had a value of $500,000 on the illicit market, he said.

The three have been charged with conspiracy to traffic in a narcotic and possession of a narcotic for purposes of trafficking. The woman has also been charged with importing.

Meanwhile, in Vancouver undercover operations have resulted in the arrest of five persons and two seizures of the drug LSD with a total street value of $160,000 — the largest in Vancouver history, RCMP said.

Police said the arrests were made after undercover officers bought the hallucinogen drug. Different undercover operations, both running only about two months and classed as short-term, resulted in the LSD sales.

"We've noticed in the street action lately and upswing in LSD," a police spokesman said.

Texas Refinery Inferno

TEXAS CITY, Tex. (AP) — A fiery explosion at an oil refinery on the Gulf of Mexico early today touched off a chain reaction of blasts that blew up two 55,000-gallon gasoline tanks and killed three workers, plant officials said. Twelve others were injured.

The heat was so intense that firefighters said they were unable to get closer than within two blocks of Texas City Refining Inc. A fireball with flames 60 metres high was visible from Houston 56 kilometres to the northwest.

Fire officials said about 100 families were evacuated from their Texas City homes as a precaution.

Cause of the explosion has not been determined.

Fred Gross, supervisor for the Texas City Ambulance Service, said he was in bed when the first explosion rocked the ambulance service building.

"I thought at first it might be a tornado, then I looked out the window and it was as if it were daylight. I thought I was engulfed in a fireball," Gross said.

3 Killed In Blaze

A man and his two daughters were killed early today when fire broke out in their house in Duncan.

Duncan RCMP said the bodies of Kenneth Phillip Charlie, 29, Gina Louise, 8, and Loretta Lynn, 7, were found in a bedroom of the house at 247 Ingram.

Members of the Duncan volunteer fire department quickly extinguished the blaze which was spotted by a passer-by at 3:45 a.m.

Cause of the fire is not known.

An official of the provincial fire marshall's office was expected to arrive at the scene later today to begin an investigation.

THOSE CRAZY DRIVERS!

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — A lot of Mexico City bus drivers should be in psychiatric hospitals instead of behind the wheel, according to a doctor in the capital's police department.

Dr. Salvador Jiménez of the police and transit rescue squad says psychiatric tests have shown "a large number" of the city's bus drivers to be psychopathic and aggressive.

Most traffic accidents in Mexico City — where 1.5 million vehicles clog the streets — can be blamed on the drivers' violent inclinations, he said.

The police department will begin requiring psychiatric tests as a prerequisite for driver's licenses renewals within a few months, Jimenez said.

CRITICISM GREETS PROGRAM

Heroin Bill 'Very Scary'

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

The Heroin Treatment Act introduced in the legislature Monday will commit persons evaluated as addicts to three years in a compulsory treatment program.

But Health Minister Bob McClelland, contending it is a health bill aimed at medical solutions for heroin addiction, said the program is humane and takes care of people's civil rights in every way.

Under the new law the severest cases will be "sentenced" to six months' care at the single compulsory treatment centre at Brannan Lake near Nanaimo.

Up to 150 addicts at a time will take their withdrawal treatment there.

Estimates of the number of addicts in B.C. range up to 15,000, McClelland said, but admitted his ministry has been using a conservative figure of 6,800.

The ministry is expecting 2,500 addicts a year to enter the program.

The cabinet will appoint special panels in five regions of the province — probably Vancouver Island, the Lower Mainland, Central Interior, the Kootenays and the north.

The panels will contain at least two medical practitioners and a decision to commit a heroin user to the program has to be unanimous. If there is any doubt, the suspect is set free.

Police, without a warrant, can give notification that a person they believe to be dependent on heroin must appear at an evaluation centre at a set time, between 24 and 48 hours.

If the suspect fails to attend, police can obtain a warrant and take the person into custody for an appearance at the evaluation centre.

If the suspect is evaluated as an addict, the committee can order police to pick him or her up — without a warrant — for delivery to a treatment centre.

See CONFINEMENT Page 8

The Heroin Treatment Act presented in the legislature Monday is somewhat toned down from earlier drafts, but is still "a very scary piece of legislation," the president of the B.C. Civil Liberties Association said today.

Jim Dybikowski said one of Bill 18's most worrisome aspects is that there is no requirement that a suspected heroin user be present while the evaluation determines if he should be committed to the three-year compulsory treatment program.

All justice systems in western civilization grant the right of a person to be present during any hearing that might deprive him of his freedom, and to be represented by legal counsel and to have the right to cross-examine witnesses, Dybikowski said.

He said the Kafkaesque evaluation panels are worse than the recent trial of Soviet dissident Uri Orlov. He at least attended the hearings and was permitted to question witnesses.

Other normal legal procedures missing from the bill include a requirement by the evaluation panel to notify a person of his right to appeal.

And the appeal itself is only over commitment to the program, not to the type of treatment a person will be subjected to.

Dybikowski said the type of treatment outlined in the act doesn't appear to take the promised medical approach.

For example, the act contains no provision for a doctor to stop treatment once a patient is committed to a program.

Confidentiality is another area of concern, he said.

The act that set up the Alcohol and Drug Commission provided for strict confidence of all information related to a patient. Now it appears the ADC can give that information to the evaluation panels to help them make their decision as to whether or not a person is drug-dependent.

This information could end up in the courts if the person appeals a commitment order.

Dybikowski predicts this is where the constitutionality of the act will be tested in the courts.

One noticeable change in the present form of the act is that the evaluation panels must agree the user is dependent on drugs. Earlier drafts of the legislation would have committed a person to the program if the panel felt the person was a user who appeared to be in need of treatment.

IT'S BEAUTY AND BULLET

BEIRUT (AP) — As the jury of the Miss Lebanon pageant emerged from the Al Bustan Hotel, relatives of one of the losing contestants drew guns and opened fire, setting off a fracas that eventually had to be broken up by the army.

A week later, at the same Lebanese mountain resort, a counter pageant was disrupted when one of the losing contestants grabbed a microphone and began to insult the jury, the winner and the winner's family.

"The ensuing brawl sent chairs and bottles flying in the air, men and women traded insults and plates, and, what was worse, stray bullets echoed in and around the hall," said organizer George Dfouni. Police said several persons were injured.

The unbecoming mix of bullets and beauty as this violence-wracked nation tried to choose its representatives to the Miss Universe and Miss World pageants has prompted the government to prohibit all unauthorized beauty contests. But passions have not cooled.

"Today, the girls will most likely avoid beauty contests because they wonder which contest is legal and which is illegal, and, above all, they don't know if they will come out of the contest alive," said Raymond Loire, head of the officially-sanctioned National Committee for Miss Lebanon Contests.

The face-off is between Loire's group and the rival Lebanese Committee for Miss Lebanon Elections, a maverick group set up by Dfouni.

Dfouni, who owns a beauty salon on Beirut's fashionable Hamra Street, claims that previous beauty contests have been the "focus of currption and profiteering," and insists he is "better acquainted with beauty" than Loire.

"Everyone started trying to make money out of the events one way or the other, selling lottery tickets, organizing auctions and promoting hotels," Dfouni said in an interview. "Beauty contests became more commercial than artistic. The standards have fallen to their lowest level ever."

So far, the ministry of tourism has refused to recognize Dfouni's contest, and Loire has vowed to fight it out and convince the nation that beauty and gunfire do not mix.

Valley Farmers Cited In UIC Hours Fraud

THE BYRDS
MY DRIVING INSTRUCTOR SAID I WAS HIS MOST SPECTACULAR FAILURE.
RODEWALT ©1978 TSB

VANCOUVER (CP) — Employment and Immigration Commission investigators are probing an unemployment insurance fraud scheme in the Fraser Valley, a commission spokesman said Monday.

Investigators said Monday that some farmers claim their employees work more hours than they actually do — allowing the employers to collect excessive tax rebates and the employees to collect unearned unemployment insurance benefits.

Commission spokesman Murray Perry said the investigators found evidence last year that resulted in charges against three Matsqui-area raspberry farmers.

Harbhajan Hayre, his brother Gurmit and sister Baldish Deol are on trial in provincial court charged with conspiracy to commit fraud.

The Crown charges that, in the summer of 1976, the defendants demanded and got kickbacks of between $200 and $300 each from many of their employees in return for falsifying work records to indicate the employees had worked eight weeks instead of seven. The extra week made them eligible for unemployment insurance benefits.

Crown prosecutor Wallace Oppal said between 30 and 40 workers were employed on the farm.

Black State Aid Slated

By MURRAY MARDER
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — France and the United States, with different national constraints on their actions, have agreed to help African nations defend themselves against "destabilizing external forces" if those nations put together "some operative arrangement," French Foreign Minister Louis de Guiringaud said Monday.

That was agreed upon by Presidents Carter and Valery Giscard d'Estaing in their White House dinner meeting Friday night, Guiringaud confirmed in an interview with The Washington Post.

Soviet-Cuban actions in Africa, he said, are producing "destabilizing tensions" across the continent.

France already has shown its "willingness to back those African states who are willing to defend themselves," Guiringaud said, referring especially to the parachute drop by French Legionnaires on the then-besieged coppermining center of Kolwezi in Zaire's Shaba Province.

He said that Carter "has shown a willingness to do the same — as much as present congessional legislation permits. He also has indicated his intention to get from Congress more flexibility."

In an interview at the residence of the French ambassador here Guiringaud said that during the last two years "we see Cuban forces — regular forces — and large bodies of Soviet military advisers active in Africa — in Angola, in the Horn of Africa, in Mozambique, and we see the hand of the Cubans in many of the destabilizing tensions which we have to face in Africa.

Ottawa Sizzles At 31°

OTTAWA (CP) — A record heat wave closed at least five city schools, one bank and caused faucets to steam as temperatures soared to a sizzling 31 degrees celsius Monday.

Environment Canada officials said the searing 31.9 degrees experienced Saturday and then the 32.6 degrees Sunday melted the former 1939 record of 29.4 degrees for both May 26 and May 27 and warned that at least one more hot day is in store before an expected cold front moves in Wednesday.

Tellers at a downtown branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia were forced to leave their wickets after the building's temperature climbed to a sweltering 39 degrees due to broken air conditioning equipment.

Ottawa firefighters were summoned to an apartment building Sunday when residents discovered steam coming from their water faucets.

A fire department official later said the hot sun upset the building's electrical controls and sent the water heater into high gear, turning all the hot water into steam.

PM Urges New NATO Arms Plan

WASHINGTON (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said today NATO should launch a major effort to develop new, constructive disarmament proposals in an effort to reduce tension with the Soviet bloc. (For other views on disarmament, see stories on Page 24.)

Trudeau's proposal seemed to conflict with the stand expressed by U.S. President Carter, who said the U.S. will maintain strategic nuclear balance with the Soviet Union.

Delivering Canada's contribution to the opening session of the two-day NATO summit, Trudeau maintained that the search for security can too easily be conducted only through armaments improvements.

"It must also be sought through effective arms control and disarmament," he said. "Members of the alliance should undertake a major effort to develop further positive and constructive proposals in this domain."

Trudeau also praised moves by the United States to open up American defence purchasing to other NATO allies. The defence purchasing issue has been a sore point particularly with European NATO members, seeking a larger share of the American defence market.

Summing up the Canadian view, Trudeau emphasized again, as he has on previous occasions, that "in the final analysis we will not be militarily strong unless we are economically strong."

Trudeau said Canada appreciates being consulted by the U.S. on the Soviet-American Strategic Arms Limitation Talks.

The allies, he said, should attempt to "impart some political resolve for forward movement" in the current East-West Vienna talks dealing with the balanced forces reduction in Europe.

In his address, President Carter said the NATO alliance must bolster its military power to meet a Communist buildup that "far exceeds their legitimate security needs."

Addressing the opening session, Carter pledged that the United States "will play its part" in supplying conventional, tactical nuclear and strategic armed forces.

"The United States will maintain strategic nuclear equivalence with the Soviet Union," Carter said.

His comments did not match the stridency of statements Sunday by his national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, but they were a far cry from Carter's remarks a year ago that the U.S. no longer need have an "inordinate fear" of communism.

Tax Troubles

Some of the busiest places in town these days must be the tax offices of the various municipal halls. Since tax notices started going out a couple of weeks ago, the phones have scarcely stopped ringing — and few of the calls have been pleasant. Most of them come from disgruntled homeowners wanting to know why, in a time of supposed restraint, their taxes have soared 10, 20, 30 and even 40 per cent.

It's a perfectly reasonable question, but it's quite unfair that city halls should be stuck in the position of being blamed for the increases. The blame should land squarely at the feet of the provincial government.

A number of provincial actions combined to lead to the increases. First, the government made some unilateral changes in the school financing formula which led to increases in school taxes.

Second, and more significant, a complete revision in the assessment system took place. Undoubtedly a revision was in order, but the provincial government took advantage of the opportunity to impose a massive shift in the tax burden from rental accommodation to ordinary single-family dwellings. The impact of the shift has been particularly acute on older dwellings which, it must be admitted, have been heavily sheltered from tax increases in the past few years.

The province argues that the new assessment procedures were recommended by a royal commission that studied the whole subject most carefully. Indeed they were, but they were recommended as part of a wider program of property tax reform. For example, the royal commission also said that the province itself should work towards paying 75 per cent of school operating costs. Instead, it is working towards paying a lower percentage each year so that it now pays less than half the costs in most school districts.

In an area already so complex and difficult as property tax reform, it is not realistic to implement a package of recommendations in such a piecemeal fashion. It cannot help but cause hardship to some people; in this case the victims are frequently those who cannot afford it, older people, people on fixed incomes, who have been living in the same older house for years.

The provincial government undoubtedly thinks it is politically safe on this issue because the natural target for blame and abuse is the municipal council which sets the mill rate and sends out the tax notices. The voters who are upset with the increases should show the Socreds that they know better.

Annoying Duck Bite

Perhaps we dozed overlong on the beach last summer, but when did ordinary, familiar lifejackets become Personal Flotation Devices?

It sounds like fourth prize in a contest to come up with the blandest, most undescriptive terminology. The federal Ministry of Transport's boating safety guide brought this ungainly amalgam — can it be a literal translation from German, or adopted from the military, perhaps ("devices, persons, for the flotation of") — into the language.

Immediately abbreviated to PFD, of course, the term does not seem destined to enter the weekend sailor's vocabulary. Words endure from the classic age of sail and wooden ships which have little meaning in an era of plastic and stainless steel; they're colorful nouns and adjectives with romance and meaning. But PFD?

Can't you just see a Coast Guard officer hailing a cabin cruiser: "Ahoy, there. Have you got your Personal Flotation Devices secured?" This mouth-filling phrase may not be the death of the English language all by itself, but a man can die from a thousand duck bites too.

Stow PFD in Davey Jones' locker, MoT.

Sleazy's the Best Word for It

OTTAWA — Sleazy is the best way to describe Conservative MP Sinclair Stevens' behavior in publicly accusing, although he knew he lacked any substantive evidence, nine Liberal MPs, including "two or three cabinet ministers," of speculating on the dollar.

The affair itself is now closed. Stevens indeed restored a measure of grace to himself by the manner of his retraction. He admitted he had been "wrong." He cited examples of accusations made, in the heat of debate, by cabinet ministers against Conservative members. He expressed "regret (for) any embarrassment" he might have caused since, by naming no one, he had vilified everyone.

The issue, though, is not ended. Stevens broke one of Parliament's unwritten rules, which always are far more binding than the written rules that get haggled over by lawyers, like the conflict of interest legislation that Deputy Prime Minister Alan MacEachen has promised to bring down.

Just Not Done

Parliament is a club. An old-fashioned one and inefficient one, but better, to paraphrase Winston Churchill's comment about democracy, than all of the alternatives.

It may seem quaint to say so, but in the end MPs have to comport themselves like gentlemen, or gentlewomen. Certain things are just not done. Everyone knows what they are. You don't call another MP a liar, even though by verbal tricks you can show that you don't believe that he or she is telling the whole truth. And you yourself tell the truth, even though once again you can use verbal tricks to cast your case in the best possible light.

Stevens is not a gentleman. He doesn't know what you don't do.

In many ways, Stevens has made a remarkable success of his political career. Few businessmen are able to make as quick and as accomplished a transition as Stevens has done from a simple, black-and-white bottom-line to the subtle, shifting greys of political life. Few can overcome, as Stevens has done, the disadvantage of looking like a politician's caricature of a businessman — roly-poly, chubby-cheeked, cigar-smoking. In addition, Stevens has lived down a sort of skeleton in his political past. This is the 1967 collapse of his Bank of Western Canada, which flowered during the hot-house, easy money years of the 1960s, and which then abruptly withered.

Could someone who couldn't run a small bank, run the economy of the country? Yes, it once seemed. There is to Stevens an almost unnerving, single-minded seriousness.

By sheer hard work and by peppy partisanship that counted when Conservative party spirits were low, Stevens overtook his more intellectual rival for the opposition finance critic portfolio, Toronto MP Jim Gillies. (As well, at the Conservative leadership convention, Stevens guessed on Joe Clark, and guessed right of course.)

Yet Stevens never has been able to distance himself from the doubts of his critics. A month ago, when an election seemed likely, word leaked out from Conservative inner circles that Stevens' appointment as a Conservative finance minister was by no means the certainty than everyone assumed.

The names of two rivals were passed out in what, clearly, was a deliberate campaign to reassure the financial community: Robert de Cotret, former president of the Conference Board in Canada, who is handicapped by a complete lack of parliamentary experience, and MP John Crosbie, once an outstanding minister of finance in Newfoundland, who is handicapped by the most serious possible defect in a Canadian politician — a sense of humor.

Lack of judgement is the criticism most commonly made against Stevens. More exactly his defect is a lack of a sense of responsibility.

A month ago, Stevens, as was quite proper, questioned Finance Minister Jean Chretien about reports the government had prepared draft foreign exchange control legislation. Chretien flatly denied the rumor. There the matter, which does the value of our dollar no good, should have rested. Instead, last week during a radio interview on the same day that he retracted his accusation about ministers speculating on the dollar, Stevens repeated his charge about impending exchange control legislation. Sleazy.

Mud on Himself

In the affair of the (now shown to have been imaginary) speculation on the Canadian dollar by cabinet ministers, Stevens' behavior has been even more curious. Last April 17, on a flight from Toronto to Ottawa, Stevens sat beside an aide to Justice Minister Ron Basford and related the story to him. This was the route by which the government first heard of the rumor. Subsequently, Stevens made no effort to check privately with Basford or with other ministers. Instead, he blurted out to a Canadian Press reporter what he knew to be unsubstantiated gossip. Again, sleazy.

Like many who set out to throw mud at others, Stevens has ended up with most of it on himself. That's his personal problem. The political problem Stevens has created for Joe Clark is that the Conservatives now lack a financial spokesman whom anyone could trust — to know how to behave let alone to know how to run the economy.

W.A. WILSON

Realistic Disarmament Plan

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau's speech to the United Nations disarmament conference was not the statement of a new policy but a new, very thoughtful and searching analysis of one of the world's most intractable problems.

Its most remarkable quality is the success it achieves in being constructive without losing realism or becoming trapped in idealistic but impractical rhetoric. The address was the outcome of weeks of work by the prime minister himself and the top officials of external affairs.

The high levels of armaments and the continuing race to increase them are a reflection of the political tensions that wrack this world and this is what makes it so difficult to proceed with disarmament as a problem in itself. Yet it is indeed a problem in itself even while it is the product of other, underlying difficulties.

One of the worst aspects of the arms race is the momentum that it generates feeding on itself, with the inherent risk that, as the prime minister put it, foreign policy may be dominated by defence policy rather than the other way around.

Petty Opposition

Because the speech was a lengthy analysis, rather than a policy statement, it makes petty nonsense of the pressure on the prime minister in advance to reveal its contents to the House of Commons or a press conference before delivering it to the United Nations. The House is entitled to hear government policies before any one else but it is not entitled to attempt emasculation of the nation's representative when he is addressing an international forum of importance. The opposition did not distinguish itself in the House the day before Trudeau went to the UN.

This is one more occasion when it is so much easier to appreciate the prime minister's efforts in the international field than it often is in the domestic one. It is also one of the reasons why his reputation abroad is usually so much higher than it is within the country. When he is operating internationally, he seems to rise to his full potential and is a worthy representative of the country. At home, his performances are too often marred by pettiness, extreme partisanship and, sometimes, apparent loss of interest. The difference is striking.

This was the first occasion during his 10 years in office that the prime minister had addressed the United Nations general assembly and the occasion for it was that Canadian authorities, like those in other countries, believe they sense the beginning of a new phase in international efforts to curb the increase in armaments. Evidently France is among the countries that share this feeling since its government decided to rejoin the disarmament dialogue and President Valery Giscard d'Estaing went to the assembly himself.

Some of this feeling is, no doubt, triggered by certain of U.S. President Jimmy Carter's positions and actions, although the manner in which he has carried them out has not been universally applauded. But it appears to have broader foundations than that and Trudeau may have touched the real cause of the new mood when he told the assembly that "detente also is in danger." Given the scale of the Soviet Union's arms build-up, conventional as well as nuclear, and its activist policies, detente is indeed in danger.

"The new technologies can require a decade or more to take a weapons system from research and development to production and eventual deployment. What this means is that national policies are preempted for long periods ahead. . . . (Governments) have allowed the blind and unchecked momentum of the arms race to create and to put at their disposal military capabilities of an order of magnitude that other governments cannot prudently ignore. In such a situation, there is a risk that foreign policy can become the servant of defence policy which is not the natural order of policymaking."

BOMB TEST
. . . no more weapons research

His analysis of the problem has led Trudeau to the conclusion that if four measures, each discussed for years already, could be worked into a combination they would become a strategy of suffocation imposed on the arms race. The four ingredients of this approach would be a total ban on tests of nuclear explosives, an agreement to flight-test new delivery systems, prohibition of all new production of nuclear explosives for military purposes, and a limit and then progressive reduction of the money spent on strategic nuclear weapons systems. If the world agreed to this approach it would leave in being huge nuclear arsenals but it would inhibit the development of new ones.

"It is a realistic strategy," Trudeau said, "because it assumes that, for some time to come at least, total nuclear disarmament is probably unattainable in practice. . . . It has at least the potential of reducing the risks of conflict that are inherent in the technological momentum of strategic competition. The ultimate intent of a strategy of suffocation is to halt the arms race in the laboratory.

The Canadian analysis does not stop with nuclear weapons, noting that since 1945 there have been 133 wars, involving 80 countries and killing 25 million people. Again, the prime minister is intensely realistic, conceding that production of military equipment is attractive to industrial countries because it contributes to national security, reduces external payments, creates jobs and with space activity produces about 70 percent of all new technology.

"There is no particular moral merit in a country that is buying arms, not producing them. And if the main reason for not producing them is not to be involved in selling them, it will have no practical impact on the arms race because other suppliers will readily fill the gap. . . .

Deal with Insecurities

"The purchasing countries seek, as is their right, to ensure their own security. In many cases, they seek no more than to maintain law and order on their national soil. To curb their right to acquire arms by purchase, even to place qualitative restraints on them, would revive much of the acrimony of the North-South dialectic . . .

"The incentive to acquire arms is rooted in apprehensions of insecurity. The best way to allay such apprehensions is through collective regional arrangements. . . . It would be for regional decision-makers to devise incentives for restraint and sanctions for excess in the accumulation of conventional arsenals and in the build-up of conventional forces."

There is force to that argument. The Latin American states have, after all, succeeded in turning their continent into a nuclear-free zone and in persuading outside powers to respect that status.

NATO's contribution to the security of Western Europe is beyond argument and it is disturbing to contemplate the level of insecurity that would exist there if that regional alliance had not been forged in the early days of the cold war.

The level of armaments in the world will only stabilize and, perhaps one day years from now begin to decline, if the feelings of insecurity that haunt so many nations are dealt with first. But if the world is indeed entering a new phase it is not inconceivable that the constant expansion of arsenals may gradually be eliminated as a contribution to insecurity.

Keep Our Jobs

I write to thank you for your editorial comment on the problem of public service transfers away from the capital city area (A Classic Dilemma; Times, May 25.) In reply to my own recent initiative, you raised several questions to which I'd like to reply.

The economy of Victoria is essentially artificial. There are more than 22,000 public servants on the payroll here. 2,000 of these are municipal, 9,000 are federal and 11,000 are provincial.

Apart from the public service and tourism, there is little significant industry in the capital. A number of us worked hard to create the Greater Victoria Economic Development Commission, but it will take years to diversify our economic base to any major extent.

The major employer of our people is government. Period. The annual provincial payroll in the capital is conservatively valued at $200 million.

Only when the ferry rates were doubled did we realize the importance — and fragility — of our tourist economy. The impact of doubling the rates was not anticipated by the Bennett government, and the results were disastrous.

The impact of a new Forests Act transferring perhaps 800 public servants away from the capital would be equally disastrous. This time, at least, we should try to anticipate the impact.

I am arguing for a stable-state provincial payroll in the capital city. I am arguing that transfers are not objectionable, unless they result in a net loss of jobs in the capital.

I am proposing a policy that would guarantee job-for-job when major transfers are planned, and that would guarantee a stable economy in the capital city itself.

No one is proposing the massive creation of new jobs. We can't afford more bureaucrats, and we don't need more bureaucracy.

But government has flexibility. The B.C. Energy Commission, the leisure services branch and the liquor distribution branch — for example — are all located in Vancouver. They could as easily locate in Victoria.

The capital of our province was created out of political compromise in the 19th century, following union of the crown colonies of Vancouver's Island and British Columbia. Once a capital city has been so created, it must be maintained in a healthy and vigorous fashion.

To do this, we require a provincial policy that guarantees the level and payroll of public service employment in the capital city.

Anything less will betray the promise and the future of Greater Victoria, and that is just totally unacceptable. — Charles Barber, MLA, Victoria.

No Development

I am one of those 1,500 residents who signed the petition opposing any further development of North Saanich marina.

Bob Wright, spokesman for the developers, says "he is on the side of the angels", whoever they may be. Perhaps they are the unknown people who are behind this development. However, Mr. Wright is reported by a local newspaper as the owner, so let's deal with him.

He has put forward two options, neither of which I find acceptable for such a sensitive environmental area. Dredging would be done under both these options, probably using some of our tax dollars through the marina assistance commission for something many of us don't want in the first place.

Before further marina expansion can take place he needs water leases, why can't we just say "no more water leases" and that's that.

It is my understanding that when the Clarkes owned the marina, they were told that there would be no further expansion allowed, and I believe this was made clear to the new owners also. If so, why all the pressure?

If the marina was not a viable enterprise at the time of purchase, then I would say that somebody made a bad business deal. Mr. Wright tells us that three years' back taxes were owing when he bought in. However, just because some companies don't pay taxes for a few years, doesn't necessarily mean they are on the skids.

Either of the two options would be devastating to the present state of the area. Imagine, eight units to the acre. On 15 acres, that's 120 units, each requiring water and some kind of sewage disposal. Mr. Wright says the third option would be to subdivide some 22 of the 37 acres into half-acre lots. I'd like to know how and when he proposes to get 44 water connections without putting a major strain on the existing water availability. And I certainly cannot see this area passing a suitable soil percolation test; there is no sewer in the vicinity. Pehaps Mr. Wright is using a little scare tactic to force us into accepting one or other of his two options.

If you are interested in preserving this unique and beautiful area, I urge you to write to the advisory planning commission, municipal hall and the mayor and council of North Saanich before it's too late. — Mrs. G. Montgomery, 1860 Swartz Bay Road.

TOWN TALK

Nothing like being good hosts.

The $600,000 Windward Passage came up from Portland to compete in the Swiftsure, but only a handful of people were on hand Sunday morning to welcome her as the first yacht across the finish line.

Among those who missed the event were CBC cameraman Ron Thompson and Channel 6 camerman Al Walton. Both were puttering around their respective kitchens listening to CFAX radio telling them not to expect the first finishers before noon.

Suddenly an excited announcer broke through with the news that a yacht was nearing the finish. Moments later (at 8:16 a.m.) he confirmed the Windward Passage was home.

One wonders how on a bright sunny morning all those diligent CFAX newshounds could have missed a 70-footer bearing down on the Inner Harbor under full spinnaker.

Sports director Ken Dobson said she caught everyone by surprise. No one at the Royal Victoria Yacht Club expected her for at least another three hours, he said.

During a Victoria council meeting Thursday night Ald. Robin Blencoe rose to congratulate the mayor and aldermen for voting to give a small grant to the Canadian Outward Bound Mountain School.

Blencoe, who used to be a justice development officer, said "I just wanted to say publicly what a tremendous organization this is. I've had experience with sending them kids who've been in trouble with the law and they've come back incredibly changed."

"We should send you there, then," piped up Ald. Bill McElroy.

A correspondent from the Sooke area recently mailed his letter to the editor of this newspaper in an envelope bearing a 12-cent stamp, two cents under the required rate.

But don't fret, sir, no one had to pay a surcharge. Your letter, date-stamped and intact, arrived in good time without the slightest demur on the part of the postal authorities.

What would happen if we tried using trading stamps? Would anyone notice?

A Canada-wide schools essay competition, on the theme "What Canada means to me," has produced some interesting observations on Canada and Canadians from the 20,000 students who submitted entries.

A Grade 6 student from New Brunswick listed several Canadian tourist areas worth visiting, including "Niagara Falls, Jasper Park, Ann of Green Gables, Building of Confederation and Disney Land."

And from the same province, a Grade 5 student began her essay, "I'll bet you think I'm doing this (entering the contest) for money, well I'm not . . . And ended, "Boy, I could sure use that money."

A sixth-grader from Alberta wrote: "In Canada, people talk different from other parts of the world. And when you go someplace, people can understand you."

A metric-minded Saskatchewan student enthused: "In Saskatchewan we have rolling plains with kilograms and kilograms of wheat and other crops."

Then there was the 12-year-old Westerner with a deeply ingrained distrust of Texans, who wrote: "There is a great chance of the United States of American taking the western side over, especially since this is where all the Texans go because this is where all the oil is, and the Texans are the kind of people who would do a thing like that. I know, I lived there."

The contest was organized by Greening Donald Co. Ltd., a Hamilton-based manufacturer of wire ropes and industrial products, and locals of the United Steelworkers of America in its various plants.

John Manthorpe, a 12-year-old student at Sir James Douglas elementary school, and Eric Yorath, 10, a Durrance school student are among 15 British Columbia patrollers chosen to attend the 19th National School Safety Week Jamboree in Ottawa.

The patrollers were chosen by the B.C. Automobile Association.

Where were all the hockey fans when they were needed?

Thursday night Victoria city council started its regular nightly meeting while the Boston Bruins were still locked in a losing battle with the Montreal Canadiens for the Stanley Cup.

Shortly after 8 Ald. John Hayes rose on an urgent matter.

"Does anyone know what the final score was in the hockey game?" he pleaded, turning to the public gallery when the mayor and aldermen all shook their heads.

But there wasn't a transistor radio in the place, and Hayes had to sit down gnashing his teeth and wondering how it all turned out.

Swiftsure Gets World Exposure

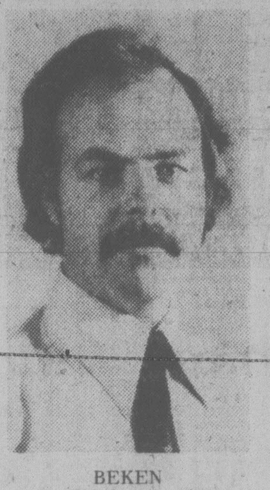
Times Staff

At least one picture of this year's Swiftsure will hang on the walls of offices and homes in Europe, Scandinavia, South Africa, the United States and Canada in 1980.

The excitement of this year's sailing classic has been captured by Ken Beken, 27, a third-generation marine photographer of the firm of Beken and Son from the Isle of Wight.

Beken, his grandfather, Frank, and his father, Keith, have all received warrants from the British royal family for their work. All are fellows of the Royal Photographic Society.



BEKEN
. . . third generation

This year's Swiftsure will be depicted in the Beken yachting calendars that are famous throughout the world.

Beken, who lives at Cowes, covers all the English-based yachting classics, such as the Admiral's Cup, while his father lives in the south of France and covers marine activity in the Mediterranean.

Beken says the standard of sailing of Swiftsure competitors is excellent, comparing favorably with that of European sailors.

Beken's grandfather, who was born in 1880, took his first picture when he was 10 years old. He was still taking pictures in his 80s until a year before he died.

"He used to get an old seaman to row him around in a dinghy," his grandson recalls. His grandson now uses a Boston whaler, capable of 30 knots.

Frank Beken, who received his royal warrant from Queen Victoria, was always asked to show his Cowes regatta pictures aboard the royal yacht Britannia after the week's racing.

Unlike most commercial photographers, Ken Beken reports he and his father are frugal in their use of film. This is probably inherited from Frank Beken, who because of the heavy glass plates he used, could only take 60 with him on his marine sorties.

The heavy box camera he made himself weighed 12 pounds and had to be held at arm's length, using the body as a shock absorber.

The shutter was fired by placing a rubber ball, connected to the camera by a hollow tube, between his teeth. When the time came to shoot, the ball was bitten, giving a shutter release without vibration.

His grandson smilingly tells of the time Frank Beken had an unpalatable shock when he put the ball hurriedly in his mouth and discovered it had been lying in a pool of diesel oil.

The younger Bekens use the Swiss-made Hasselblad cameras.

The Bekens do not restrict their pictures to sailing vessels, but photograph everything from seaplanes to oil rigs. One of the most cherished plates in their collection is one that Frank Beken took of the liner Titanic when she left on her ill-fated maiden voyage.

Ken Beken took his first picture when he was five.

"I cut my teeth on the original old camera when I was 18," he recalled.

He was asked to lecture by the Royal Photographic Society in January, 1977.

This is his first visit to Canada. Before leaving Victoria he will take pictures of the three-quarter ton world championship races which begin this week.

Then he's off to Honolulu to film the start of the Tall Ships race to Victoria, which begins June 26.

He'd like to see Swiftsure again but would like it to become part of a week-long regatta, similar to the Cowes regatta.

"You have the sailors and the organization. It would be well worth the $2,000 to come back again," he says.

City Balks On Bastion

Victoria council's planning committee today wouldn't go along with a provincial proposal to redesign the Wharf Street end of Bastion Square.

Committee members said they agreed with the government's proposal to develop the former Reid site on the Inner Harbor, and also agreed that pedestrian traffic should be encouraged to travel through Bastion Square across the street to the proposed new buildings.

But the committee couldn't agree on what method should be used to generate a flow-through of pedestrians.

The province would like to see one major street level crossing, but most committee members were opposed to that and thought a pedestrian overpass a better idea.

"There's a meeting of minds over what we want to achieve, but there is need for discussions on how we want to achieve it," said Ald. Bob Wright.

Wright proposed the city's planning department get together with the province and study all the available options for getting people from Bastion Square across Wharf Street to the Reid site.

"Lets not do what Toronto's done, where there's a downtown and a waterfront but getting from one to the other is a battle."

The committee agreed to table the matter until planners for both levels of goverment have researched all the options.

Hotel Thieves Grab $510

Two men brandishing knives and wearing silk-stocking masks held up the desk clerk at the Yates Hotel, 721 Yates, early today and made off with $510.

Victoria police Insp. Angus Stewart said the pair came from the back of the hotel and jumped the desk clerk, Allan David Harnston, from behind.

While one of the men rifled a cash till, the other forced Harnston, 41, to open a safe.

After scooping the money into a bag, they bound and gagged Harnston and fled.

Harnston managed to free himself and called police at 3:53 a.m.

Stewart said both men wore dark clothing and appeared to be in their early 20s.

COMMITTEE AT FAULT ON WINNER

John Graeme, information officer for the Swiftsure race, said today he and the race committee were at fault, not the computer, for incorrectly announcing Sunday the winner was Ted Burns' Outrageous of the Bremerton Yacht Club.

"John Graeme and the race committee jumped the gun because they (the boats) were breaking records in terms of elapsed time," Graeme said.

"We didn't think Bill Buchan (skipper of the winning boat Sachem) could pick up his handicap. We apologize to the media and the computer people."

Graeme said the race has been computerized for the past five years. It is the only way it could be handled with such a large number of participating boats, he said.

He said two staff members of Computel Systems Ltd. of Ottawa had worked two 16-hour volunteer shifts during the race and another two had put in four-hour shifts. The company also has provided the service free of charge for the last five years.

Graeme said it was the computer that finally found the mistake.

'Copter or STOL? Battle Heats Up

The battle is heating up between de Havilland and Okanagan Helicopters to see who will provide a new transportation link between Esquimalt and Vancouver.

"There is no doubt there is a demand for a new transportation service," de Havilland market development director Robert McIntyre said.

"The only question is whether it will be us or the competition."

De Havilland wants to run hourly service of a Short Takeoff and Landing plane between Esquimalt and Vancouver Airport.

The plane would carry 50 passengers and would arrive at Vancouver airport in about 20 minutes.

Location of the Victoria airstrip has not been decided, McIntyre said, but the site favored at the moment is on national defence property near Work Point.

Meanwhile, Okanagan Helicopters wants to operate at a heli-pad near Ogden Point and carry 28 passengers per trip to a site near the Bayshore Inn. The trip would take half an hour.

"We think our plan is better," McIntyre said of the de Havilland proposal.

"Noise is an important factor and the Dash 7 is the quietest plane in the world. There is no way a helicopter can be as quiet as we are."

Passenger loads are also a consideration, he said. The Dash 7 could carry 50 at a time.

"Also, we could form a network of routes. The Dash 7 could fly from Victoria to Port Alberni and Abbotsford and Kelowna — even to Prince George. The Okanagan people will admit they cannot operate helicopters at such long distances. We would also like to see a (Dash 7) service between Victoria and Seattle. It would be a natural."

All such questions, however, would be up to whatever firm operated the Dash 7 planes.

"We are just the manufacturer," McIntyre said.

The decision on whether it will be STOL or helicopters will come from a federal-provincial task force which McIntyre expects will be established soon.

Earlier, Okanagan Helicopters spokesman Kyle Steele argued that helicopters should be used because they offer downtown-to-downtown service and require a smaller landing pad.

McIntyre today said helicopters would require almost as much space as a STOL airstrip because of the need to construct a terminal building and provide parking as well as space for the machines to land.

McIntyre said STOLs almost certainly would have to land at Vancouver airport to begin with because of the difficulty of finding a landing strip near Burrard Inlet.

"The important thing is to eliminate the trip out to Patricia Bay. That's not handy to anything."

BREWIN

Former NDP provincial president John Brewin confirmed today he will seek the NDP nomination in Esquimalt for the next provincial election.

Brewin isn't the only family member involved in politics. His father Andrew has been an MP in the Toronto area since 1962.

His wife Gretchen is the NDP candidate in the federal riding of Victoria.

Governors Returned

The University of Victoria has appointed seven members of its board of governors to another three-year term.

The board members are: Joseph Cunliffe, president of Willis, Cunliffe, Tait & Co.; Alex Hall, a B.C. Hydro agrologist; Dr. James Portelance, a Langford physician; Dr. Terry Huberts, a Sidney veterinarian; Victoria lawyer Ian Stewart, William K. Gwyer, former president of West Kootenay Power and Light Co. and former Victoria mayor Hugh Stephen.

One other seat on the board is yet to be filled.

CoL Police Hangup

Discussions between the Saanich policemen's union and police board over a new labor contract are still bogged down over the interpretation of a cost-of-living clause.

Both sides appeared at an informal meeting of the board in Vancouver on Monday.

Industrial relations officer Barry Goff has suggested the policemen put their position in writing.

Meanwhile, police board chairman Mayor Mel Couvelier said he will call a special meeting of his board later this week to review the union's position and hopefully work out a compromise.

But union members, who have voted non-confidence in Couvelier's handling of the contract negotiations, have indicated they would sooner take their case back to the LRB than deal with the board directly.

"We have complete confidence in the Labor Relations Board," union president Phil Jamieson said.

The issue centres on the interpretation of how a cost-of-living allowance should be applied — whether, as the union wants, as an adjustment to policemen's salaries or as the board seeks, an allowance separate from salaries.

The difference is critical because the decision will determine what the policemen's base salary rate will be when the current contract expires on Jan. 1, 1980.

Jamieson fears if the board gets its way and there is high inflation next year, the union members would end up with a decline in salary when negotiations for the next contract begin.

Gun Cache Found

Eight handguns stolen from a Victoria dealer in April were recovered Monday by members of the Greater Victoria Co-Ordinated Law Enforcement Unit.

Seven of the guns were found in a box buried beside the Port Renfrew-Shawnigan Lake Road and the eighth — fully loaded — was located buried near Hall's Boat House on the Malahat.

A police spokesman said all the weapons had been well-greased and oiled.

They had been taken from International Knives, 574 Yates, during an early morning break-in April 10.

One man has already been charged in connection with the break-in and another, who is in Wilkinson Road jail, faces a charge of possession of stolen property.

today's markets

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Continued gains in resource issues kept the Toronto stock market almost two points higher in active mid-afternoon trading today.

Anglo United Development Corp. Ltd. jumped 27 cents to $2.32 a share on the sale of 49,000 shares following its resumption shoftly before noon. Trading was delayed at the opening due to an imbalance of orders.

Among industrials, B.C. Packers B gained 1½ to $50, Crown Life Insurance 1⅜ to $56⅜, Dome Petroleum 1 to $60¼, Falconbridge Nickel Mines A ¾ to $25½ and Alberta Natural Gas ⅝ to $41.

Magna International dropped 1 to $24, United Corporations ½ to $12, Montreal Trust ½ to $19½, BP Canada ⅛ to $13¾ and Canadian Imperial Bank ⅛ to $28¾.

Giant Yellowknife Mines rose ¾ to $13¼, Camflo ⅜ to $15¼ and Dickenson ⅜ to $5⅞. Denison Mines fell ½ to $69½ and Sherritt Gordon A ¼ to $6¼.

New York

Brokers said traders were waiting uneasily for Wednesday's report from the labor department on the consumer price index for April. Several U.S. government officials warned last week that the figures would contain unpleasant news on the pace of inflation.

By this morning a quarter-point increase in the prime lending rate, initiated last Thursday by Chicago's Continental Illinois bank, had been matched by most other leading banks across the country.

That put the basic charge on blue-chip loans at 8½ per cent, its highest level in more than three years.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were fractionally higher in moderate trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange. Oshawa Group A was up ¼ to $6⅞, Ashland Oil ⅝ to $17¾, Bank of Montreal ⅛ to $21, Bell Canada ¼ to $57⅜ and Total Petroleum ⅛ to $12⅛. Shell Canada was down ⅛ to $13¾, Northern Telecom ⅛ to $29½, Royal Bank ⅛ to $31½ and Holla ger Mines A ½ to $32¾. Among speculative issues, Dumagami Mines slipped two cents to $2.15 on a volume of 4,700 shares traded.

London

LONDON (CP) — The London stock market was moderately lower near the close of light trading. The Financial Times index was down 3.7 to 472.4 an hour before the close. Leading equities held steady at lower levels, while gold issues climbed with higher bullion prices. Canadian stocks were mixed to lower.
